Making Room for New North Lake Student Art

If you have been in Christmas Valley Market there is no doubt you have enjoyed seeing the colorfully creative artwork hanging on the walls. Sue Ingalsbe was approached with the idea of her grade school classes creating something to display on the blank walls of Christmas Valley Market. The artwork, along with the story behind each piece, were beyond expectation! It was delightful to watch the proud children show their parents what portion of the art was theirs. Each child in the class has left their mark on the canvases. All canvases include a list of names identifying the talented artists.

Christmas Valley Market is going to auction off the 2015 artwork created by the k-6 grade classes. Proceeds will pay for new canvases and any surplus will be given to North Lake School for additional art supplies.

Christmas Valley EMS in the 2015 Fourth of July Parade

EMS Week: Thanking the Volunteers

By Chuck Coleman

May 15-21 is EMS week. It is an official presidential proclamation that was signed by President Ford in 1973 and this is the 42nd observance.

Just about every square mile of the United States is covered by an EMS system of some sort. That can be very expensive systems with lots of equipment, full-time people, and tremendous resources. In Christmas Valley EMS services are provided by volunteers who donate their time to the community. These EMS volunteers have to go through the same grueling exams as full-time paid EMS professionals. They have to do recertification hours every two years to keep their license active. Those continuing education hours can range from 24 to 72 hours every two years. Just getting those hours alone can be overwhelming when most volunteers have family, friends, job, and a life outside of EMS.

A typical EMS call in Christmas Valley can take anywhere is from 1 to 10 hours. Since these are emergencies these calls are not scheduled in advance. I have seen these EMS professionals get up at 1 o'clock in the morning, respond to the scene, load the patient into the ambulance, and then drive to Bend. They transfer the patient and then drive back to Christmas Valley. Once back at the station they make sure that the ambulance has been resupplied for the next call.

Then these volunteers go back home just in time to get their family off to school, off to work and often times go off to work themselves for another eight hours. They do all this with just a few hours of sleep.

I can't think of another volunteer position that requires so much time energy, required training and sacrifice. Most other volunteer positions, other than firefighting and police, have scheduled times for meetings and tasks. In no way am I diminishing other volunteer activities. Volunteering is a time honored tradition and needs to be encouraged. Everyone should volunteer at something. But there is a huge difference between having a schedule and then getting a call in the middle of the night for somebody who is having an emergency.

So this week go out of your way thank these emergency medical folks for what they do and the sacrifices they make. And, if you feel you have what it takes, sign up and become an EMS volunteer. The road to get there is long and hard and there will be times that you will regret signing up. But the rewards are great. Not only will you help your community, you will better your self. Having advanced medical training can come in handy.

Imagine if you called 911 and no one showed up. Don't take these EMS volunteers for granted and thank them for a job well done.

Of Alfalfa and Dreams...

By Katy Matchette

Kids would call it late spring. In four to six weeks school will let out and summer will begin unofficially. For farmers it's a waiting period—plenty to do, but not yet time to cut. Everyone holds their psychological breaths waiting for the alfalfa.

How to get ready—besides the obvious? If you're a kid, finish your homework. Do some extra reading. Practice or learn tractor driving. For adults, I would suggest one not-thought-of task. Get as healthy as you can. The human body considers night sleeping time. Alfalfa doesn't know that. Neither do moisture patterns in the atmosphere.

I've been thinking a lot about sleep lately. Getting enough—and getting it at the right time can pose a problem even without haying. For the past couple of months I've taken medicine that interferes with sleep. Now I've reduced the dose and things are getting better. However, I still find myself sleeping at the wrong time—even when I slept well at the “right” time. Sleep matters.

Sleep matters to younger people too, but most of them don't notice. One of the beauties of the teenage years is the ability to override what your body demands and keep going. Sorry kids, it won't last. In Christmas Valley summer becomes a time for many to follow their example. Do 8 cups of coffee equal 8 hours sleep? I can't answer that, but I know people who could.

Still haying is a joyous time. At last you reap the fruits of your year's hard work. The sun shines; air conditioners crank up; hay comes down and the process begins. It's a little like Thanksgiving. It almost feels like a new start; however, that hay is the culmination of a dream.

In that sense haying season brings hope to everyone. We may not all dream of alfalfa and high prices, but we all have dreams. If nothing else, haying season reminds us of two things. (1) Take care of yourself so you can enjoy the dream; and (2) Dreams come true when we focus on them and work hard to bring them to fruition. Hooray for hay! Hooray for all the dreams we work for and finally achieve! Haying shows us hope fulfilled.

Back in Thyme Herbals - Marshmallow

Linda McCoslin

Although the Emperor Charlemagne (742-614) so highly esteemed Marshmallow that he ordered its cultivation, the plant would be almost forgotten today if its name were not attached to the popular candy. Its fresh young tops are still eaten in France as a spring tonic, but it is used nowadays generally as a last resort, especially in times of famine. Some middle Eastern people boil marshmallow and then fry it with onions and butter. A confection made from the herb was the inspiration for the candy called marshmallow, but the commercial product contains no trace of the plant.

Originally found in costal areas of Europe, marshmallow is now widely naturalized. The plants botanical name comes from the Greek verb, ALTHO (all heal), it has been valued for its soothing and healing action, both internally and externally for at least 3,500 years. As well as being used medicinally, both the root and leaves can be eaten as vegetables. Marshmallow is one of over 1,000 species in the Malvaceae family, all of which contain a healing mucilage. Long used as a healing herb, marshmallows were eaten by the Egyptians and Syrians, and mentioned by Pythagoras, Plato, and Virgil. The plant was enjoyed by the Romans in barley soup and in stuffing for suckling pig, while classical herbalists praised its gentle laxative properties.

MARSHMALLOW: Althaea officinalis (mallow family) other names; Althaea, Mortification Hoot, Sweetweed. Related to Hollyhock.

Marshmallows root constituents consist of: asparagine, mucilage, polysaccharides, pectin, tannins, glucans, arabans and galacturonic rhamnans, and sterols. The leaves contain: mucilage, flavinoids, quercitrin, kampferol, scopoletin, coumarin, salicylic, phenolic acid-asparagin and sugars.

Marshmallows actions are: emollient, demulcent, vulinary, anti-inflammatory, analgesic, antiseptic, antitussive, expectorant, diuretic, anthilitic, immune enhancer, galactagogue, and wound herb.

For your digestion marshmallow is: anti-inflammitory for ulcerative colitis, gastritis, and peptic ulcers. Mucilage soothes heart burn, IBS and constipation from dryness, reduces persistalis and relieves diarrhoea. Larger doses have mild laxative effects.

For your respiratory system marshmallow is: a mild expectorant and immune enhancer. It soothes harsh dry coughs, sore throats, laryngitis, bronchitis, and croup. It clears catarrh and alleviates inflammation.

For your immune system marshmallow is: antimicrobial against proteus vulgaris, pseudomonas aeruginosa and staphylococcus aureus, also stimulates production of white blood cells.

For your urinary system marshmallow is: a soothing diuretic, relieving cysti-

FORT ROCK HOMESTEAD MUSEUM

M.E. "Jack" Swisher
Fort Rock Homestead Museum

Frank and Vivian Stratton grew up on Fort Rock valley homesteads by the town of Wastina in the early 1900s. After raising their family in Bend and elsewhere, they retired to Fort Rock. The loss of original homestead buildings concerned them, so they and a handful of other local people started the museum in 1984. By 1986 they had purchased a 20-acre site and began to collect buildings off the desert to preserve them. Donated furnishings, volunteer labor, and a little grant support from foundations for renovations have allowed this unique museum to remain open for public tours. Opening Day is May 26th this year. We hope you'll come visit us. Thanks to Patrick Daugherty for posting these photos.

Leave Young Wildlife in the Wild

Oregon Dept. of Fish & Wildlife

May and June are the months when newborn animals are getting their start in the wild. Help them out by giving them space and leaving them alone.

ODFW and Oregon State Police remind Oregonians that taking young animals out of the wild isn't just against the law—it's also bad for the animal. These animals miss the chance to learn important survival skills from their parents like where to feed, what to eat, how to behave as part of a group and how to escape from predators.

Unfortunately, every year about this time, ODFW offices across Oregon get calls from people concerned about "orphaned" deer fawns, elk calves, seal pups and other animals they find alone. But the mother animal is usually just off feeding not far away. She will return soon, so don't interfere.

"People often pick up animals they find alone out of good intentions, without realizing they may be sentencing the animal to an early death by removing it from its natural environment and its parents," said Julia Burco, ODFW Wildlife Veterinarian.

"Never assume one of a young animal is orphaned unless you saw the parent killed," continued Buco. "In almost all cases, the parent will return once it is safe to do so, like when people and dogs aren't around."

If an animal is injured, or truly orphaned, it needs special care. Oregon's licensed wildlife rehabilitators have the knowledge and facilities to provide this care. They use special methods that limit human interaction and mimic the animal's natural lifestyle as much as possible, so the animal can hopefully be returned to the wild.

Before picking up any wild animal, call ODFW, Oregon State Police, or a wildlife rehabilitator for advice. Removing or "capturing" an animal from the wild and keeping it in captivity without a permit is against state law (OAR 635-044-0015), as is transporting many animals. Last year, seven people were cited for such offenses (No wildlife holding permit/Take-hold young game mammal).

Follow these tips if you encounter young animals in the wild:

Deer, elk and other mammals:

Never assume an animal is orphaned. Don't remove it from the forest, including your backyard. Female deer and elk and other mammals will often leave their young temporarily for safety reasons or to feed elsewhere. They will return when it is safe to do so (when people, dogs, or predators are not present).

Call your local ODFW office, Oregon State Police office, or a local licensed wildlife rehabilitation center when: 1) you see an animal that you know is orphaned because you observed the dead parent animal, or 2) the parent hasn't returned for several hours or even up to a day, or 3) if the animal is clearly injured or in distress.

Bunnies are rarely orphaned; mother rabbits only visit den sites at dusk and dawn to feed her young.

Keep your dog or cat away from young wildlife, especially in the spring.

If you see a seal pup, young sea lion, or other marine mammal that appears stranded or in distress, contact OSP's hotline at 1-800-452-7888.

Birds:

Leave fledgling birds alone. It is natural for fledgling (mostly feathered) birds to be awkward while learning how to fly. If you see one on the ground, leave it alone and keep your distance. Bring your pets under control and indoors if possible. The mother bird will feed it for several days on the ground until it "gets its wings."

Return nestling birds to the nest. Nestlings (baby birds not fully feathered) found on the ground can be gently and

The Sad Hay Economy

By Maggie Cornell

April 28, 2016 – Hay prices are on the down low in a steady decline. In the beginning of 2015 the hay prices were high, ranging from $270 per ton. When the beginning of haying season started (June 5th), the prices dropped considerably low, $200. Since the hay economy dropped, people are practically giving it away to make room for this next season. Farmers thought that since California is going through a drought they'd have California brokers coming up to Lake County for the hay, but that assumption was wrong. According to Pat Cornell, a hay farmer, "No one knows where the economy is going to be this year." He also pleaded that it's hard to make a profit right now. Some of these farmers are scared of a drop in the economy again because if the prices drop lower, some of the smaller farms will have to file for bankruptcy.

Because of the hay prices being so low, the fertilizer prices have dropped too. Looking at fertilizer now, calcium (00-00-60) is $525 a ton. Sulfur is $5.25 a ton. Ammonium phosphate (11-52-00) is $525 a ton also. Zinc is $2,500 a ton. The prices of calcium, ammonium, and zinc have dropped around $200 because of this hay economy. This hurts fertilizer companies. They aren't getting a very good profit either if they even are.

Since the hay prices have went down, so has the farm equipment and technology. Without the farmers making a profit it is affecting the tractor companies profit too. The hay economy isn't really affecting the tractors but more of the technology for the tractor companies.

Sadly, with this economy affecting the tractor companies, hay growers, and fertilizer prices, it's hard to say when his economy is going to look up for hay. No one wants to go bankrupt. The companies are holding on until this hay market goes up, but will it?

Summit Jr. Varsity Track Meet - Bend

By Mikayla Weaver

It was a beautifully sunny day on the 27th of April - a perfect day for a Junior Varsity track meet at Summit High School in Bend, OR. Our North Lake Cowboys and Cowgirls did a fantastic job in their events and made plenty of new friends.

The schools that participated were North Lake, Lakeview, Summit, Gilchrist, Paisley, Trinity, Chiloquin, La Pine, Colver, Lost River, and a few others.

"I just like competing"

After interviewing student athletes from other schools, it was noticeable that most of their answers were the same. Many students enjoy competing against the student athletes from other schools. Bryton Jones from Paisley mentioned he loves how "competing against other kids gives such a rush" and how he loves pole vaulting. He P.R'd in pole vault with an even 10 feet. Another pole vaulter, Cole Vore from North Lake, groaned that in his event he did "really bad." He claimed that he felt like the strong wind was the reason he did so terrible in pole vault.

"It's Freakin' Awesome!"

About halfway through the meet, student athletes began acting very lethargic. Most of the athletes were sluggish and exhausted - except one boy with bright yellow sunglasses walking around with a smile on his face while enjoying a bag of popcorn. He beamed that his popcorn was "freakin' awesome!" and that track was, too. "I LOVE track!" he rejoiced.

"Did You P.R.?"

There was an abundance of personal records in our field events Wednesday. Our very own Nikole Widenoja got a 19'7" in shot-put and 44'4" in discus. "I was so excited to actually be able to move forward again," replied Widenoja when I asked how she felt about her P.R. in shot put, "I think technique and doing things right helped quite a bit."

I had asked another North Lake student, Matti Wilson, how she felt she did at the Summit JV meet, she responded with: "I don't feel I did the best I could've done... but it wasn't bad, I guess. Sometimes it's nerve-wracking, but push yourself and try to find a love for what you're doing, and make friends!" She was in the high jump and the girls' 4x100m, but she has been a big influence on our other athletes.

The teams did a spectacular job Wednesday, and our Cowboys and Cowgirls will be competing in more track meets this season. To keep in touch with your student athlete go to Athletic.net for all your track updates.

Central Oregon District Leadership Camp

by Carlie Nelson

This year's Central Oregon District FFA leadership camp was a huge success. The district officers chose the theme of "Your Destination," where members looked into the future to gain leadership skills and worked with state officers in many workshops. At the beginning of camp everyone splits up by officer position, presidents go together, VPs go together, secretaries, etc. From there the state officers lead workshops, each with a purpose and new subject each time. They taught to prioritize, and take leadership but work as a team, also to not judge by appearance and definitely don't judge yourself, also expect that failure is an option, but you can also have another plan and succeed. All of the 2016-2017 Oregon state officers are great leaders, examples, and friends.

The North Lake chapter had an especially memorable camp. North Lake chapter president Garrett House exclaimed that, "This was the best leadership camp so far." The entire chapter left with new knowledge, memories, and friends, plus many of the freshman want to have a bigger role in the chapter and want to be officers.

We went with a large number of good kids, nine of which are freshman, but the advisor Chad Waldron admitted, "I brought many kids but they understand the rules and are well behaved." This statement is true as well, every member was on their best behavior and have their mindset in the right place, FFA.

Garrett House led the advanced rituals contest, where the officers state their part in opening ceremony. This year's advanced officer team consisted of: Garrett House, president; Gentry Strong, vice president; Page Warfle, secretary; Carlie Nelson, treasurer; Kali Lorenz, reporter; and Levi Waldron, sentinel. North Lake FFA was a fairly new team. Most members were confident and excited, though they didn't win, the team carried on with a smile.

There are many North Lake activities coming up in the near future like shop skills, FFA pet day, and the Hay King contest. When will be the next time you see the blue jacket?

TRAIL REPORT

Silver Lake Area Horse Trail Status

Pat Huffman reports that the trail from Silver Creek Marsh to Auger Valley Camp is open for use.

At this time all other trails remain closed.

Wildlife

quickly returned to the nest. If the nest is out of reach, place the bird on an elevated branch or fence, or in a nest made from a small box, out of the reach of children and pets. Leave the area so the parent birds can return.

Bring your pets indoors. Cats are a major cause of injury and death for all birds, killing millions of birds in the US annually. Keep your pets away from fledgling birds learning to fly.

Be careful when pruning trees as there may be a bird nest in the branch. Wait until birds are out of the nest.

Beware of cavity nesters. Barn owls and other birds could be nesting in hollowed-out trees or logs and in haystacks.

What if a bird flies into a window and appears hurt? Birds can be confused by reflective surfaces and mistakenly fly into windows. If you find a bird that has been stunned as a result of a window strike, put the bird in an uncovered box with a towel on the bottom. Keep it in a quiet place away from pets and check back in a couple of hours. If the bird has recovered, it will have flown off. If not, contact a local ODFW office or your local wildlife rehabilitator.

Let turtles cross the road. In May and June, females begin searching for suitable nesting grounds to lay their eggs. If you see a turtle on the ground, the best thing to do is leave it alone and let it continue on its path. It's fine to move it off a road (if it is safe for you to do so,) but put it on the other side, where it was headed.

Outback Retirement Center Update!

ORC Board

Outback Retirement Center Vision Statement:

Grow Outback Retirement Center into a successful locally based retirement community with a senior center providing services from "independent living" through "24 hour care" to the senior population 55 and older.

Outback Retirement Center is a non-profit corporation dedicated to providing affordable housing and care to senior citizens in Christmas Valley and surrounding areas, where they can have access to social, spiritual, recreational, and healthy activities.

We are grateful for the community support of the Christmas Valley Senior Center. The work on the Senior Center is all but complete. The front approach, back steps, and kitchen are the final pieces of the project. The ORC Board hopes to have this facility available for public use later this summer.

Also on Outback Retirement Center property is Ann's Styling Salon, a laundromat, and The Pines Cafe. Mike & Terry Weiser and Miss Martha have done a great job managing and running the restaurant. It is a welcome addition to the center.

Recently several smaller RV trailers were moved from ORC property and improvements are being made to the infrastructure to accommodate more permanent housing. We apologize for the inconvenience this has caused, but it is necessary as we move forward.

The Outback Second Hand store, located at 86723 Christmas Valley Hwy, is an arm of the Outback Retirement Center. We thank the community for their support of donations and patronage of the store with its quality used items. Carol and Linda are doing a wonderful job there. All proceeds from the second hand store go to the support of the Outback Retirement Center complex.

The board would also like to remind everyone that they have a large supply of senior aids such as, shower stools, toilet seat extensions, walkers and crutches and much more located at the Second Hand Store location on Christmas Valley Highway. These items are made available at no cost; simply sign them out and use them as long as needed.

Thank you to all that have supported this project with time and donations and especially those many volunteers without whom we would not be where we are today. Stay tuned for more updates as these projects progress.

Questions may be directed to any of the ORC Board Members:

Marshmallow

tis, urethritis and irritable bladder. It also eases passing of gravel and stones.

Externally leaves are applied to irritation and inflammation from insect bites and wasp / bee stings. With lavender and flax oil, it is used for treating scalds and burns as well as sunburn. It soothes and heals inflamed skin in sore nipples, acne and eczema. Warm poultices of it are used to draw out splinters and for mastitis, boils and abscesses. A mouthwash gargle can be used to treat sore throats and inflamed gums.

Considerations for use: Marshmallow root is available in fluid extracts, powders, and tinctures for internal use, and as a cream for external use. Japanese researchers learned that the mucilage in the root can lower blood sugars. There is no evidence that it causes hypoglycemia or interferes with diabetic treatments.
