Great Interest in Christmas Valley Speeds Up Work, Development

Are we coming into a new era of prosperity?????

The soaring 60's Many businessmen are beginning to think that way.

Los Angeles total population has passed the 2,600,000 mark according to John E. Roberts, city planning director.

The population figure, 2,620,000 is an increase of 138,400 since the last U.S. census in April, 1960. Roberts added that Los Angeles should have approximately 3,500,000 people in 1980.

They predict 8 million cars will be sold this year.

If you think traffic is a mess now, just wait a year.

Over 2 million youngsters will reach driving age in 1964. This will mean one and one-half million more cars on the road.

Some of the reasons for the prediction of a new era of prosperity --

Construction is starting to brighten.

Housing shows new life.

Builders are expanding their plans.

Retail sales are running ahead of merchants forecasts.

Inventories are being built up at a faster pace.

Many companies now report heavy demands from their customers in recent weeks which caught them short so, deliberate expansion of warehouse stock is in the making at present with little chance it will peter out.

Steel is a notable example. The recent notices of a price rise will, no doubt, follow the usual pattern of wage raises.

If Congress passes the proposed tax cut it will release more spending money and increase the deficit several billions. This could start an inflationary trend.

Inflation always makes land more desirable.

OREGON STATE LEGISLATURE EYES NEW REAL ESTATE LAW

The Oregon State Legislature, sparked by Real Estate Commissioner, Robert E. Jensen, and several developers working within the state, are considering a new bill that provides the Real Estate Commission with greater scope in the administration of Subdivision sales.

The bill has been patterned after the California law whereby the Commission may require a report containing information pertinent to a development be published and given to prospective purchasers.

The bill also allows the Commission to halt Subdividers who do not complete their commitments and fulfill advertised promises.

"The Oregon Commission is in need of a set of rules of this nature," said a spokesman for the M. Penn Phillips Company, developers of Christmas Valley.

"The growth of this fine state should accelerate during the next few years, and a good workable Subdivision law similar to what we have in California, will help developers such as ourselves, as well as the buying public."

Subdivision activity in Oregon has accelerated during the past two years. There are more than 10 times as many as were active in 1961.

The Commissioner is asking for this legislation. He is undoubtedly concerned with the activities of fringe developers similar to those in Arizona, who have received so much public notice in recent months.

Spring Spurs Activity in Every Type of Project

Nature is at its best in springtime. M. Penn Phillips Co. personnel at Christmas Valley is doing its best to keep up with Mother Nature. Buildings are being given new coats of paint. Roads are being spruced up. Landscaping is being carried out on many projects. New pasture grass has been seeded to give the area a green floor this summer.

On the economic side, budgets and work loads are being examined to determine what is necessary to keep pace with our rapidly growing development.

"Christmas Valley has been amazing from its very beginning," observed General Project Manager Phil Washington.

Step Up Original Pace

"We have received such tremendous interest in our development that we had to step up our original schedule. This rapid pace has continued and will, if anything, accelerate in the future."

"I believe the best method of giving our Property Owners a comprehensive report on the progress of our development would be to take each phase and give a brief summary of activity in each area," said Washington.

Road Race Scheduled Here

The newly organized Christmas Valley Recreation District will sponsor the first sports car race at Christmas Valley on June 16. The Klamath Falls Sports Car Association, Ron Frederickson, president of the group, and Ed Cater of Christmas Valley are arranging the thrilling event.

After contacting eight sports car clubs in the area, Frederickson said approximately 70 to 100 cars will participate in the race. Timing for the spectacular race will be furnished by the Klamath Falls Sports Car Association.

Race Course 4.9 Miles

The race course will cover 4.9 miles. Action of the race will be visible from the Christmas Valley Lodge at all stages of the event.

Handsome trophies will be awarded to the winner, runner-up and third place finisher. Entry fees will be $3 each.

'PARDON OUR DUST'

"Pardon my dust" is a term usually used by someone moving in a hurry.

That's an appropriate motto for Christmas Valley, too, because the M. Penn Phillips Co. is developing our community at an accelerated pace.

With hectic activity going on at many fronts, raising dust is unavoidable because of heavy traffic of huge machinery, delivery trucks and other vehicles.

We feel sure that our Property Owners wish to complete the Christmas Valley community as soon as possible. We hope, therefore, that when next you visit Christmas Valley, you'll "pardon our dust."

Locating, Staking of Land Parcels in Christmas Valley 60% Completed

The locating and staking of thousands of parcels in the more than 80,000 acres of Christmas Valley is now about 60% completed.

Full time crews have established their main horizontal and lateral controls and contemplate completion of the entire job in about 18 months.

No attempt has been made to establish a set schedule for this crew as it is primarily interested in locating and surveying lands that are to be developed immediately.

At the moment we are able to locate any parcel in the Christmas Valley development for any Property Owner.

Here Girls Beat Boys in Softball

Men in Christmas Valley are taking quite a bit of ribbing lately.

Seems the gals here challenged the men to a softball game on the new ball diamond, and the gals not only beat the boys—they trounced them.

Both players and spectators were wearing new white "Sweat Shirts" with "Christmas Valley, Oregon" and a green Christmas tree inscribed on the back.

This is becoming quite a fad not only in the area but among visitors as well. The Christmas Valley shirts can be purchased in Al and Connie Baert's Mercantile Store here.

The victorious women softball players are pretty confident or they don't know when they're well off. At last report, they've challenged the man again to another game.

Canadians Visit Family

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Becker and daughter, Judith, who are from Westwall, British Columbia in Canada, have been visiting with the Ed Cater family.

Oregon County Tax Assessors Pay Visit to Christmas Valley, Discuss Budget Figures

Several tax assessors from many parts of Oregon visited Christmas Valley during their annual visit of counties. The group dined at the Christmas Valley Lodge on April 18 and later discussed methods of taxation.

Officials making the trip were Ralph Carter, County Assessor of Crook County, Prineville; John Caird, Deputy from Prineville; Hap Caldwell, Klamath County Assessor's Office, and his wife, Dorothy; Dale Farris, Harney County Tax Assessor, Burns; Jim Allan, Grant County Tax Assessor from Canyon City;

Herbert Lyons, Deschutes County Assessor and Dick Schriber of Bend; Harold Langslet, County Assessor of Lake County, Lakeview; Jules Corum, Lake County Commissioner; Bussey Iverson, Silver Lake and Berkeley DeVaul, Public Relations representative for State Tax Commission.

The tax assessors enjoyed pre-dinner refreshments at Ed Cater's home, then stayed on for a delicious steak dinner at the Lodge.

Check Budget Figures

After dinner the officials met with Warren Morton, Charles Selby and John Pettus, directors of the newly formed Christmas Valley Recreation District.

Harold Langslet, Lake County assessor, went over budget figures with Recreation District directors.

Mel Brown, Christmas Valley Chamber of Commerce president, and his wife, Grace, left for California to spread the good word about Christmas Valley.

Mel and Grace will visit the M. Penn Phillips Co. headquarters in Azusa during their two-week trip.

Byams Announce Daughter's Wedding

Bob and Helen Byam announced the approaching marriage of their daughter, Suzanne Byam, to Lee Wenndorf in Istanbul, Turkey, on May 4.

Suzanne has been with the U.S. State Department at the Paris Embassy for the past 18 months. Wenndorf is with the American Consulate General Service.

The couple will live in Istanbul for the duration of his assignment there--two years. Helen and Bob would like to attend the wedding but the distance is just too great.

any Christmas Valley tour. It has been the locale of demonstrations for the latest type of farm machinery, exhibits for the various methods of cultivation and irrigation, as well as typical installations for livestock such as pigs, chickens, beef and milk cows, sheep and horses.

Work Schedules Set

WATER SYSTEM -- After granting of a $300,000 contract to Sterling Pipe Co., we have set up shipping and work schedules for the installation of the balance of the Christmas Valley Townsite water system. This firm specializes in this vital work, so we can expect a first rate job.

CHRISTMAS VALLEY MOBILE HOME ESTATES -- The Recreation Building and Transient Trailer Park are in the final stages of completion. Landscaping plans have been approved and scheduled.

CHRISTMAS VALLEY DUDE RANCH -- We have planted new pasture grass for the Dude Ranch. Methods of obtaining roping stock on an entire season basis were formulated. We have plans to encourage greater use of the fine Dude Ranch facilities by scheduling jackpot rodeo events.

Lodge Top Meeting Spot

CHRISTMAS VALLEY LODGE -- We are giving "The Lodge," as it is affectionately called, a nice new coat of paint. We have in effect extensive planting programs for evergreen trees in this area. More recreational facilities have been planned for the Lodge region. The Lodge has become established as "THE" meeting spot for civic, professional, agricultural and business groups.

"Add to this impressive development list, additional work on road building, engineering, construction and ranch work and you have an idea of the tremendous energy and money being expended to enhance the growth and development of Christmas Valley," said Washington.

FIRST DELIVERY MORE THAN ONE MILE OF PIPE FOR $300,000 JOB

More than one mile of water pipeline was delivered April 17 to the Christmas Valley Townsite. The 5800 feet of water pipe was the first truck-load brought in under the $300,000 contract recently awarded to Sterling Pipe Co.

The overall contract calls for the installation of some 168,400 lineal feet of four, six and eight inch pipe, 170 valves, 180 fire hydrants and various special fittings to complete the water system at the Christmas Valley Townsite.

The water lines will be placed in the road right of ways and will be installed according to specifications prepared by the water company in accordance with the Oregon State Health Department.

According to Project Manager Warren Morton, the delivery schedule calls for two truck and trailer loads of 4, 6 and 8-inch pipe every month until the job is completed.

The system is designed with several supply sources at various points in the Townsite and will utilize the hydro-pneumatic type distribution works with a complete grid conduit design.

Allocate $200,000 for U.S. Highway Work in County

Oregon Congressman Al Ullman and Senators Wayne Morse and Maurine Neuberger announced a $200,000 allocation of Accelerated Public Works funds was granted for work on highways in Lake County, in which Christmas Valley is located.

The funds will be used for work on a six-mile section of U.S. Highway 395.

Permanent surfacing of the highway -- from four miles south of Valley Falls to just south of Chandler Wayside -- will begin in June and will provide 168 man-months of work, according to Ullman, the eastern Oregon Congressman.

Praise Congressman Ullman

The two Oregon Senators praised Congressman Ullman "for the effective job he did in gaining this $200,000 grant for Lake County."

Congressman Ullman said, "Jim Ogle, the Lake County judge, had written me about the pressing need for expediting road construction work. I began securing this allocation as soon as Lake County became eligible."

Increasing Traffic

The section of highway involved was reconstructed in 1960 and a temporary surface was laid.

According to the State Highway Engineer, the increasingly heavy traffic on this section of U.S. Highway means that a permanent resurfacing job needs to be done quickly to prevent deterioration of the original construction work.

FARMING

Best Method Outlined

By JOHN PETTUS

Farming Contractor

In preparing land here in Christmas Valley for seeding of different crops that have been proven, such as alfalfa, pasture grasses for livestock, and a number of grain crops, the following is my suggested method relative to preparing the ground for such seedings.

ALFALFA SEEDINGS: It is my opinion that all alfalfa should be considered a spring seeding, by this I would suggest that the seed be put into the ground the latter part of June or the first part of July. To prepare the ground for this seeding, I feel that the brush should be removed from the field in some manner, such as beating, plowing or plowing and burning.

If a great amount of brush is still left on the field it should be removed by racking and burning. After the brush is removed the land should be plowed or disk plowed and a firm seed bed should be prepared.

This can be done by use of a packer or harrow. And in some cases it is best to do both. There should also be at least 200 lbs. of ammonia sulfate or some other nitrate fertilizer put on each acre.

Alfalfa should always be seeded with a nurse crop, such as oats or rye. Alfalfa could also be seeded into a hay crop stubble, such as oats or rye. It is preferable to pre-irrigate before seeding any alfalfa.

Irrigation for Best Yield

OATS, BARLEY OR RYE: For best crop yield, these crops should be irrigated. There has been some success in farming rye on dry land. In preparing the soil for a hay crop using these grains about the same procedure should be followed as for alfalfa, such as removing the brush from the field, disk plowing the soil, and preparing a firm seed bed.

In raising these for a grain crop, I recommend the following: beating the brush, disk plowing, harrowing and seeding. In some cases it may be necessary to pack the soil.

PASTURE GRASS SEEDING:

Beat the brush, disk plow, harrow, and seed. And in some cases I would suggest using a packer on the soil. All pasture grasses should be irrigated for best crop production.

There are two lines of thought in the removal of brush from the land. One is to beat the brush and then plow it under, thus adding additional humus to the soil. The other is to plow the brush from the ground then rack and burn the brush. It is my opinion that the best line of thought is to beat the brush then plow it under. In some cases this procedure of adding humus to the soil is outweighed by the inconvenience of roots and small pieces of brush in the hay crop. This doesn't hold true in a grain crop.

Gradual Start

It is my recommendation to all who are interested in development of their land in the future, but do not want to do a complete job in one year to begin in this manner:

Remove the brush from the field in some manner, plow the soil, prepare the seed bed and seed to rye or a dry land pasture grass.

Sometimes it might be more convenient to just beat the brush the first year, but after the ground has been plowed, it should not be left idle. It should be seeded to rye or one of the dry land pasture grasses.

Early Season Fishing Choice: Trout or Bass?

Plenty of Good Angling Close to Here in Both Dorris, Eagle Lakes

By LE ROY HARROD,
Fishing & Hunting Editor

"WHERE can I go to be sure of catching some fish in the early days of the fishing season?" is the question asked of a Hunting and Fishing Editor. It is a difficult question to answer since this depends largely on the fisherman. First I ask them what kind of fish they want. Then I attempt to find out how much they know about fishing.

Most fishermen who ask such questions, I have found, are sadly lacking in the basic techniques. Experience is the only way to master these techniques. In order to gain this experience anyone aspiring to become a fisherman must spend many hours and days on either a stream, creek or lake, and have the patience and tolerance of a true sportsman.

In this article I shall not attempt to tell any of you how to fish but shall confine my remarks to where fish can be caught in the early days of the season.

Provides Many Facilities

For many, many years I have devoted most of my fishing time to trout. In the early days of the Season or the late fall months, I would go to a place which is easily accessible and generously stocked with a special breed of rainbow trout running from 1-1/2 to 2 pounds.

The place is EAGLE LAKE, located 14 miles Northwest of Susanville, California (Lassen County), 310 miles from San Francisco and 574 miles from Los Angeles, via Reno, on U.S. Highway 395. To the South end of the Lake, the County has established a Recreation Center and Marina. This is known as Gallatin Beach and provides many facilities.

You will find a new Marina where rowboats for four passengers can be rented for $6.00 a day, or $12.50 with motor. Six passenger boats can be rented for $8.00 to $15.00 a day. Complete facilities are available with free launching ramp for trailer boats. Nearby is a new Forest Service Campground, picnic area and swimming beach.

If you arrive on a summer weekend, you'll probably find its 54 camping sites and 30 picnic sites filled. If so, you can camp out on one of the delightful meadows or sandy beaches which line the South half of the lake. There are excellent motel and hotel accommodations in Susanville, twenty-five miles away. Fourteen miles of paved County Highway give rapid access to the valley.

Tackle Busters

Very few fishermen know that it offers some tackle busters in the form of the unique Eagle Lake Trout (Salmo Gairdnerii Aquilarum). Found only in Eagle Lake the trout became almost extinct in the 1930's due to low water at the spawning stream.

Several attempts to stock the lake with other species of trout were unsuccessful. In the 1950's Eagle Lake trout were raised in hatcheries and the lake was restocked. Today, its trout population is thriving.

These are trophy fish—big and fighting. They are believed to be hybrids of rainbow and cutthroat, and the fish run from 1-1/2 to 2 pounds each. The Season opens May 4th and closes October 31st.

Biggest catches are made in the spring and fall. In May and June the best place to fish seems to be from the rocky shoal areas along the South and West shores, using a spinning rod with wobbler, and plug, or heavy fly rod with a large wet fly.

Prefer Cool Waters

After you cast, give the big fly plenty of time to sink toward the bottom before starting to retrieve in short, quick jerks. In the summer these big fish seem to prefer the coolness of the deep waters of the Southern half of the lake, so trolling from a boat is then more popular and productive. Troll deep and very slowly. Try the new plastic lure (in several different colors), with a spinner of some sort attached ahead of the lure. Still fishing with angle worms, shrimp or a ball of chesse has brought in some lunkers.

Another type of fish in Eagle Lake is the Tui Chub or "Whitefish". This fish is bony but tasty, and normally grows to a length of 4 to 8 inches. However, in Eagle Lake the Tui Chub grows to 16 inches and is a fierce fighter on light tackle. It is easily taken with ordinary garden worms, but I've taken many on a small #10 or 12 fly.

Tough Warrior

BASS: Fishing for large

mouth bass is rapidly "taking on" with many old time fishermen. The large mouth or "bronze-back" is a tough, slashing, jumping old warrior who breaks more leaders and lines than most any other species of fresh water fish.

DORRIS RESERVOIR is a man-made lake located about three miles South of Alturas, California, which is but a short drive over Highway 395 from Christmas Valley. It is about 370 miles from San Francisco and 650 miles from Southern California over excellent freeways and highways, and has an abundance of big fighting "bronze-backs."

Open All Year

Dorris is open all year, but the best time is in the early spring and late fall. The water is a sandy brown color and you'd swear no bass would ever be able to see a lure of any kind. But, don't be deceived -- the "bronze-backs" are there and IF you use the right techniques, you'll go back again and again.

Dorris was a privately owned body of water until 1960 when the government purchased the lake and some surrounding land from Bailey Dorris as part of the Wetlands Improvement Projects for migratory fowl. I understand the establishment of a duck and goose refuge, with its provision for public hunting, will not prohibit the fisherman from taking his limit.

Don't Need Boat

For catching Dorris bronze-backs you do not need a boat. Tie most any small spinner, plug or a tiny rubber-plastic minnow imitation on your line, wade out to a point where it will be about knee deep, then cast out into the lake as far as you can. Start retrieving immediately, giving the tip of your rod an occasional twitch.

If you do not have a strike, move down lake about ten feet and make another cast using the same technique, and you soon will locate the spot where the bass are feeding and perhaps spawning.

A native of Alturas and expert bass fisherman, first told me about the Dorris bronze-backs and generously volunteered to take me out for a trial run. It was early May and casting was difficult in the face of a stiff breeze. I made three casts and three retrieves but had no strikes.

Caught Beauty

Then I noticed my companion about 200 feet down lake from me. He was backing toward shore holding his bending rod high above his head and reeling in the line. He finally reached shore and out of the sandy-brown water came a beautiful big bronze-back.

He told me the fish were close in to shore and suggested I not cast out as far as I had been. Following this suggestion, I caught a beauty registering an even 4 1/2 pounds. During the next hour I hooked eight, released five of them and kept the other three and the first one, for evidence that there were bass in Dorris Reservoir.

Limits By Noon

I was so pleased to find such an unexpected bass bonanza that I immediately contacted my old partner, Al Rankin, and told him about the Dorris bass. He joined me for fishing the following morning, and we both had our limits by lunchtime.

About 4 o'clock we drove out to the shoreline; the afternoon breeze had died down and the water was without a ripple. This may sound like a fisherman's dream, but in one hour we repeated our morning performance. We each took another limit back into town to some fish hungry folks, and it was hard for them to believe we had caught these beauties in Dorris Reservoir.

Don't Over-Fish

One last remark, don't over-fish. Keep only what you can use from your legal limits. Release all others which are not injured beyond recovery.

Al Rankin and I recently purchased a place 16 miles West of Alturas fronting on Highway 299. It has over 1,000 acres and two reservoirs which will be stocked with large mouth bass from Dorris Reservoir.

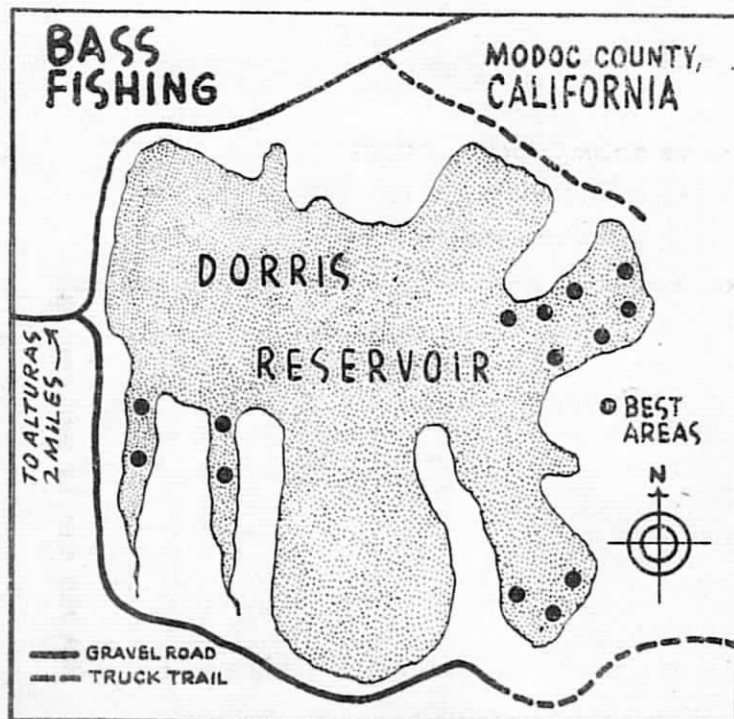

The water is quite warm in the winter coming from the big Hot Spring on the ranch. The reservoirs do not freeze over, and due to the warm water and an abundance of feed, there is a permanent population of mallards, sprig, teal, and other varieties of water fowl present most of the time, especially during the fall, winter and spring months.

The bass will be ready in the early Spring of 1964.

In a later issue of the "Gazette" I will keep you informed as to the new Bass Fishin' Hole. The 1,000 acres is presently known as the KELLEY HOT SPRINGS RANCH. It's but a short drive over good highways to Christmas Valley, so if you're in the area, drop in and say "howdy".

Chukar hunters had their best season on record last fall with an approximate harvest of 125,000 birds, according to results of the questionnaire sampling conducted by the Game Commission. This species has become firmly established as a popular and important game bird.

The total number of upland game hunters participating in the various 1962 seasons totalled 97,542. Number of birds taken was 925,981.

Aerial Group to Schedule Fly-In Breakfast

Members of the Oregon Flying Farmers expect to hold a fly-in luncheon at the Christmas Valley Lodge on May 19. After lunch the group will tour Christmas Valley.

The 5000 foot air strip at the Christmas Valley Air Park is becoming very popular with local flyers. Some farmers even fly here to do their shopping at the Christmas Valley Mercantile Store.

JOE WARD FAMILY ON SKIS--Golf course superintendent and family are expert golfers and skiers. Joe and his wife, Wanda, have two sets of twins, Michael and Maurene, 12, and Jacqueline and Joanne, 10.

COURSE SUPERINTENDENT JOE WARD DOUBLES AS SKI SCHOOL DIRECTOR

Joe Ward's jobs range from warm to cold. He is the energetic course superintendent of the Christmas Valley Golf Course in spring, summer and fall, then in the winter is director of a ski school.

The dual duties come easy for Joe because he's been actively interested in outdoor sports since his early years in his home state of Vermont.

Joe graduated from Woodstock High School, then entered Dartmouth College where he was a member of the ski team. Ward's education was interrupted by World War II, at which time he enlisted in the Navy.

After a four-year stint in the Navy, Ward went to Sun Valley, Idaho, in 1946 and began ski instruction at the famous resort.

It was here that he began his interest in golf courses. Joe was in charge of the course at

Sun Valley for nine years. Two Sets of Twins

At Sun Valley Ward met and married Wanda Bowers. They have two sets of twins, all four were born in Sun Valley. Michael and Maurene are now 12 years old and Jacqueline and Joanne are 10.

The Ward family moved to Bend, Oregon, in 1957. Joe was in charge of a golf course here. In winter, he directed the ski school at Mt. Bachelor--central Oregon's popular ski resort -- and has been associated there for five years.

Expert Golfers, Skiers

Inasmuch as the skiing season at Mt. Bachelor lasts until May, the springtime is Joe's busiest season. Weekdays he's busy supervising construction of the sporty Christmas Valley Golf Course and weekends he's directing his ski school.

As anyone might have guessed, Joe's wife and four children are all expert golfers and skiers.

Your Town

If you want to live in the kind of a town
That's the kind of a town you like
You needn't pack your clothes in a grip
And start a long, long hike
'Cause you'll only find what you left behind
For there's nothing that's really new
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town
It isn't the town--it's you. . .
Real towns are not made by man afraid
Lest somebody else gets ahead
For when everyone works and nobody shirks
You can raise up a town from the dead
And if, while you make your personal stake
Your neighbor can make one too
Your town will be what you want it to be
It isn't the town -- it's you . . .

Treasure Hunters Look for Gold in Lost Forest

About 40 years ago a bunch of cowboys from a Christmas Valley ranch were hunting strays near Lost Forest. They separated, agreeing to meet at Sand Springs near Lost Forest.

One cowboy, arriving early, had a long wait. He got off his horse and sat on a small ledge, smoking a cigarette and idly kicking his spurred boots against the exposed rock. He noticed a piece of rock he had dislodged with a spur, and on examining it he found it consisted partly of a dull golden material. This interested him so he packed the rock back to camp in his pocket.

Rock 50% Gold

Some months later when he got a few days off he took the rock to Lakeview where he left it with Judge Daly to be assayed. Then he probably forgot about it, and by the time the assay report came back, the cowboy had quit his job and left the country.

That was an expensive "loss of memory" as the report said his rock was fifty percent gold!

When Judge Daly died, years later, he left a provision in his will that the cowboy be paid for his gold and be delivered the assay report if he should ever show up.

Treasure Unclaimed

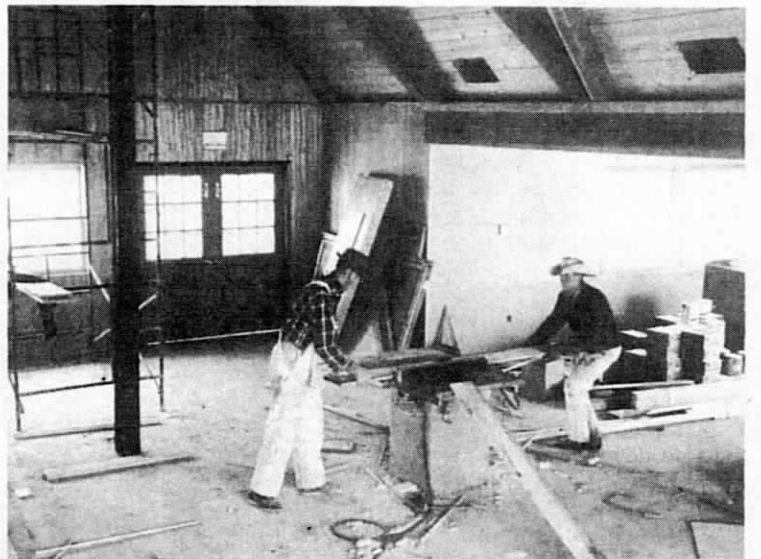

Another story is told about a shepherd who found an old Indian wandering snow blind near the Lost Forest. He took the Indian to his sheep camp, and took care of him until his sight came back.

The Indian was so grateful he promised to take the shepherd out to the Lost Forest and show him a secret gold deposit. Before they could make the trip, the old Indian died and with him took the secret of the gold.

PROPERTY OWNERS VISIT CHRISTMAS VALLEY DISPLAY IN SAN FRANCISCO

. . .The opening of the new San Francisco office for Christmas Valley was termed a "huge success" by Manager J. S. "Pete" Holmquist.

"Because of the announcement in the Gazette of our opening, 68 property owners from the Bay Area dropped in during the first week," Holmquist said. Many property owners wanted to begin Christmas Valley Clubs, it was reported.

numerous "gold mine hunters" have searched the Lost Forest country, but so far none have uncovered the secret of the "shifting, whispering sands".

Demand for Outdoor Recreation

Rockefeller Commission Tells President Kennedy of Survey

By the year 2000 our tremendously expanding population will treble its present crushing demand for some form of outdoor recreation.

That's what the blue-ribbon Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission recently told President John F. Kennedy. The commission, headed by Laurance S. Rockefeller, was comprised of eight members of Congress and seven private citizens. This select group was assisted by top conservation leaders from all 50 states, plus outstanding men in industry and labor.

But 2000 is a long ways off, you might say. No indeed! It's really later than you think. The year 2000 is ONLY 37 years away.

The Southern California Research Council predicted a 400% increase in the use of the desert areas by 1980, a mere 17 years away.

Tremendous Popularity

It follows that Christmas Valley's popularity will reach a considerable level, considering what this area has to offer a family. How can you beat a diversification program that includes fishing, hunting, swimming, boating, water skiing, rock hunting and even treasure hunting.

Rockefeller's committee, which noted that 90% of all Americans now engage in some form of outdoor recreation, spent three years in carefully sifting the nation's inventory of outdoor resources.

Hard-Hitting Program

The commission recommended a hard-hitting program aimed at meeting America's future recreational needs. Although the commission recognized the urgency of launching such a program as soon as possible, it recommended the project be carried out in an orderly manner instead of attempting a costly and perhaps bungling crash program.

"We believe we have put forward a program that will assure the benefit of outdoor recreation for the American people for the next 40 years. It is not a crash program, but one which envisages a long-range sustained effort -- both public and private," declared Rockefeller.

B Broad Study

The scope of the study was as broad as all outdoors and covered even walking, pleasure driving and mountain climbing besides the more standard forms of recreation.

Rockefeller's commission offered five encompassing recommendations:

1--Establishment of a national recreational policy to launch the program.

2--Creation of a Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. The Bureau, which would be created within the Department of Interior, would coordinate Federal programs, provide technical aid to states and communities, sponsor research and administer a grant-in-aid program. It would NOT manage any land itself.

Analyze Programs

3--Establishment of a grant-in-aid program to the states which would provide matching funds to help plan, acquire and develop recreation areas. It would provide a Federal loan program to assist states with particularly urgent needs but without available matching funds.

4--Analyze existing programs to determine whether they should be expanded, modified or intensified to meet future needs.

5--Establishment of a classification system for outdoor recreation resources.

Americans Seeking Outdoors

In support of the sweeping recommendations, Rockefeller's group made these interesting observations:

"Whatever the measuring rod--visits to Federal and state recreation areas, the number of fishing license holders, the number of outboard motors now in use -- it is clear that Americans are seeking the outdoors as never before. And this is only a foretaste of what is to come. Not only will there be many more people but they will want to do more and they will have more money and time to further their recreation. By 2000 the population should double and the demand for recreation will triple.

Population 350,000,000 by 2000

"The most basic factor, of course, will be the population. Barring a war or other catastrophes, it seems very likely that the population of the United States will virtually be doubled -- from the 180,000,000 today to 230,000,000 by 1976 and 350,000,000 by 2000.

"People will have more free time. By 1976, it is estimated that the standard scheduled work week will average 36 hours for the entire industrial work force. Today the average work week is 39 hours. By 2000 the work week will be decreased to only 32 hours.

Higher Incomes

"Incomes will be higher. With a projected annual growth rate of gross national product of 3.5%, disposable consumer income is expected to rise from $354 billion in 1960 to $706 billion by 1976 and $1,437 billion by 2000.

"More people will be moving into the higher income brackets. In 1957 about 14% of the consumer units had incomes of $10,000 or more. By 1976 it is estimated the proportion will be up to 40% and by 2000 to 60% (in constant 1959 dollars)."

The Southern California Research Council pointed out that with this lowering of the average work week, people will have to travel farther on weekends.

"Existing modes of transportation will improve. And new methods of safe high-speed and economical transportation will be introduced. In other words, both increased leisure time and greater mobility will broaden choice areas for urban recreation seekers, bringing practically all the Inland Empire (including the Low Desert) into day-use and over-night accessibility."

This demand for recreation will in turn create a further demand by many families for second homes in recreational areas, the SCRC report said.

State Park Proposed for Lost Forest

Representatives of interested State and Government agencies met April 18, at Christmas Valley, to ascertain the potential of a proposed park in the Lost Forest, Fossil Lake region of Lake county.

Members of the group met at the Christmas Valley Lodge, then drove to the Lost Forest where they spent most of the day viewing the scenic beauty of this strange forest of Ponderosa Pine, growing in the high plateau, miles from any other trees.

Important Officials Present

Present were Vic Ecklund, Portland, Ore., representing the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Dept. Of The Interior; Clifton Lemons, Portland, representing the Oregon State Game Commission; Dick McCosh, Salem, representing Oregon State Parks; Paul Arrasmith, Portland, George Lea, Lakeview, and Tom O'Kelly, Lakeview, representing the Bureau of Land Management; Ken McLeod, Klamath Falls, member of the Outdoor Writers Association; Harold Baughman, Lakeview, President of the Lake County Chamber of Commerce, and Henry Geer, Burns, representing the Burns chapter of the Izaak Walton League, Ed Cater, Manager of the Christmas Valley Lodge; Helen Parks, Fort Rock writer for Oregon newspapers; and Betty Morehouse from Christmas Valley.

Only 18 Miles

The Pine Forest which itself covers some 9,000 acres, is only 18 miles from the Christmas Valley Lodge and is adjacent to some of the holdings of the development in the Northeastern section.

Late in the afternoon, Vic Ecklund presided at a meeting at the Christmas Valley Lodge where each official gave his opinion as to the feasibility of a park in this area.

All agreed that this outstanding and unique scenic region should be set aside in some capacity for the public to enjoy, and should be developed into a recreational area. The proposed park would include the Shifting Sand Dunes and Fossil Lake.

Plenty of Wild, Wild Horses Still Roam Here

Resident Describes How To Go Out And Corral Lively Colt for Kids

By BETTY MOREHOUSE

One small band of wild horses, numbering about forty head, still runs free on the range surrounding Christmas Valley.

These horses are remnants of the large herds which once roamed this area. Thousands have been captured through the years and the few that remain survive only because they possess excessive stamina and ingenuity, the craftiness of a fox, the fleetness of an antelope and the surefootedness of a mountain goat.

Shut off from the best range and grass by the ever encroaching civilization of man and his fences, the wild horse exists where no domestic animal could survive.

Wild Horses Elusive

Very few people in this day and age ever see a wild horse as they drive or hike through the Oregon country. One may sight antelope, deer, coyotes and bobcats, but the wild horse proves to be the most elusive of them all.

The horses near Christmas Valley have been sighted from the air, but unless the pilot has a pretty good idea where the band is running, they still remain unmolested.

Last year, during one of nature's necessary dramas of survival, a small three-year-old wild horse stallion was driven from the bunch by a larger and stronger stallion.

Every time he tried to re-join the herd, he received another whipping from the leader. Finally he wandered away by himself. This proved to be the main factor contributing to his eventual capture.

Chase Was On

Even his color was against him; bright red sorrel, with white socks to his knees and hocks, and a wide splash of white down his face. Instead of blending with his background, his flashing white socks were seen one day and the chase was on.

He was ranging interterritory unknown to him, so it wasn't too difficult for his captors to drive him into a trap. He fought like a little tiger. It took several hours to finally get a rope on him and secure him for the ride to Christmas Valley. Even then he didn't really give up; he just accepted his fate, waiting with a watchful air.

The little red horse created quite a stir when he arrived at Christmas Valley. Parents brought the kids to see "a real wild horse".

Horse Named Stubby

A few days later, Reese Murphy, Christmas Valley surveyor, acquired the horse for his 12-year-old son, Joe. Joe immediately dubbed his new possession "Stubby".

Stubby eyed Joe and Joe eyed Stubby. Joe didn't know enough to be afraid; he just wanted to pet and ride his new horse. So--he did!

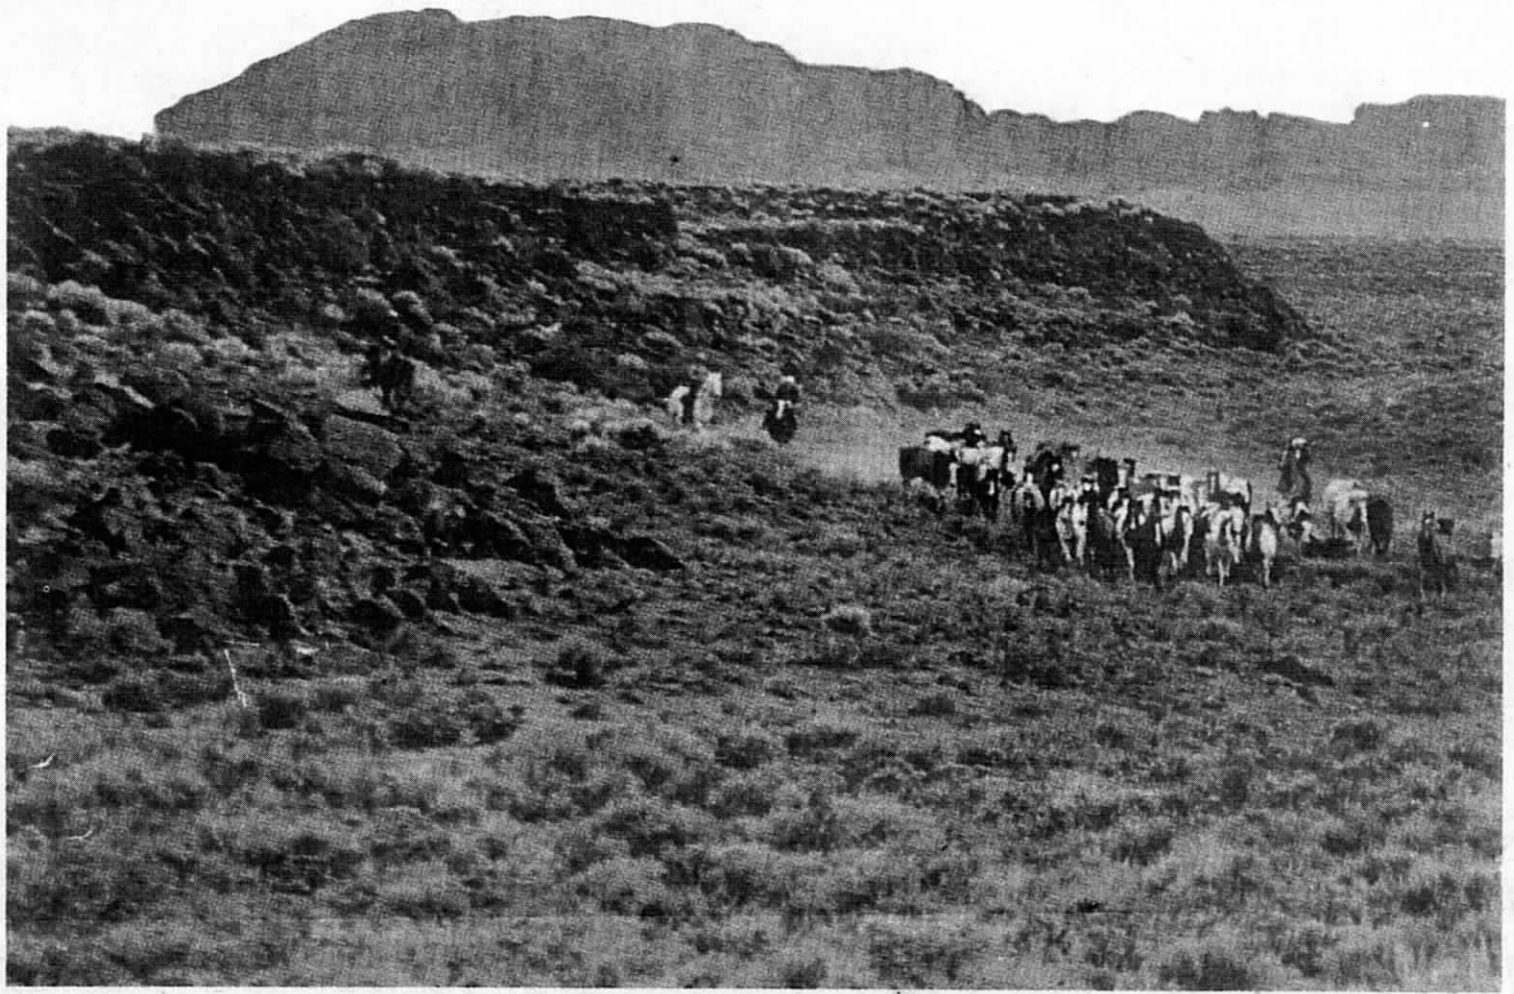

Men who knew better, stood with their mouths open, while little Joe Murphy petted his horse, put a bit in his mouth, and rode him.

Stubby seemed to accept Joe without reservation, even waiting for Joe when he fell off when Stubby sailed over a sage brush, instead of going around. For a long time no one else dared to even step into the corral with Stubby. He liked no one but Joe.

Stubby Mellowed

Stubby has mellowed these last few months. He has quite a few "friends" now. But if you should happen to see a little stocking legged, bright red sorrel horse in the arena on your next trip to Christmas Valley, and want to pet his "soft velvet nose", be sure you introduce yourself properly.

Then wait the necessary

What Our Visitors Say About Christmas Valley

A considerable number of Property Owners and their friends visited Christmas Valley during the Easter holidays. Here are some of their comments:

MR. & MRS. MEISNER, San Jose, Calif.--"Coming here for my second visit in the past year. I'm amazed at the vast progress that has taken place. Being in the construction business myself, let me tell you the boys up here are doing a splendid job. Hope to be there myself soon."

MARY & WAYNE STRONG, Rialto, Calif.--"Christmas Valley is more beautiful than we were told. We found out for ourselves on a very nice tour by Mr. Brown."

REX MORLEY, Eugene, Oregon--"I like the location and appearance of property."

MRS. HENSPEYER, Canoga Park, Calif.--"I have seen my property and am very pleased--not disappointed in any way."

HERSHEL DUNSETZ, Van Nuys, Calif.--"The future prospects of Christmas Valley look very good. Mel Brown took us out to see our property, and I have never met a nicer and more helpful person."

DONALD R. BROWN--"Very satisfactory. Soil looks good."

MR. & MRS. HONE, Santa Clara, Calif.--"We really liked what we saw and think it is a real good investment."

MR. & MRS. LANDSDOWNE, Saugus, Calif.--"We are very pleased with our 20 acres and our Townsite Property. We are anxious for our Drug Store to be built and be in business in this Christmas Valley community."

MR. & MRS. BULLOCK, Canoga Park, Calif.--"I like the property. View is wonderful."

MRS. SUSAN A. MUNN, Panorama City, Calif.--"See unlimited and undreamed of possibilities in all phases of development. Plan on being a permanent resident in a few years as the climate is delightfully invigorating."

ROBERT HICKMAN, Lakewood, Calif.--"Very good."

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY, CHRIS--Chris (for Christmas Valley) Murphy reaches for birthday cake and candle signifying important date. Chris was first baby born to Christmas Valley parents on April 7, 1962.
