CHRISTMAS VALLEY FAMILY VACATION PACKAGE TO BE EXPANDED FOR 1967

BUCKAROO BREAKFAST TAKES family vacationers to scenic picnic area north of Christmas Valley. Riding out by haywagon, horseback or car, the visitors arrive with sharpened appetites for one of Atch's alfresco meals.

Recreation. It's the fastest growing business in the country. You know how much you yourself spend on sporting equipment, but when you multiply that amount by all the other enthusiastic Americans you get a fantastic figure.

I paid a visit to the Los Angeles Sportsman's Show, just closed. The Pan Pacific auditorium display overflowed into tents with gleaming, inviting equipment. For a fellow who started out with a bent pin on a string as fishing equipment, it was an awe-inspiring experience to see what's available today. Manufacturers are making the darndest things you ever saw — all of it wonderful, all of it exciting. Every item the makers offer is designed to catch more fish, shoot more game, make camping more comfortable, boating more safe and life more worth living. They're making just about everything the sportsman needs or can think of.

Except one thing: LAND. God made what land we have today. Oh, sure, man can fill in a slough or cut off a hilltop and push it into a ravine, but it's hardly a speck in your eye. The point is that there is just so much

GAME COMMISSION REPORTS 1966 DEER SEASON ONE OF THE BEST

Oregon big game hunters had a highly successful 1966 hunting season. A survey revealed the 343,360 licensed hunters took 147,975 deer, 11,402 elk, 445 antelope, 5 mountain goats, 3 big-horn sheep and more than 3,800 black bear. To collect this bag of more than 160,000 big game animals hunters enjoyed an estimated 1,960,000 days of hunting. All these statistics, put together, prove just one thing: Hunting is great in Oregon.

Deer

Deer hunters had the best success since 1961 and the third largest kill on record. Of the more than 270,000 who hunted deer, 55 per cent reported success. 15,000 others who had taken out deer tags didn't get to hunt and thus missed out on one of the best seasons in years.

Elk

Elk hunters found the animal population on a par with previous years, but the number of hunters considerably increased. Only 17 per cent of those who went after the big animals got to use their tag — accounting for the 11,402 that were taken.

Increase

All sections of the state showed an increase in hunting success, according to the State Game Commission. Encompassing Christmas Valley, the Silver Lake region produced about 17,000 deer for the 28,100 hunters who went after them. Thus the hunters experienced about 58 per cent success, considerably more than the state average. And this same district showed a deer take of 4.1 per square mile, the fifth highest in the state.

Sheep, Goats

For the second time in 40 years Oregon allowed Big-horn sheep hunting. Just THREE permits were issued, and all three tag holders were successful, getting their trophies from the small herd on Hart Mountain. FIVE mountain goat permits were issued, with 100 per cent success.

Archers

The Game Commission's survey disclosed that 10,693 persons hunted as archers, with the bowmen taking 880 deer and 111 elk.

Private Duck Ponds Promises Fall Action

Although the season is still some months away, Project Manager Al Baert reports that the private Christmas Valley duck ponds give every evidence of making the fall shooting season one of the best.

Lying as it does under the great Pacific Flyway, Christmas Valley is a center for some of the best waterfowl hunting in the state. With the advent of its own hunting ponds, the community has access to a reserved spot during the duck season.

The two ponds, supplied with water that comes from the ground at 72 degrees, are surrounded by 40 acres of grain fields. The larger pond, some 20 acres, has art-

Public to Be Invited, But Property Owners to Get Break in Rate Schedule

Again, as in the past three years, the Penn Phillips Company will offer the highly popular Family Vacation Package Plan for summer vacationers. In the past this all-inclusive bargain has been presented to property owners only, but as more of the public becomes aware of the wonderful facilities at Christmas Valley, the decision has been made to include non-property owners as well.

"Property owners will still get the big break," Carlo P. Giuntini, President of the Phillips Company said in his announcement. "for while the general public will be charged $10.50 a person, or $21.00 a couple for each day's all-inclusive vacation, the Christmas Valley property owner will get a 33 1/3 per cent reduction, or the same past rate of just $7.00 a day per person. And in the case of both property and non-property owner, children under 12 are charged half price."

Popularity Grows

Over the past year in particular, more and more groups from the surrounding country have found how delightful a stay at Christmas Valley can be. Sports car and motoring clubs, golfing groups, fishing parties and hunting clubs have all visited, enjoyed and made plans to return. As these people prepare for their summer vacations they have turned to Christmas Valley for reservations and because visitors are often buyers and future residents, the decision has been made to allow them to join in the Family Vacation plan, but at a somewhat increased price.

Bargain

Even at the Public rate, the Christmas Valley vacation has to be the best of bargains. In the case of the property owner, for just $7.00 a day — or the average 5 day stay for $35.00 — he gets a wonderful motel room, three big meals a day, free golf, free fishing (his permit is paid for him) free horseback riding and evening entertainment, including social hours, movies, hayrides and barbecues.

The Family Vacation Plan will

PENN POINTS

land; when it's gone, it's gone.

If a man's smart he'll grab as much as he can — and then hang onto it for dear life. And Recreation Land, which requires more space than living land, is rapidly becoming the dearest of all.

We here in Christmas Valley are sitting on a bonanza. All around us is some of the best recreational land. Within a few short miles you can get into choice country for big game hunting, lake or stream fishing, upland or waterfowl shooting. Or if your particular brand of outdoor entertainment is a little more sophisticated, you can play golf on as good a course as there is around, or ride horseback in some of the last of the wide open spaces.

The fact remains that we're right here in the middle of it, and the way things are going, we ought to make the most of it. With more leisure time, more money in spite of increased taxes, and more and better transportation, the Christmas Valley land owner can spend more time here, regardless of where he lives, than ever before.

And he can stay longer, too. The population explosion being what it is, as the cities fill up and spill over into the countryside, the Christmas Valley land owner will find his "vacation" land looking more and more enticing.

And we hope he'll come, and build, and stay. To make it easier, the company is offering a modestly priced U-finish home, easily expanded as the need arrives. And to make the stay here better, the lake is continually stocked with fighting trout, the golf course honed to a real challenge and the entertainment facilities constantly improved.

And the community spirit in Christmas Valley is something everyone, resident or visitor, remarks on.

It's a good place, a fine place — and it's LAND you can own and keep for yourself and your children.

PENN.

Power Line Crew Adds to Valley Population

While working in the area, the Bonneville Power Line crew has been making Christmas Valley its headquarters. More than 40 men are making the community their temporary home, many of them with their families in trailers, or rented houses.

The Lodge is particularly busy during breakfast and dinner hours, with the morning crew adding lunch sandwiches and thermos coffee making to their chores. The comfortable lounge is a rallying point for the men before and after dinner.

Property Owners To Meet

Northern California Christmas Valley Property Owners Association will hold a Pot Luck dinner on April 19th at the I.E.S. Hall on Santa Clara St. East in San Jose at 7:30 p.m. All Bay area property owners are cordially invited to attend. This is the customary third Wednesday of the month meeting.

Those planning to attend are asked to get in touch with either Mr. Louis De Sena, 377-7100; Mrs. Velma Baron, 782-9285, or Mrs. Essie Marte, 538-9984.

Private Duck Ponds

fully arranged comfortable blinds for the hunters. The smaller, 10 acre pond lies at a little distance away and serves as a sanctuary for the ducks, with no shooting allowed.

In cooperation with the advice of the State Game Commission, the ponds are planted with 3-sided tule, particularly appealing, apparently, to the migrating ducks. It's so appealing, according to Baert, that a number of ducks have decided not to make the long trek to Canada, but are raising their families in the warm local waters.

VACATION PLAN PROMISES FULL FAMILY FUN

The 1967 version of the Family Vacation Package Plan, opened this year to outsiders as well as property owners, offers an exciting day, with lodging, food, golf, fishing and horseback riding included, for just — in the case of a non-property owner — $10.50. This means that a couple, sharing a fine twin-bedded motel room can enjoy all the good things in Christmas Valley for just $21.00 a day. Their children, under twelve, can have the same fun for half the price.

Property owners pay a full one-third less, or just $7.00 a day apiece, or $14.00 for the couple. Their under 12 children, too, pay half of the parents' price.

Day Includes

In addition to the bright clean lodging, the day includes three big meals, either at the Lodge or a barbecue dinner at the Dude Ranch, the free use of all the Christmas Valley facilities, including horses, golf course or fishing, and the pleasure of doing exactly what you like, when you like it.

Schedule

There are some planned events, but nobody has to take part in them if he'd rather do something else, or just loaf in the sunlight. For instance, on Monday, in addition to the daily breakfast served in the Lodge from 7-9 a.m., there is a picnic scheduled for the island from 12-2. Later, from 5:30 to 7:30 the family can have dinner at the Lodge.

On Tuesday, in addition to the 7-9, 12-2 breakfast and lunch at the Lodge, there's a 6-7:30 barbecue dinner at the Dude Ranch, with a hayride to follow.

GILBERT LUDLUMS PARTY of four not only had a wonderful time over the Easter weekend, but took these beauties from Christmas Valley Lake.

Wednesday's a whopper. There's a big Buckaroo Cookout breakfast out at the camp site — one of Atch's special meals that leaves you grinning and groaning — with transportation there by haywagon, horseback or bus. After lunch at the Lodge in case you're hungry again, you can have a 5:30-7:30 dinner there and then an evening of Bingo or cards at the Recreation Club.

Thursday you can have to yourself, getting your meals at the Lodge, unless you feel like frying some of the trout you've undoubtedly taken from the lake.

Friday, too, is a breather, with all your meals at the Lodge, but with a movie — free, but natch — at the Recreation Club after dinner.

You want to rest for Saturday because in addition to breakfast and lunch at the Lodge, there's a special Golf Shindig that can include most everyone, and following that, another big barbecue at the Dude Ranch with a hayride and informal dancing to follow.

Sunday there will be services at the Community Church and after lunch, Cowboy Polo at the Dude Ranch, with dinner at the Lodge to follow.

Freedom Land

In addition to the scheduled events, the guests are urged to feel free, at any time, to try their hands at archery, golfing, fishing, horseback riding, or play horseshoes or volleyball. And there is always that noblest, most informal sport of all — wandering out in the open country, hunting for Indian arrowheads. And the wonderful thing is you don't just hunt for them: you find 'em!

GOLF COURSE PRIDE OF CHRISTMAS VALLEY

The nine-hole Christmas Valley Golf Course, which borders the eastern end of the lake and reaches out into the residential section, is a green, exciting challenge to the players' skill — and temperament.

The site of the annual Pro-Am Tournament, only seven professional golfers have bettered the Par 72 course in three years of competition. Each year finds the grass thicker, the greens smoother, the trees larger and in spite of your increasing skill, the play just as tough as it was before.

Close by the Lodge and Number 1 tee is the putting green, and beyond that the 300 yard driving range. You can limber up and sharpen your talents while waiting to set that perverse little white ball on its initial tee.

No. 1

The first hole is deliberately designed to give you confidence. 170 yards long, it is a straight-away 3 or 4 iron shot to the big sloping green, which should not be taken lightly: the pitch makes 3-putting common and easy. Par 3.

No. 2

The second hole is 380 yards long, slightly doglegged to the left. A long drive favoring the right side of the fairway should put you within a 7 or 8 iron range, but if your slice gets away you'll be out of bounds in somebody's front yard. Par 4.

No. 3

The boys begin to falter by the wayside with this 410 yard beauty. Another, greater dogleg left, the fairway narrows at the turn and requires accuracy with the driver. The second shot is rough, because three foot high mounds guarding the green stop those run-up shots. Recommended is a driver and then a 3 iron. You're on your own on the green. Par 4.

No. 4

A long 510 yards, this hole encourages the player to put some muscle in his drive. With an even sharper dogleg to the left — slicers will be chewing turf by this time — it favors those who can control a hook. But watch out for that big trap just beyond the turn; it can fool you into staying too far on the left side of the fairway and leaving yourself an awkward shot over the bunker guarding the left side of the green. Par 5.

No. 5

Into the prevailing wind, these 200 yards of fairway will seem much longer. The safest approach is through a narrow opening on the right, to the small green. A long iron or a 3 wood ought to put you in position on this one, but don't expect to make up shots on this hole. Par 3.

No. 6

If you've been controlling your slice so far you can get ready to relax a little on this 545 yarder. Keep a long drive under control, but on the next wood you can let that curve break out because at the turn the fairway goes sharply right. But not too much corner-cutting: a big bunker guards the sloping green and a ball out of control here is spelled Bogies. Par 5.

No. 7

You can breathe a little on this one. 400 yards straight ahead is the green. The trouble begins then: somebody put a mound there which effectively stops those run-up shots. And reaching the green in two isn't much help, either, because that lovely soft turf is cupped so that birdie putts are mighty hard to come by. Par 4.

No. 8

A straight 375 yards that looks easy, until you approach the green. Ten foot mounds guard the putting surface and the grass slopes away from approach shot. A hard-running shot will go over the mound and keep right on going and a pitch will probably skid right on by the hole. But never fear; the worst is yet to come. Par 4.

No. 9

Long, tough and wet, the last hole parallels Christmas Valley Lake. Players have been known to take a flyrod along in their golf bags and wave the following foursome through while they still their nerves with a little fishing. 415 yards of parallel water hazard seems almost to much penalty for a dyed-in-the-wool slicer, but if he does reach the green with dry feet he's better off then the chap coming down the left side of the fairway: a killer bunker lies on that side of the green. Par 5. And honestly, it really was fun.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd, recently of Lake Grove, Oregon, have purchased a Christmas Valley home near the golf course, where Bob will serve as the new Pro.

Atchison Sparks Community Life

Among the happy individuals who have done so much to create the wonderful Christmas Valley spirit is C. M. "Atch" Atchison. Serving as manager of the Lodge for the past two seasons, Atch worked on earlier Vacation Packages as guide and cookout specialist, dedicating himself to seeing to it that visitors had a good time. Under his genial guidance, the Lodge is an even more pleasant rallying spot than it has been before.

In addition to overseeing the Lodge operations Atch recently built and supervises the Standard Service Station in Christmas Valley. Believing in that constitutional guarantee, the Pursuit of Happiness, Atch is constantly urging others along the same course — preferably the Golf Course. It is there according to Al Baert, that he has earned the nickname of "Hiram Hustlemoney". It may be that Al's bitterness stems from the fact that he hasn't yet managed to "accidentally" step on the wooden shaft of Atch's ancient but deadly putter.

operate from June 1st through September 5th. During that time, at intervals, there will be a number of extra events, such as the Sports Car Race, the Pro-Am Golf Tournament, the Rodeo and a number of golfing and fishing contests.

Specials

"We've planned something special for almost every day of the week," Mr. Giuntini said. "For instance, on Mondays there will be a big picnic on the island in Christmas Valley Lake. Tuesdays there'll be a barbeque at the Dude Ranch and a hayride later. Wednesday will find a big buckaroo breakfast and cookout being served at the campsite, with hay wagon and horses available for the guests. Fridays there'll be movies at the Recreation hall, Saturdays a special golfing contest and later another barbeque and hayride. Sunday, after church, there'll be cowboy polo at the Dude Ranch. And always there'll be time for golf, fishing, riding, archery, horseshoes — or just plain hiking out in search of the prevalent arowheads."

Lodge Meals

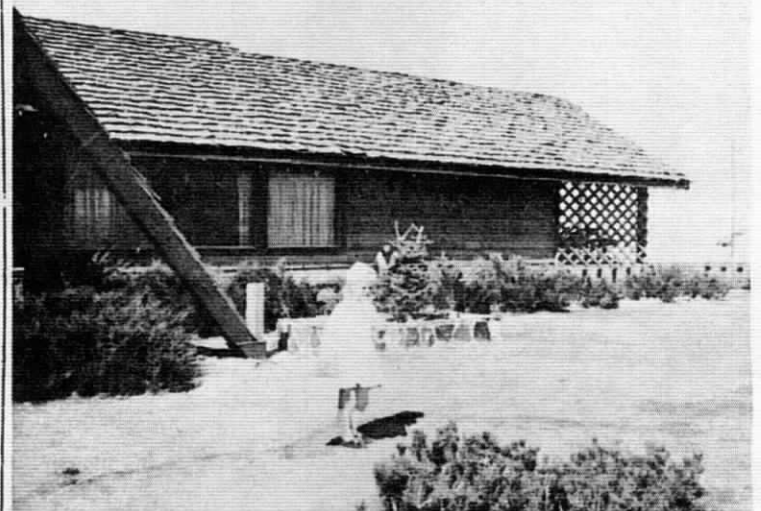

Visitors from other years will attest to the fact that the meals served at the Lodge are out of this world. And the help — the happiest, pleasantest people in the valley.

Reserve Now!

With the annual increase in popularity of the Family Vacation Plan, and the opening of the program to the general public, it behooves anyone interested in taking advantage of the vacation bargain to get his reservation in now. HUNTING FOR EASTER EGGS was a happy event for these youngsters. The quick and the sharp-eyed could get a bagful while the others went empty-handed. But everyone had fun.

MISS CHARLENE SMITHER, dressed here for Easter Sunday church, was one of the lucky youngsters who found an easter egg with a $1.00 bill attached. Bunnies do the strangest things!

AMONG THE VACATIONERS taking advantage of the Easter Special were Susan Ludlum and her college roommate, Karen Young, old or in-between, Christmas Valley offers entertainment for everyone.

BRIGHT, CRISP SUNSHINE made a great morning for a horseback center by Ray Cook and his nephew, Garry. The Dude Ranch horses got a needed workout over the Easter weekend.

LODGE MAJOR ATTRACTION IN CHRISTMAS VALLEY

Costing over $100,000 when it was built five years ago, the Christmas Valley Lodge has soundly disproved those who thought it too big and expensive for the new community. It has become the focal point for all sorts of activities in the valley, with an ever-increasing number of groups and organizations holding their meetings within its pleasant, roomy confines.

For the summer vacationer, the Lodge is the hub of activities. Under the management of C. M. "Atch" Atchison, whose genial capacity shows an amazing versatility, the Lodge staff puts out some of the most satisfying meals in eastern Oregon.

Atch, who can and does put together the fabulous Buckaroo Breakfasts, directs like a concertmaster, the willing efforts of those who help make the Lodge meals so delicious.

Among those splendid cooks who listen to Atch's advice (and then probably do it the right way) are Maxine Bomar, who has lived in the valley for four years and has been in the restaurant business since 1943 and Agnes Wells, a cook of long experience who, with her husband Ben, was manager of the Beck and the Century ranches. Also serving as cooks are Agnes Plano and Roberta Miles. Roberta has a ranch in Ft. Rock and was born and raised in the area; Agnes, whose husband Andy Plano is Lodge custodian, a Deputy Sheriff and a Director of the Volunteer Fire Department, has lived in Christmas Valley for four years. Also helping in the kitchen is Beth Turnbull who has lived here a number of years and whose husband, Harold, is reputedly the champion fisherman of Christmas Valley Lake.

"We had such a pleasant wait-ress" is one of the most common written comments of summer visitors. Among those cheerful people whose deft serving has helped to make each Lodge meal a delight is Opal Ladbury, who, with her husband Wes, owns and operates Lakeside Terrace Motel. In Christmas Valley, only one year, the Ladburys have made themselves indispensable to the community.

Rec Building Scene Of Farm Clinic

Late in March the Freeman Baler Company of Portland conducted a seminar in new agricultural equipment at the Christmas Valley Recreational Building. More than 25 ranchers from the surrounding vicinity attended the day-long meeting to learn of the improvements in farm equipment and supplies.

Also serving so handsomely is Lucy Schott, who, in addition to helping out at the Lodge, does part time work in the Land Office. Her husband Ted is purchasing agent for the Lodge and the store, making weekly trips to Bend for supplies, as well as maintaining the electrical equipment of the community.

Assisting Opal and Lucy are Carol Worstler, a senior at Paisley High School and Linda Goeres, a member of the junior class in the same school.

Handsomely conceived, beautifully landscaped and well and cheerfully run inside, the Christmas Valley is a southeastern Oregon show place. Highly popular now, it is destined to become increasingly so as the weeks slip into vacation time.

Bob Lloyd to Be Golf Course Pro

Bob Lloyd, who with his wife Ruth recently moved to Christmas Valley from Portland, will take over the job as resident Professional at the Christmas Valley Golf Course. A long-time specialist in all sports — he once acted as a Tennis Pro — Bob will handle the Pro shop and give lessons to those who want them.

Coming to the valley from his job as Manager of the Oregon City Marina, Bob is enthusiastic about the community. Ruth Lloyd, in addition to running their newly purchased home, will serve as hostess at the Lodge this summer. A registered nurse, Ruth promises her professional skill if it is needed.

As Golf Pro, Bob has planned a number of fun tournaments for the season. The first, to be held on the second Sunday in May, will be a local tournament with women caddies — the women to win the prize money!

Project Manager Al Baert Keeps Valley Ticking

Serving in his third year as Project Manager for the Penn Phillips Company's Christmas Valley enterprise, Al Baert is no newcomer to the area. With his wife Connie — who owns the Christmas Valley Store — Al moved to central Oregon in 1942, from Colorado.

As Project Manager Al has a busy life. He can be found almost anywhere, from the Duck Ponds to the new houses being constructed, the road grading or the golf course maintenance, supervising the constant Lodge landscaping or the tree planting project. Al not only has his finger on the pulse of Christmas Valley life — he does a lot of the pumping.

All is not work with Al, however. Come Spring he can shoot marbles with the best of the other youngsters and the rhythmic clank, clank that is sometimes heard is Al, sharpening his deadly skill at horseshoes. On the golf course he plays that steady, deceptive game that wins many prizes.

The Baerts have two married daughters, a married son — Bud, Dude Ranch manager — and 8 grandchildren.

U-Finish Home Offering Pleasing

The Penn Phillips Company's story-and-a-half, U-Finish offering is attracting wide attention among Christmas Valley property owners. For just $4990 a family can move into a livable house and do the finish work themselves at their leisure.

As delivered to the buyer, the house specifications call for a concrete floor, complete framing and insulation, complete roofing, complete exterior of waterproof plywood, the windows, all outside doors, stain trim and siding, the rough plumbing — consisting of complete waste line to outside — the gas lines and hot and cold water lines, the rough wiring, with meter loop and service head.

Financing

In addition, the Phillips Company will handle the financing if desired, with a contract calling for 20% down and the balance,

AMONG THE VACATIONERS over the Easter weekend were Ron and Pat Frazier of Bend, Bob and Hallie Gabriel, also of Bend.

SOCIAL HOUR AT THE LODGE brought together Mr. and Mrs. Streiter of Grants Pass, Oregon, and Mr. and Mrs. Walker of Bellview, Washington.

CHRISTMAS VALLEY LAKE: MAN-MADE PLEASURE SPOT

The thirty acres of water that comprise Christmas Valley Lake probably offers more out-and-out sport than any other facility in the valley. There is swimming, waterskiing and sailing in the summer, ice skating in the winter and always, winter or summer, some of the best of fishing. The lake was originally stocked with Bluegills, then Black Bass and Kamloop trout. And last year Rainbow trout were added, some of the plants being 12 inches or more long. As in the case of the Kamloops, the Rainbow have found the water and food supply to their liking, growing and multiplying at a highly satisfactory rate.

Recreation Department

The lake is under the control of the Christmas Valley Park and Recreation Department, which takes care of the stocking of fish and sets the rules and regulations for fishermen. Currently a $1.00 daily permit is required, with a limit of four fish to a permit. Family Plan Vacationers have that permit purchased for them by the Penn Phillips Company, so actually they fish for free.

Island

One of the highlights of the 1967 Vacation Package will be the Monday picnic on the island in the lake, and the fishing derby which follows — with prizes for the largest fish.

Located just west of the Lodge and south of the golf course, the blue lake is visible from almost every place in Christmas Valley.

including interest, payable at $40 a month.

Ordered now, the house could be ready for a late summer vacation. Here is an opportunity to get that "retirement home" started and let future vacations be productive, as well as great fun.

AT CHRISTMAS VALLEY LANE AND CHRISTMAS VALLEY ROAD

EVEN THE RESIDENTS dropped in to welcome the lucky visitors who chose the Easter weekend for a brief vacation. Here Andy Plano, Connie Baert and Bob Byam enjoy the evening's amusement.

JUST BEFORE DINNER, Mr. and Mrs. Brunton of Seattle have a sarsaparilla at the Lodge. The Social Hour, with hot hors d'oeuvres, made a big hit with the visitors.

Dude Ranch Offers Excitement for All

Under the able hands of Bud Baert, the Christmas Valley Dude Ranch is an exciting place, especially for the youngsters. The ranch is completely equipped for a rodeo, with bucking and calf roping chutes, corrals for riding stock and tack room. The facility also includes a quarter horse race track and pasture. And Bud, who supervises it all, has worked with and around horses all his life, even taking part in a number of wild horse roundups over the past years.

Among the features of the ranch is a barbeque area where the evening cookouts are held and an outdoor dance floor that sees some spirited flinging. And Sunday afternoons, this coming summer, will be featured with exciting cowboy polo games.

There are fourteen riding horses available for Family Plan

Vacationers. If you're a beginner, Bud will see to it that you not only get a horse to fit your experience, but will give you pointers on how to stay in the saddle. As long as there a horse on hand, you can ride for free, of course.

The evening hayrides start from the Dude Ranch, with Bud at the reins of the big team that pulls the haywagon. After the barbeques on Tuesday and Saturday nights, Bud will carry vacationers out into the open moonlight, where only the comforting creek of the wheels and an occasional burst of song will disturb the soft summer night.

Aboard a Dude Ranch horse, alone or with new-found friends, the trails to adventure lead out in all directions.

Later in the year, when the hunting season begins, Bud Baert's horses are available for both pack and riding, making those foothill deer hunts just that much more pleasant.

Ladburys Operate Lakeside Terrace Motel

Moving to Christmas Valley from Long Beach, California, last year, Wes and Opal Ladbury bought and operate the Lakeside Terrace Motel which was built in 1965. Curving along the shore of Christmas Valley Lake, near the Recreation Building, the ten-unit motel offers the most modern accommodations in an attractive setting.

With five children, two of whom, Judy and Pamela are finishing their schooling in California, the Ladburys have three others in local schools. Linda attends Bend High School and Ricky and Melody Sue go to the Ft. Rock School. Quickly embracing the Christmas Valley spirit, Wes and Opal both help out wherever they're needed; Opal at present in the Lodge and Wes will operate the movies, games or dances at the drop of the hat.

Informal Wear the Thing for Vacation

A vacation in Christmas Valley is a friendly, informal affair. Casual or western clothing is just the thing for daytime wear and since the valley is at an altitude of about 4300 feet, the evenings can be cool, so bring a sweater or jacket. You won't have to wear a tie, either, in the big Lodge dining room — just come prepared to enjoy your food.

Christmas Valley averages 248 days of sunshine during the year, with summer daytime temperatures in the 80 and 90s, with winters averaging between 25 and 40 degrees. The average rainfall is only a little over 13 inches, so a summer storm is rarely more than a passing shower.

Dry and warm in the daytime, cool and clear at night: you'll eat, sleep and play in the best of summer climates.

Byams Active as Early Residents

Bob Byam, Water Superintendent and Plumbing Contractor, has been active in Christmas Valley affairs for almost six years. A hydraulic specialist, Bob can answer most questions concerning local water lines, water volume in wells, etc., which come to the Water Company office. He serves on the Board of Directors of the Fire Department, the T.V. Company and the Recreation District.

Not to be outdone by her husband, Helen Byam is also busy in community affairs. In addition to maintaining their home, Helen serves as secretary in the Penn Phillips Land Office and for the Chamber of Commerce. Small problems generally find their way to Helen's desk, where they are promptly solved.

The Byams have a married daughter, Suzanne Wendorf, who is employed overseas in the American Embassy at Prague.

SOCIAL NOTES:

Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Calcote and small son, of Bend, paid a visit to the community, seeing friends and relatives. Chuck has been aboard the U.S.S. Coral Sea which just returned from Vietnam.

PP&L WARNS KITE FLYERS

Spring kite flying season has arrived, prompting a warning from Pacific Power & Light Company of the hazards of flying kites near electric power lines.

Parents should check the type of string and kite to be flown by their youngsters, the company said, keeping in mind these recommended safety rules:

Never fly kites in wet weather, because damp string can conduct electricity;

Always fly kites away from power lines and TV and radio aerials;

Never use kite string with metallic strands;

Avoid kite frames with metal bracings or metallic tails and always avoid busy streets and highways while flying kites.

Parents are urged to caution youngsters to stay in open fields and away from power lines. If a kite becomes entangled in a power line, call Pacific Power. Never attempt to climb a power pole or tree near the line to free the kite.

Browns Avid Artifacts Hunters

Among the earliest residents of the new community of Christmas Valley are Mel and Grace Brown. Associated with the Phillips Land Company for nearly six years, the Browns have been an integral part of the growth and development of the project.

Serving in a public relations capacity for the company, Mel not only helps the land owners with their problems and desires, but also finds time to serve as President of the Chamber of Commerce and as a director on the board of both the Christmas Valley Recreation District and the Volunteer Fire Department.

In their spare time the Browns are enthusiastic hunters for Indian artifacts which abound in the valley. They probably have the best collection of arrowheads for miles around and Grace's arrangement of these, and other relics of ancient living, compare favorably with exhibits held by many museums.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Rike and sons have returned to their home here following the completion of Larry's power line work in Western Washington.
