Sports Car Races Thrill Lucky Christmas Valley Family Vacationers

SPORTS CAR OVERALL CHAMP, Ken Wandell of the Klamath Falls Sports & Imports Car Club, stands beside the Mustang he drove in winning the Annual Sports Car races at the 2.4 mile Christmas Valley course. His proud daughter, Teresa, holds the handsome trophy.

Ken Wandell Tops Competitors In Dash For Trophies

Whipping around the sporty 2.4 mile Christmas Valley race course, Ken Wandell of the Sports & Imports Car Club of Klamath Falls topped 27 other competitors to take the overall winning trophy in the annual sports car races. Driving a Mustang sedan, Wandell not only won first place in the A Sedan division, but set the winning time of 4 minutes 25.0 seconds to take first overall.

Those Family Vacation visitors who had chosen this particular time to visit the valley were more than a little amazed as the expertly driven cars whipped around the twists and turns of the competition track.

Vacation Package Fun Bargain

Five days lodging, food and fun for just $52.50, is proving to be the best summer bargain in the land, according to the glowing reports left at the reception desk in the Christmas Valley Lodge.

To quote Minerva Bailey, of San Francisco: "Talk about the July Sales . . . this vacation has to top any sale I've ever seen! I'd be gaining weight if it wasn't for the horseback riding I'm doing and John's so torn between fishing and golfing that he can hardly eat more than two helpings a meal or sleep more than ten hours. It's fabulous!"

Owners Less

Better yet, if the Baileys had been Christmas Valley property owners they'd have had a one-third discount on the price of their five days of fun. Owners can enjoy the all-inclusive treat for just $7.00 a day, apiece, with children under 12 staying for half that price.

There is no limit to the number of days visitors may stay, except that of accommodations. A reservation should be made as far in advance as possible — summer is spinning by and August is always a busy month in Christmas Valley. Use the coupon on the back page NOW!

100 M.P.H.

Normally winding through the turns at breakneck speed, many of the cars topped 100 m.p.h. as they sped down the 200 foot straightaway toward the finish. From positions of vantage, the spectators, under beautiful skies, watched as car after car shot through the course, both men and women driving as if the car behind was full of revenoors.

Normally considered a male sport, it was exciting to watch wives climb into their husband's cars and flit through the turns in times that were only a bated breath behind those of the men.

Among the distaff winners were: Linda Nelson, Ladies Sports I Bonnie Cox, Ladies Sports II Carlene Wandell, 1st Ladies Sedans I, with Nancy Wood 2nd. Wanda Mauerhan, 1st Ladies Sedans II, with Judy Borge 2nd.

Men's Events

Competitors and their families enjoyed the two day trials and races immensely, taking advantage of the facilities and wonderful food of the Lodge. The final results of the men's events were as follows:

Ken Wandell, 1st Class A Sedans and Overall Winner, with Jim Mears 2nd.

Rube Long Sells Fort Rock Ranch

Reuben A. Long, Fort Rock rancher, author, lecturer, conservationist, announced this week that he has sold his ranch at Fort Rock to Dr. Warren Wegert, a Portland veterinarian, who has taken over the operation.

The Fort Rock ranch includes 6,000 deeded acres, plus grazing rights on Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service ranges. Long retained his Devil's Garden property, 960 acres, and a smaller 160-acre property at Gebhart Well where he will live at least for the present.

Campbell Stays

Dr. Wegert plans range development, and his ranch manager will be Jack Campbell who has been employed by Long.

Rube Long was born at Lakeview and when he was two years of age in 1900 his parents moved to Christmas Lake where he grew up. He had been on the Fort Rock range since 1930.

Conservationist

Known for many years as a range conservationist and expert in the training and handling of horses, Long more recently authored the best selling "Oregon Desert" with the late E. R. Jackman of Corvallis. He is a member of the State Board of Agriculture, the Lakeview district BLM advisory board and numerous other organizations.

In 1966 the Lake County Chamber of Commerce presented him with a plaque of special appreciation for his community services, and last year the Izaak Walton League of Oregon named him Conservation Man of the Year.

In 1954 he was Grassman of the Year for both Lake County and Oregon.

Park

He deeded a portion of the Fort Rock landmark to the state for state park purposes, and he gave the federal government permission to dedicate the old Cow Cave on his property (now called Fort Rock Cave) as the site of the 1936 discovery of 10,000 year old Indian artifacts.

4-H Scholarships Appreciated By Local Students

The 4-H Summer School, held annually on the campus at Oregon State University in Corvallis, offers club members an opportunity to spend a week with other youngsters, all engaged in the group's slogan: "Young Citizens in Action."

Each year a number of local students are sponsored by the Penn Phillips Company for the school's term. Among those who received scholarships from the company this year are Joe Oliver, Tim Green, Ella Usher, Winsome McDonald and Patti Lohf. All wrote to thank Mr. Phillips for his assistance, outlining some of their class work and details of the school.

The opportunity to meet other youngsters on a wider horizon can often prove the first step toward a maturity that immeasurably benefits the student — and anything that makes for a better adult is of vast importance to the country as well. 4-H club work points toward that goal and the Phillips Company, and other organizations, are happy to further the cause.

Lately I've been thinking that the country seems to be dividing up between "doers" and "spectators." Our athletes are breaking records every day, massive buildings are springing up in our cities, businesses are merging and amalgamating, and Government is expanding in all directions — but the fact remains that fewer and fewer people are taking part.

It used to be that everyone was a "doer." You built your home, you plowed your fields, you wove your clothes — not that I'm advocating a return to those days — but you took part. You shared effort with others and had a hand in whatever was accomplished. But not any more: we tend to sit back and let the "professionals" do it while we watch. And we're beginning to pay the penalty of sitting and watching.

A shocking number of our young men are rejected for military service on physical grounds. They can't run or jump or throw or take a few lumps because they've developed the habit of letting the few "good" ones do it for them. The will to try, the urge for competition seems to have left them. The lit-the corner store, the family business, the small private enterprise — they're all going fast. The "pros" are taking over — we're listening to their song of "we're bigger so we can do it better." So we sit back and wait for them to do it for us. And to us.

Sure the things are bigger and faster—but where's the fun? Where's the joy in having had a hand in the development? Where's the part you can point to and say, "There's some of me in that"? Just paying an admission fee doesn't give you the game winning ball: you've got to be in the game and earn that.

But thank goodness there are a few places left where you can earn a part of the action. Right here in Christmas Valley, for instance. Put on a turkey shoot or a sports car race or a golf tournament and there are the ladies, supplying refreshments, running errands, taking part. Or the matter of the TV signal booster stations: Big Brother didn't do that, the people of the valley did — they contributed money, time and skills; they took part. Whatever comes along that needs a helping hand for success, gets it in this community. I've yet to hear anyone say, "What's in it for me?" People just naturally turn to and get the job done.

IT'S A SMALL, SMALL WORLD

Miss Karen Bemoll, who handles the Azusa end of Christmas Valley as secretary for Phil Washington, Phillips Vice-President, is currently seeing the sights of Europe. And among those sights, oddly enough, was a first-showing of the valley-made motion picture, "The Way West." Karen reports that the London audience seemed awed by the majesty of the locale and even thought she's enjoying herself immensely, the view of Ft. Rock unravelled some of the threads of homesickness.

So now I'm glad to see this newest effort taking place, the desire for a medical facility — not only the desire, but best of all, the will to work for it. Maybe we don't need it yet, but as the community grows we will and the kind of people who've invested in Christmas Valley see that future need and are beginning to work for it now. People may be sitting on the sidelines in much of the country, but not here: here we're willing to get off the bench, spit on our hands and take part.

Would it be too much to call it the "good old American" way?

BIG GAME SEASON SET

With the final establishment of Big Game hunting seasons, Nimrods can begin pointing for their yearly trek. While the seasons vary but little from year to year, Christmas Valley hunters would do well to get a copy of the State Game Commission's booklet on regulations, either from local sports and hardware stores, or the Commission itself at Box 3503, Portland, Oregon.

Deer

Deer, of course, is the most hunted big game. This year the Eastern Oregon season is from September 30 through October 22, with one buck having visible antlers allowed. But there are variations, such as an Early Deer Season, a Antlerless Deer Season and certain extended season areas which are too numerous to list, but which the dyed-in-the-wool hunter should know about. The same applies to Elk.

Forecast

The Game Commission forecasts another excellent deer season for hunters, calling the picture "bright" for both mule and black-tailed deer. Although ranges fluctuate, deer herds on a statewide basis are estimated up about 14 per cent from last year.

Elk

The picture is not quite so rosy for Elk hunters. Not because of

Bible School Again Successful

As it was last year, the 10 day Summer Bible School conducted at the Christmas Valley Community Church was highly successful. Produced by the American Sunday School Union of Gold Hill, Oregon, the teachers this year were Mike Boyce, Joe Boravich and Wes Whaley, all from Auburn, California.

The dedication of these young people, and the rapt enthusiasm of the youngsters attending, proves once again that sound, Christian education is a way of life in Christmas Valley.

JEEP CLUB TOURS AREA

Six vehicles whose owners are members of the Chuckwalla Jeep Club of Los Angeles, California, stopped overnight in Christmas Valley during early July. The 4-wheel drive cars were touring the east central area of the state. The members, under the direction of President A. V. Neely of Lynwood, California, thoroughly enjoying their side jaunts over the rugged terrain of the area.

Like Radio Hams, Jeep clubs keep in touch with each other and the glowing reports from the Emerald Road Runners of Eugene, who have visited Christmas Valley on a number of happy occasions, have sifted down to similar clubs all over the West Coast.

Long Time Owners Make First Visit

Among the many visitors to Christmas Valley lately were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stark, of Banning, California. What made their arrival a special event is that they have been valley property owners since 1961, but had never before seen the land they had purchased.

Adding to the lark was the fact that the Starks camped out on their land, enjoying it completely. Mr. Stark, who is a young 80 years, declared he had the "time of his life" on the camp-out, an endorsement which cannot be taken lightly in view of the events which have taken place in the last four score years.

Accompanying the Starks were Mr. and Mrs. Kjill Aanonsen of Beaumont, California. The Aanonsens are also Christmas Valley property owners.

Mrs. Owen (Nina) Holmes is now at home in the Valley following a rather long siege in the hospital.

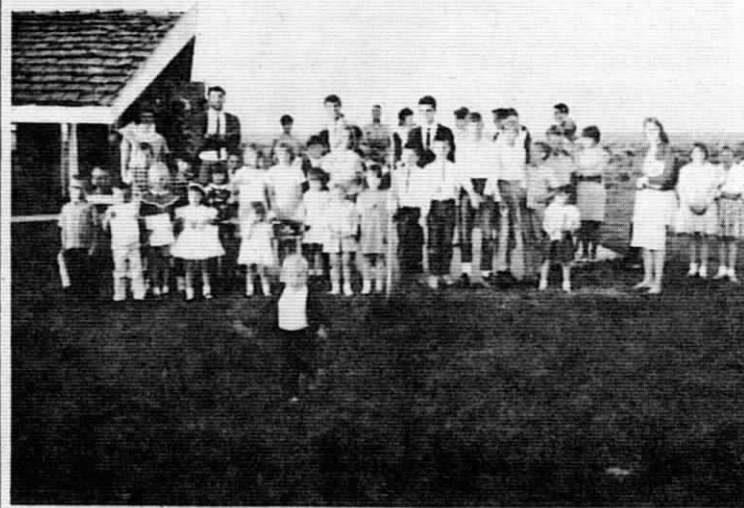

Also at home, recovering from open-heart surgery in Portland, is Mrs. Jerry (Margaret) Emery.

Property Owners Group Reports on Medical Facility Progress

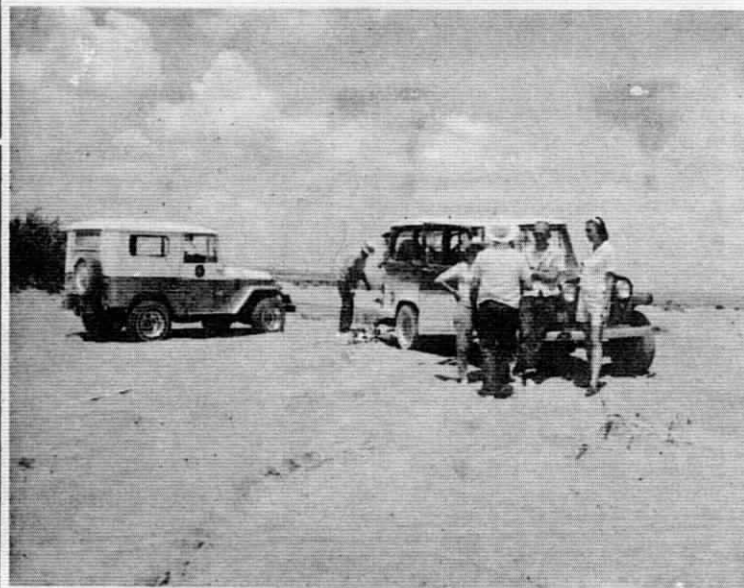

As a division of that enthusiastic San Jose group, the Christmas Valley Property Owners Association, the Medical Facility Committee, headed by Mrs. Essie M. Marte, reports a start on its Fund account.

As announced last month, the purpose behind the organization is to secure a Medical Facility for the Valley. Such facilities don't spring up overnight — unless, of course, Big Brother waves his tax-dollar hand — and as the community grows so will the need

Club Winners

Among the competing clubs, Sports and Imports of Klamath Falls, whose President is Don Nelson, won First Place, with the Emerald Empire Sports Car Club from Eugene the runner-up. As usually happens, some of the most exciting events were staged AFTER the formal races, when local enthusiasts, stimulated by the day's excitement, took impromptu shots at the established marks. Fortunately for everyone, the soft soil took the danger out of misjudged corners and over-controlled turns. All in the interests of good clean fun and far better here than on the highway

SOCIAL NOTES

Mrs. Wes Ladbury has returned from a visit to Long Beach, California, where she attended the graduation of her daughter, Pamela Barner.

The John Casad home was the scene of a big family gathering over Father's Day when the Casads celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary. Attending the celebration with their own families were the J. J. Casads, the Joe Garrises, and the Joe Casads, all from Medford, plus the A. K. Casads from Mountain View, California.

Maude Myers of San Diego spent the month of June with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Byam.

George Deu Pree of Fresno is enjoying a summer in Christmas Valley with his uncle, Tony LeBarge.

The Enrico Uboldis of Chico, California, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. W. Thomas.

Among the visitors to the valley have been the Gene Oschners of Westminster, California, at the Art Pachecos; Rick and Diane Forth, with daughter, Kelly, at the Alfred Smithees; Mrs. Freeman Kimsey and daughter Kristy at the John Pettus home.

 the elk population, which seems to be about what it was last year, but the proportion of bulls to cows seems to be smaller than last year and the bulls will therefore be harder to find. In addition, the Commission has deliberately shortened the Elk season (Oct. 28-Nov. 19) as a means of further reducing the bull elk kill this year.

Big Take

Last year hunters took nearly 148,000 deer, of which 107,700 were bucks. This was the third highest deer kill on record. Hunting success, over the years, has averaged between 30 and 40 per cent, meaning that one in three of those in the field have been successful in getting their prize. Any time a particular area jumps to 50 per cent, the hunting is considered exceptional.

OVERALL WINNER KEN WANDELL receives his trophy from pretty Katherine Barkee. The Klamath Falls driver topped the field in Class A Sedans with a time of 4 minutes 25.0 seconds.

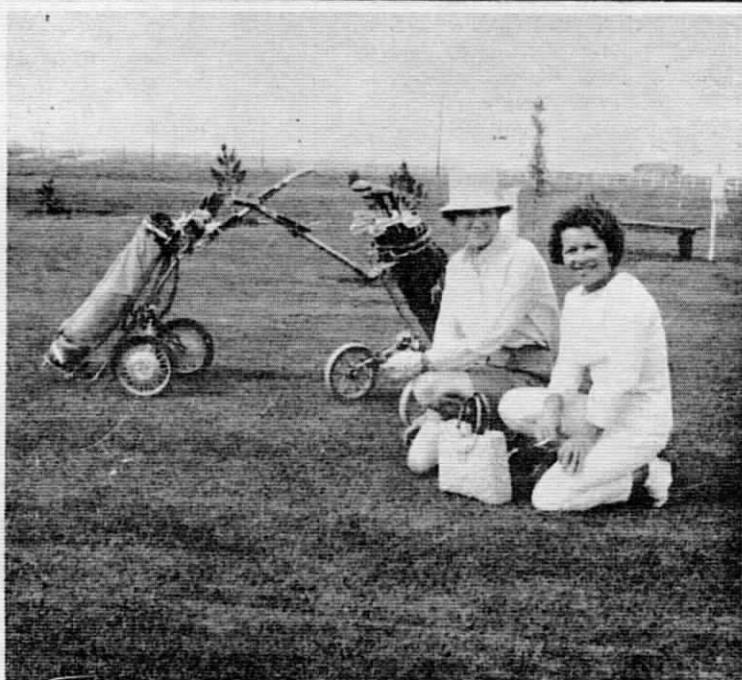

FIRST PLACE FOR ABC Sports cars went to E. L. Cass of the Siskiyou Sports Car Club.

RONNIE FRIEDRICH DROVE his Class B Sedan to a first place spot. Katherine Barkee had ample opportunity to practice her smile in presenting all the trophies.

BILL MAUERHAN DRIVING an Austin Mini took a first in Class C Sedans for the Siskiyou Sports Car Club of Medford.

LUCILLE ADAMS, WHO WON a prize for Ladies Low Gross, kneels with her Lakeview neighbor, Florence Castle, right. The visitors found the day and the course delightful.

THEY DIDN'T WIN BUT they sure had fun. Betty Verges of Lakeview, left, and Christmas Valley's own Connie Baert pause before making their big charge.

BOB ADAMS OF LAKEVIEW had the misfortune of coming up empty handed in the Amateur contest, while his wife took a prize. However, from his expression, there is consolation in all things.

To stimulate that enthusiasm, Mrs. Marte, whose address is 24591 Second Street, Hayward, California, has appointed Mrs. Francis Dennison of San Jose head of the Ways and Means committee. Amateur Golfers Battle For Prizes

Christmas Valley's first open Amateur Golf Championship got off to an exciting start with an 18 hole contest on Sunday, July 16. Competing in the Men's Division were 21 better-than-average players, with 14 ladies shooting for the distaff prizes.

With over $400.00 worth of merchandise to battle for, the players not only received worthwhile rewards for their efforts on a fine sunny day, but had a lot of fun doing it. Following the event the contestants enjoyed a happy social hour and a fine dinner at the Lodge, all part of the tournament package.

Winners

The big winner was Paul Brattain of Lakeview, who won first place Low Gross. Following in second place Low Gross was Bob Nichols, with Harry Sabin, third. Local talent got into the act with the Low Net scoring. Atch Atchison took first; Mel Brown, second, and Bill Castle of Lakeview slipped in for third.

In the Ladies Division, first place Low Gross went to Fran Nichols, second to Florence Castle and third Low Gross to Lucille Adams, all of Lakeview.

In Ladies Low Net, Ruth Lloyd of Christmas Valley was first, with Jeanne Chaloupka and Pat Goehring — both of Lakeview — taking second and third respectively.

Tough Holes

The consensus of opinion was that No. 6 was still one of the tougher holes to play, with No. 9 and all that water waiting for those who slice the ball, a close runner-up. As Al Baert put it, "I could have used some of that fancy fishing equipment the other guys won each time I came down Number 9. I was in the water so much I was afraid my clubs would rust."

Since the merchandise prizes consisted of golf and fishing equipment, Al's comments were backed up by a number of other players.

Visitors

Competitors from Christmas Valley, in the Men's Division, were Mel Brown, Atch Atchison and Al Baert. From Lakeview came Carter Fetsch, Chet Clark, Chick Chaloupka, Arlow Goehring, Bill Castle, Bob Nichols, Harry Sabin, Bob Adams, Don Verges, Bill Strawn and Paul Brattain. The Silver Lake representative was Harry Merrill, the man from Redmond was Ron Palley, Burns sent Ron Barrett and Joe Stampke and representing Bend were Stacy Smith, Darrell Cowgill and Dell Schulzke.

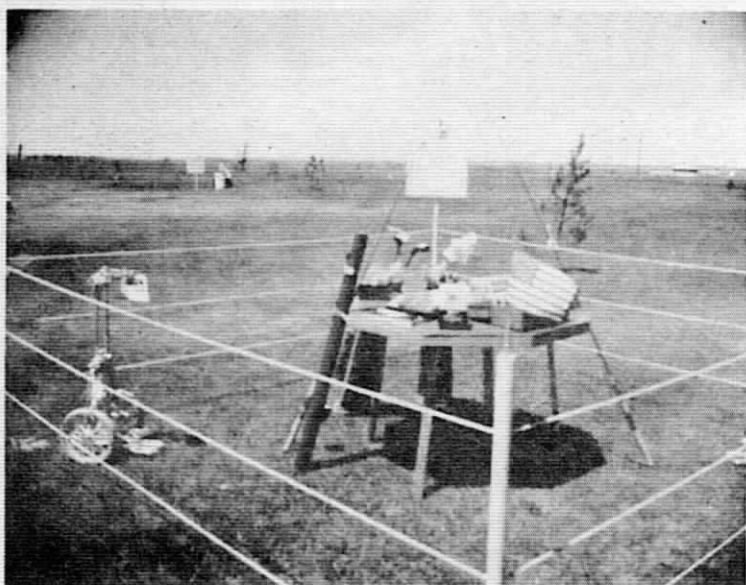

In the Ladies Division Ruth Lloyd and Connie Baert played for Christmas Valley, with the Lakeview contingent consisting of Teresa Fetsch, June Clark, Jeanne Chapaloupka, Pat Goehring, Florence Castle, Fran Nichols, Billie Sabin, Lucille Adams, Better Verges and Betty Strawn. Bonnie Barrett and Donna Tampke came down from Burns to take part.

The next tournament scheduled for the fine Christmas Valley golf course is the Central & Eastern Oregon Amateur Golf Championship, the date to be announced later, either in late August or early September.

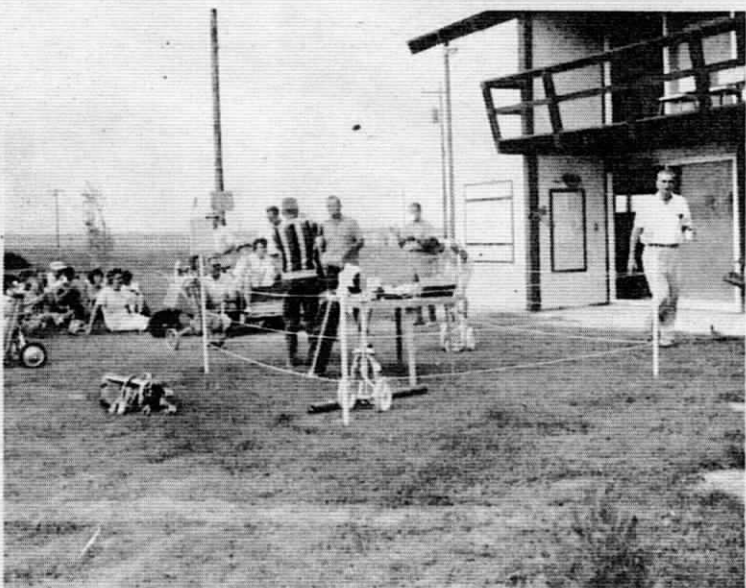

The scoring will be Medal Play, over 36 holes, with prizes for both the Ladies and Men's divisions totalling over $600 in

PAUL BRATTAIN OF LAKEVIEW, won First Place Low Gross in the Christmas Valley Amateur Golf Contest, poses with his trusty tools and his very proud daughter, Jalma.

PRIZES AWARDED TO PLAYERS in the Christmas Valley Amateur Golf Championship, July 16, totaled $400 in merchandise. Here, not yet awarded, the prizes range from golf balls to clubs to fishing tackle.

CHRISTMAS VALLEY PRO BOB LLOYD presents the winners their prizes in the first of many (we hope) Amateur contests. Here Paul Brattain collects his winnings while Mel Brown, who only got a Second in Low Net, walks away in dignity.
