Pardoning the Thanksgiving Turkey

by Betty C. Monkman

The White House Historical Association - Article and Photos used with Permission

The official "pardon" of White House turkeys is an interesting White House tradition that has captured the imagination of the public in recent years.

It is often stated that President Lincoln's 1863 clemency to a turkey recorded in an 1865 dispatch by White House reporter Noah Brooks was the origin for the pardoning ceremony.

Reports of turkeys as gifts to American presidents can be traced to the 1870s, when Rhode Island poultry dealer, Horace Vose, began sending well fed birds to the White House. The First Families did not always feast upon Vose's turkeys, but the yearly offering gained his farm widespread publicity and became a veritable institution at the White House. At Thanksgiving 1913, a turkey-come-lately from Kentucky shared a few minutes of fame with the fine-feathered Rhode Islander. Soon after, in December, Horace Vose died, thus ending an era.

By 1914, the opportunity to give a turkey to a president was open to everyone, and poultry gifts were frequently touched with patriotism, partisanship, and glee. In 1921, an American Legion post furnished bunting for the crate of a gobbler en route from Mississippi to Washington,

President John F. Kennedy pardoned a turkey on November 19, 1963, stating "Let's keep him going."

John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum/NARA

while a Harding Girls Club in Chicago outfitted a turkey as a flying ace, complete with goggles. First Lady Grace Coolidge accepted a turkey from a Vermont Girl Scout in 1925. The turkey gifts had become established as a national symbol of good cheer.

Recently, White House myth-makers have claimed that President Harry S. Truman began the tradition of "pardoning" a turkey. However, the Truman Library & Museum disputes the notion that he was the first to do so. The focus on Truman stems from his being the first president to receive a turkey from the Poultry and Egg National Board and the National Turkey Federation. From September to November 1947, announcements of the government encouraging "poultryless Thurs days" grabbed national headlines. Outrage from homemakers, restaurant owners, and the poultry industry was palpable in Washington. This came to a head when the poultry industry pointed out that the upcoming Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's Day, the three big turkey holidays, happened to fall on Thursday. The effort was deflated in time for Thanksgiving, but not before poultry growers had sent crates of live chickens—"Hens for Harry"—to the White House in protest. The turkey they presented to President Truman that December promoted the poultry industry and established an annual news niche that endures today.

While 1947 was the beginning of the official turkey presentation from the poultry industry, the turkey pardon remained a sporadic tradition. In December 1948, Truman accepted two turkeys and remarked that they would "come in handy" for Christmas dinner. There was clearly no plan for these birds to receive a presidential pardon. The Washington Post used both "pardon" and "reprieve" in a 1963 article in which President Kennedy said of the turkey, "Let's keep him going." During the latter years of the Nixon presidency, Patricia Nixon accepted the turkeys on behalf of the

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Hello Fort Rock Valley Historical Society Members,
Past-Members and Supporters!

As this has been a trying year for everyone, we welcome your membership and support. We kept our doors open as long as we could this season. Our Museum is a great place to social distance and enjoy Fort Rock homestead history. We missed many of our school and tour groups this year as well as photo and film opportunities.

We wish everyone well during this different time and we do hope you can continue your membership and support our efforts. We have several renovation projects planned which include Dr. Thom's Office, Mekenmaier Cabin and the Schoolhouse. We are also proud and pleased with the new barn addition we built this year! We thank Bruce Kindler and Norm for returning this season to build new hand rails for the museum buildings. Lastly, we are seeking two new board members. Please let us know if you are interested.

Thank you for your support.
All my best,

Turkey Pardoning Continued from page 5.

President and in 1973 sent the bird to the Oxon Hill Children's Farm.

The 1978 turkey, presented to First Lady Rosalynn Carter, met a similar fate when it was sent to Evans Farm Inn to live in a mini zoo.

After 1981, the practice of sending the presentation turkey to a farm became the norm under President Ronald Reagan. The turkey ceremony also became a source of satire and humor for reporters. The formalities of pardoning a turkey gelled by 1989, when President George H. W. Bush, with animal rights activists picketing nearby, quipped, "But let me assure you, and this fine tom turkey, that he will not end up on anyone's dinner table, not this guy -- he's granted a Presidential pardon as of right now -- and allow him to live out his days on a children's farm not far from here."

Had it been up to Benjamin Franklin, the turkey we carve for Thanksgiving dinner might have been our national bird.

COLD AND FLU SEASON SUPPORT

As cold and flu season settles in its comforting to know your local La Pine Community Health Center is available to support your wellbeing. People may be feeling uneasy about the double threat of the regular flu season coupled with the threat of COVID 19. Your local clinic is here to help.

All north Lake County locals who have not yet established care with the Christmas Valley clinic are encouraged to submit a completed new patient packet and make an appointment to establish care. You can find printable packets for both adults and children on line at www.lapinehealth.org or by stopping by the local clinic and picking them up from the receptionist. The clinic offers many services without having to travel to La Pine or Bend for established patients, not the least of which is the convenience of having your primary care provider right here in Christmas Valley.

If you come down with cold or flu symptoms give yourself a few days of sensible at-home care; drink plenty of fluids, stay warm, wash your hands frequently, cover your mouth when you cough or sneeze and get plenty of rest, and during the pandemic, wear a mask to protect family members. If symptoms become severe, or you don't feel better in a few days call to make an appointment to be seen by a provider. During the COVID pandemic patients with cold and flu symptoms are NOT TO ENTER THE LOBBY, but rather, park your vehicle on either side of the ambulance entrance (located to the left of the main lobby entrance), and call from your vehicle. The medical assistant will triage you outside and bring you in through the back entrance to ensure the safety of patients in the lobby area.

If you're well, do your best to stay that way!! Get plenty of rest, maintain a healthy diet and keep fluid intake up. Wash your hands frequently, wear a mask in public places or around symptomatic family or friends and practice social distancing; (all of these activities are wise practices during cold and flu season, pandemic or not). Avoid places where exposure to colds and flus are higher.

Flu shots are available at the Christmas Valley clinic for established patients of all ages. If you haven't yet gotten your flu shot you can call to schedule an appointment @ 541-536-3435 Ask about pricing for uninsured patients if needed.

THANKSGIVING AND THE VIRUS

submitted by Terry Crawford

Traditionally on the Saturday before Thanksgiving the Christmas Valley Community Church hosts a Thanksgiving dinner for all who wish to attend with the meal being prepared and served by adult and youth congregation members.

This year, with the advent of COVID-19 a sit-down dinner simply isn't possible. So the 2020 dinner will be served curbside from 5 - 6:30 pm. Be sure to watch for informational posters for further details and contact numbers.

This is also the case for the annual Thanksgiving party held on Thanksgiving day at the Christmas Valley Community Hall that is hosted by Praise the Lord Fellowship and the Konaway Tribe. (There may be very limited indoor seating for folks that have high need - this is not set in stone yet.) They will be serving Curbside and according to the Rev. Susan Birch many folks have already

OPEN LETTER TO LAKE COUNTY RESIDENTS:

Lake County, a place that many of us call home. A remote corner of Oregon spanning 8,358 square miles, with only 7,895 residents according to the last Census of 2010. Well here we are in 2020, and a lot can happen in 10 years. A lot can happen in 100 years, which is why I feel it is important to have a vision for the future.

I'm a goal oriented person, and as I reflect on the issues of today and of my generation, the young people of our County who may one day carry the torch for our children and grandchildren, I see the need more than ever for those of my generation to have goals, purpose and direction. These things give value to our lives, and show a cognitive vested interest in the continuation of our culture, land, resources and ultimately, our civilization.

I'm also a farmer and an outdoorsman, which means I have a high respect and admiration for God's creation, and like most of us who care about our County, we want to protect and preserve it.. That's a big topic though, the idea of "preservation". Our history, culture and our environment are certainly things worth preserving, and at times makes us resistant to change, and rightfully so. However, the one thing ever constant in this world is change, each day being different from the next, with new opportunities and challenges that we will either waste or seize... with each new generation having to find its way, hopefully learning from the guidance and mistakes of others.

I think most of the debate these days when we talk about things such as the environment or natural resources (just to single out a few) isn't about whether or not we care for our environment, or whether or not we want to preserve it, because I believe we all do... I think the main discussion (and at times contention) usually pertains to how we plan to go about doing so. Preservation and sustainability vs concepts such as regenerative practices. Government mandates vs independent collaboration of communities via economic means.

When we talk about Development, Natural Resources, Renewable Energy, or the Governors "100 Year Oregon Water Vision", all of which could individually spark some very heated discussion and strong opinions held with the deepest of personal convictions, and those conversations will be difficult, but they should still be had. What is our future? What is our vision?

Do I have all the answers? no... nobody does, but we can find solutions together. So, come learn about the issues with us, and talk to us, our door is open. We're in this together, and we need public involvement on a constructive level, but that requires participation. It will require our youth to start learning and thinking about things now, as they will be facing them down the road.

Together, we've seen a lot this year, and I'm grateful for the good people of Lake County during these times. You've given me hope. Together we've seen fire, floods, sickness, hatred and discontent, division, stress and a level of fear that I've never witnessed before, but I've also witnessed a quiet resolve, courage, faith, love and charity. Characteristics of a culture worth preserving.

Natural resources in the form of timber, agriculture and water will most likely remain the economic pillars of Lake County. Over 78% of the County's land is based in government stewardship. Changes in federal and state land policies will continue to have a tremendous impact on Lake County's socio-economic status. We need you to be part of those discussions, or at least be cognizant of them.

This is something I hope to see discussed here within our communities, among our friends and neighbors, in our homes and at the dinner tables. What should our plan be? I'm asking you this as one of your representatives here in Lake County, but also as a lifelong resident, and I hope to unpack this train of thought and explore solutions with you as we discuss all aspects of preservation for our County, and future.

Protecting Vulnerable Oregonians

ABUSE OF OLDER PEOPLE AND ADULTS WITH DISABILITIES IS A SOCIETAL PROBLEM THAT IS GETTING WORSE WITH THE AGING OF THE POPULATION.

EDUCATION ABOUT THE RISKS, ALONG WITH EFFECTIVE INVESTIGATION OF ABUSE, IS ESSENTIAL TO PREVENT ABUSE OF VULNERABLE OREGONIANS.

Oregon Department of Human Services / Seniors & People with Disabilities / Adult Abuse

What is elder abuse?

Elder abuse includes physical harm, failure to provide basic care, abandonment or involuntary seclusion, unwanted sexual contact, verbal or emotional abuse, neglect, self-neglect, wrongful restraint and financial exploitation. Abuse can happen in a person's own home or the home of family or friends. It can also occur in a professional care setting such as a nursing facility, a residential care facility, an assisted living facility, an adult foster home, a retirement home or a room and board home.

How is DHS protecting people?

- Establishment of a statewide Abuse Reporting hotline 1-855-503-SAFE.
- Reports made to this line go to a local Adult Protective Services office for thorough investigation.
- Implementation of a Centralized Abuse Management system to standardize abuse investigations statewide to improve the data available on abuse and allow for better tracking of perpetrators who seek out multiple victims.

- Expansion of an online search tool so that Oregonians can research the compliance history (including abuse complaints) of a licensed long-term care provider.
- Requirements for comprehensive background checks for individuals seeking to work in long-term care services and supports, including agents who provide referrals for services.
- Mandates for long-term care referral agents to register with the state and to follow disclosure and conduct rules.
- Implementation of stronger training requirements for care workers to ensure they understand dementia.
- Development of training and instructional tools for long-term care providers including the Abuse Reporting and Investigation Guide.

- Imposition of increased civil monetary penalties for elder or adult abuse in licensed long-term care settings as a deterrent.
- State funding for Oregon Care Partners, a collaboration through which caregivers (paid or unpaid family caregivers) can receive free training.
- Information on resources and supports provided through the Aging and Disability Resource Connection. Services provided by the ADRC include Options Counseling to help older adults and their families determine the most appropriate options to meet their needs.
- DHS participation in Multi-disciplinary Teams with law enforcement, medical providers, and others to protect vulnerable individuals.

How many people are impacted by elder abuse?

Nationally, elder abuse impacts 5 million individuals each year or 1 in 10 people over the age of 60. Annually, in Oregon, there are more than 1,000 cases of elder abuse in licensed long-term care settings and more than 3,100 cases of elder abuse in the community.

LAKE COUNTY MAIN LIBRARY QUIETER THAN EVER

Lakeview, OR—This fall, the Main Library has become quieter than ever thanks to new acoustic panels throughout the building. Over the last couple of months, a construction crew has installed hundreds of acoustic panels on walls and ceilings to reduce echoes, absorb sound, and make the library experience more pleasant for all patrons. The meeting room is available again for community use, but rules have changed in response to public health restrictions.

The road to acoustic panel installation has been long. Library staff first issued a request for proposals for a general contractor for the Main Library completion project in September of 2018. They did not receive any responses for a general contractor, but did receive interest from acoustic panel suppliers and installers. In order to move the project forward, library staff solicited quotes for acoustic engineering services to provide specifications. Once complete, they requested quotes for acoustic panel installation.

Shortly after an installer was selected and the contract was signed, the pandemic began. Fortunately, by August, public health restrictions had been modified enough to allow workers to be within 6 feet of each other while wearing masks. Since much of the installation was conducted by two installers working together in the small cage of a hydraulic lift, this was essential. Over the course of about two months, panels were installed on the walls and ceilings throughout the Main Library building.

"It is wonderful to finally provide a library experience, and especially a meeting room experience, where people can better hear and understand each other" said Library Director Amy Hutchinson. "Now voices everywhere in the library are more muted, and you can clearly hear others speak in the meeting room," said Hutchinson. The meeting room is once again open to the public, but now under modified rules to meet public health restrictions. Information about meeting room use is available at the Main Library and on the library website at <https://www.lakecountylibrary.org/meeting-room.html>.

Funding for the project was provided by the Lake County Library Endowment Fund, the Fred W. Fields Fund and the Jerome S. and Barbara Bischoff Library Subfund of the Oregon Community Foundation, and numerous individual local donors. If you have questions about the project, please contact Amy Hutchinson at the Main Library at 541-947-6019 or via email at amyh@lakecountylibrary.org.

Exotic Plants

Ginger: Zingiber officinale Roscoe

Ginger Family: Zingiberaceae

Encased in a delicate, silvery-brown skin, the gnarled and knobby rhizome, or underground stem, of the ginger plant, known as ginger root, has been prized since ancient times both for its flavor and for its medicinal properties. In ancient India it was known by the Sanskrit name shringara, and the Greeks of the first century A.D. wrote of it as zingiberis. At that time, and for several centuries thereafter, Europeans obtained ginger root in the trade from the Arabs - as they did many other species. By the early 16th century it was being grown in Spain. Today it is cultivated wherever the climate is humid and frost-free, the best ginger coming from the island of Jamaica.

The plants long slender leaves grow along 2-to-4-foot-tall stalks, which arise like cornstalks from the creeping rhizome, as do the separate flower stalks. The rhizome produces the volatile oil that contains such aromatic substances as camphene, phellandrene, zingiberene and zingerone. These, along with several other chemicals, have made ginger one of the worlds oldest and most popular medicinal spices, used in folk medicine almost everywhere. The tangy taste is due to the oily liquid gingerol, also contained in the rhizome.

In China, the warm, pungent tang of ginger tea - made by boiling pieces of fresh ginger root in water - has long been prescribed for colds, coughs, flu, and hangovers.

The Chinese say that the tea has the power to strengthen lungs and kidneys. Tibetans use ginger to stimulate the vital energies of one who is debilitated, lethargic, or convalescing from an illness. In Japan a ginger-oil massage is a traditional treatment for spinal and joint problems. Herbalists recommend hot ginger compresses and baths to relieve gout, arthritis, headaches, and spinal pain. Ginger compresses are also used in many parts of the world to relieve sinus congestion, kidney problems, menstrual cramps and various aches and pains. A warm ginger foot bath can invigorate the whole body, and a piece of cotton soaked in ginger oil is a common treatment for an earache. Candied ginger root, a favorite treat of children worldwide and has recently regained some of its old-time popularity here as it is as healthful as it is pleasurable to eat.

Modern medicine recognizes many of the spices time honored virtues. It is known to be a rubefacient, reddening the skin by stimulating the flow of blood to a given area, and this property alone accounts for its ability to ease soreness. It is also a carminative (ridding the stomach and intestines of gas) and an aid in digestion of fatty foods. Recent studies show it to be helpful as a scopolamine in preventing motion sickness and vertigo.

HONEY, GINGER, LEMON TONIC

Good during Cold & Flu Season

Ingredients:

1 inch piece of ginger, peeled and sliced thinly
1/3 cup honey
1 cup boiling water
Juice of three lemons (about 1/3 cup)
Ice and water

Instructions:

In a heat-proof bowl (or a glass measuring cup), mix together the ginger pieces, honey, and boiling water. Stir well until the honey is dissolved, and then let steep for 10-15 minutes. Meanwhile, fill a two quart pitcher with ice. Once the ginger is done steeping, strain liquid into the pitcher, and add in the lemon juice. Fill the rest of the way with water, and stir well.
