ORIGINS OF THE CHRISTMAS STAR ARE A SCIENTIFIC MYSTERY

by Ayleen Barbel Fattal, Florida International University

December is a month of celebration throughout the world and across cultures and religions.

Perhaps one of the most widely observed religious holidays in December is Christmas. Bright stars top many Christmas trees symbolizing the Star of Bethlehem, more commonly called the Christmas Star. It is mentioned in the Bible as the star which led the three wise men to the small town of Bethlehem where Jesus was born.

But was the Christmas Star really a star or some other astronomical occurrence?

Florida International University astronomy Professor Caroline Simpson provides scientific insight into what may explain the Christmas Star phenomenon.

Likely a stationary object. For an object in the sky to be useful for navigation over a period of days or weeks, it needs to be relatively stationary in the sky from night to night—disregarding the apparent motion of the sky from east to west due to the Earth's Rotation. This rules out transient objects like meteors, or what most recognize as shooting stars, which last for mere seconds.

Not a comet. Although a comet could appear motionless over days, comets were well known at the time and usually well documented by various cultures. More importantly, comets were generally regarded as harbingers of ill omen during the time of Jesus. It's safe to say any wise man would not have followed a comet. More likely, they would have gone the other way.

A nova or supernova? A nova suddenly brightens for a few days then slowly returns to its original state. A supernova is an explosion of a massive star that is visible for weeks. Both could have been possible, but these also tended to be well-documented and the only one noted at the time was in the wrong direction of the sky for the wise men to follow.

A planetary conjunction. The most likely explanation is a planetary conjunction—when one or more planets appear very close together in the sky. If it involved Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, it would be visible for a few days or longer if it involved only Saturn and Jupiter as they move more slowly through the sky. There were some conjunctions during the right time period and in the right direction in the sky.

Simpson cautions these are all just likely scenarios. There is no indisputable scientific proof or evidence for a definite conclusion. Until such discovery occurs, the Christmas Star will continue to be a mystery that only faith can explain.

Simpson studies how galaxies and the universe evolve over time. She is the recipient of the 2016 Richard H. Emmons Award for excellence in college astronomy teaching and one of the first physics professors at FIU to transform a basic introductory astronomy course for non-science majors into an active learning class.

Don't Forget Santa's Cookies and Milk: The History of a Popular Christmas Tradition by Sarah Pruitt

For decades, American children have been leaving out cookies and milk for Santa Claus on Christmas Eve. But how did this holiday food tradition get started?

Today in the United States, leaving out a plate of cookies (Oreos and classic chocolate chip are popular choices) and a glass of milk for Santa Claus on Christmas Eve is a well-established tradition among children. But it hasn't always been that way. According to one theory, the cookies-and-milk custom is derived from an older tradition, when families would stuff stockings with goodies for Santa and hang them by the chimney, his preferred mode of entrance, as a welcoming gift. Now, however, those stockings are usually chock-full of treats and smaller gifts for the family members themselves.

Leaving cookies and milk for Santa—and perhaps a few carrots for his reindeer—took off as an American holiday tradition in the 1930s, during the Great Depression. In that time of great economic hardship, many parents tried to teach their children that it was important to give to others and to show gratitude for the gifts they were lucky enough to receive on Christmas. Some 80 years later, many children still set out cookies and milk for Santa, whether out of the goodness of their hearts or (in less wholesome cases) as a bribe to receive more gifts from the jolly bearded man in the red suit.

The original roots of this holiday food tradition go back even further—all the way to ancient Norse mythology. Odin, the most important Norse god, was said to have an eight-legged horse named Sleipner, which he rode with a raven perched on each shoulder. During the Yule season, children would leave food out for Sleipner, in the hopes that Odin would stop by on his travels and leave gifts in return. Such a tradition continues today in countries such as Denmark, Belgium and the Netherlands, where children still believe that horses carry Santa's sleigh instead of reindeer. On Christmas Eve, they leave carrots and hay—sometimes stuffed into shoes—to feed the exhausted animals. In return, they might hope to receive such holiday treats as chocolate coins, cocoa, mandarin oranges and marzipan.

Over the years, different countries have developed their own versions of the cookies-and-milk tradition. British and Australian children leave out sherry and mince pies, while Swedish kids leave rice porridge. Santa can expect a pint of Guinness along with his cookies when delivering toys in Ireland. French children leave out a glass of wine for Père Noël and fill their shoes with hay, carrots and other treats for his donkey, Gui (French for "mistletoe"). In Germany, children skip the snacks altogether and leave handwritten letters for the Christkind, a symbolic representation of the Christmas spirit who is responsible for bringing presents on Christmas. Though many German kids mail their letters before the holiday—there are six official addresses for letters addressed to the Christkind—others leave them out on Christmas Eve, decorated with sparkly glue or sugar crystals. On Christmas morning, the letters have been collected, and gifts left in their place.

Christmas Valley Park and Recreation District invites everyone to enjoy the Park and Rec properties.

In their closest alignment in 800 years, Jupiter and Saturn will create a wonder: A Christmas Star

by Joanne Kimberlin, The Virginian-Pilot

This is Jupiter's Great Red Spot in 2000 as seen by NASA's Cassini orbiter.

Credit: NASA/JPL/Space Science Institute

The lousiest year in living memory will end with an offering of heavenly wonder: a Christmas Star.

It's actually the alignment of two planets—Jupiter and Saturn—which happens every 20 years or so. But it's not always in December and it's been nearly 800 years—we're talking Middle Ages—since they got this close. Technically, the two largest planets in our solar system will still be hundreds of millions of miles apart. But Dec. 21, from our vantage point, they'll look like they're nearly touching, creating a radiant point of light that's being dubbed the Christmas Star, or Star of Bethlehem, for obvious reasons.

Making it even more special: Dec. 21 also marks the winter solstice—the longest night of the year, the tipping point where daylight once again starts gaining ground on darkness.

Gotta love the symbolism.

"A little bit of cosmic perspective," said Justin Mason, director of Old Dominion University's Pretlow Planetarium. Not to mention spiritual—a page out of the Bible, telling of an unusual star that led the wise men to the baby Jesus.

Astronomers have long theorized that the nativity star might have really been an alignment, known as a conjunction. Mason says a rare conjunction of Jupiter, Venus and a bright star named Regulus occurred around 2 B.C.

Even while the forces directing our universe remain full of mystery, planetary orbits are now predictable.

The last humans to witness Jupiter and Saturn get this neighborly lived in 1226, but the gas giants will stage another exceptional show just 60 years from now, in March 2080.

"Sometimes with celestial mechanics," Mason explained, "things happen close together a couple of times and then that pairing won't happen again for a long, long time."

At least 20-are-you-kiddin'-me-20 will wrap up with a special bow.

A miracle or merely astrophysics. A light at the end of a long, dark tunnel

THANK YOU

The Spay and Neuter Clinic was very successful. There were 68 cats and 57 dogs spayed and neutered over the weekend.

We would like to thank Street Dog Hero from Bend, the veterinarians, the technicians and all of the great people that volunteered their time for this clinic.

Also, we would like to thank Lakeside Terrace for reserving the rooms for our out of town volunteers to stay and the Farmhouse Cafe, Gifts and More and Chevron for providing the wonderful food.

Thank you to the amazing, anonymous person who gave us a generous donation to support this cause.

Thank you Becky Tocol and Kathy Allen for getting everyone signed up and for spearheading this community event.

We are planning another Spay and Neuter Clinic this Spring 2021.

As we enter a season of increased COVID-19 transmission, remember...

Do NOT delay care.

Delaying care for chronic illnesses (diabetes, heart disease, lung disease, etc.) or new medical concerns as well as avoiding preventative healthcare could drastically increase your chance of being infected with COVID-19. It is important that you stay on top of these illnesses so that you can protect your immune system and reduce your risk of needing to visit the emergency department or be admitted to the hospital.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Bureau of Land Management Lakeview Field Office is issuing firewood permits. Permits will be processed over the phone ONLY from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. BLM firewood permits are no longer sold at the Silver Lake or Paisley Ranger Stations.

Firewood cutting permits are for personal use only. The cost of a firewood permit is $5 per cord, two cord minimum, eight cord maximum per household per year. Permits are valid for each calendar year.

The information needed to purchase a permit over the phone is:

- Full name and address.
- Valid ID (ex: Driver's license number).
- Year, make, model, color, and license plate number of the vehicle being used when getting the firewood.
- Credit card to process payment over the phone.

"It's the woodcutter's responsibility to obtain, understand, and follow the rules in effect at the time and place where they are cutting firewood," said District Manager Todd Forbes.

A commercial firewood permit is required for individuals who want more than eight cords and want to cut wood for resale or commercial use. Maps of authorized firewood cutting areas and stipulations governing the permits are provided when purchasing permits.

The Lakeview Field Office has four firewood units open. Three units in the Christmas Valley area and one in Silver Lake. The permits are for cutting GREEN Juniper only.

While out cutting firewood, remember to have your permit and map. Follow all permit stipulations and use caution to prevent wildfires. Please stay on existing roads and review your map to ensure you are on lands managed by the BLM and within authorized firewood cutting units. Report any permit violations with as much information as possible (e.g., date, license plate number, detailed location, and directions to the area) to the Lakeview Field Office.

For more information or to purchase your permit, call the Lakeview Field Office at 541-947-2177.

Oregon Food Bank Statement on $2.9M State Investment in Emergency Food Assistance

PORTLAND, OR — The Oregon Legislature's Emergency Board on Friday approved a $2.9 million investment in emergency food assistance through the Oregon Food Bank Network — a critical allocation at a time when nearly 1 in 5 state residents face hunger. The measure will increase the amount of nutritious food available at Oregon pantries and meal sites over the course of the next three months as the ongoing pandemic continues to impact area communities.

Oregon Food Bank released the following statement from CEO Susannah Morgan regarding today's legislative action:

"The Emergency Board's investment comes at a critical time for our communities, as our neighbors experience food insecurity at the highest rate in a century. The pandemic has brought hunger and poverty to the doorsteps of thousands of Oregon families for the first time, and the situation is even worse in communities that have faced disproportionate challenges for generations. Long-standing structural inequities have ensured that the pandemic's public health and economic impacts fall more heavily on people of color, immigrants and refugees, single parents and caregivers, and our trans and gender non-conforming neighbors — many of whom serve in essential, front-line roles within our healthcare and food systems.

"Throughout the pandemic, our network of 21 regional food banks and 1,400 local partners has moved mountains to ensure that nutritious food is available to everyone who needs it. But the economic fallout of COVID-19 has been compounded by devastating wildfires, and significant support is needed to continue to meet these crises head-on. With today's action, the Emergency Board has made a significant and critical investment in the food security of millions of Oregonians whose lives have been destabilized in one of the most challenging years in recent memory.

"And yet, we know this much-appreciated state allocation is a stopgap measure. Federal action on COVID relief is desperately needed to shore up safety net programs that provide vital support for struggling families, from Unemployment Insurance to the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. And thousands of our neighbors face homelessness at year's end if the full state legislature does not convene to extend Oregon's eviction and foreclosure moratorium. Our communities are facing one of the worst public health and economic crises in generations, and we need bold action from elected leaders at all levels to help ensure we all emerge stronger."

LIBRARY TAKE OUT ONLY EXTENDED

LAKEVIEW, Ore.—December 1, 2020—Lake County Library District Take Out Only service has been extended due to continued rising COVID-19 case numbers in Lake County. During Take Out Only service, the public cannot access the inside of library buildings, but can still check out books or use Wi-Fi outside the building. The library began Take Out Only service on November 18, 2020.

"Oregon Health Authority reported 88 new COVID-19 cases in Lake County during the month of November, and 74 of those were in the second half of the month," said Library Director Amy Hutchinson. "Based on our library board approved pandemic response service levels, we need to remain at Take Out only until the spread is lessened," said Hutchinson. The majority of library staff are at higher risk for severe COVID-19 based on age or health condition. When new Oregon Health Authority Guidelines and county risk levels are issued later this week, library staff and board will reassess library service levels based on the new information.

Virtual and Take Out services will be available during modified hours. Library patrons can still place holds online and via telephone as well as check items out through Library Take Out. Book drops will also be emptied and materials checked in during the closure. No overdue fines will be charged. The Main Library meeting room will not be available for public use during the closure. Online services such as downloadable e-books and audio books remain available at all times.

For questions or more information, visit the website at www.lakecountylibrary.org, or call your local library.

Exotic Plants

Ipecac Shrub : Cephaelis ipecacuanba (BROT.) A. Richard
Madder Family - Rubiceae

The year was 1682. The Grand Dauphin, son of Frances Sun King, Louis XIV, seemed to be dying of a severe and prolonged case of dysentery. The king was frantic with worry and anxious to try any remedy, but there was little that doctors were able to do. Then word reached Jean Baptiste Colbert, the King's chief minister, that a man call Jean Adrien Helvetius was curing similar cases in Paris with a secret remedy. Helvetius was sent for, the mysterious concoction and once administered, in due time the symptoms of the dreaded disease vanished. Louis' gratitude was effusive. Helvetius was honored by court, received a small fortune for the formula, and was appointed inspector general of French hospitals. Later he became personal physician to the duke of Orleans. His son was to become physician to the Queen of France and his grandson, Claude Adrien Helvetius, one of the outstanding poet philosophers of his time.

The secret remedy that saved the Dauphin and wrought such a change in the fortunes of the Helvetius family was ipecac (pronounced IP-uh-kak), made from dried root stock of an 18-inch-tall shrub that grows rampant in the steamy forests of the Amazonian Brazil and Bolivia- places where annual rainfall often exceeds 80 inches. The Indians of those regions had used it for many years, perhaps for many centuries, to treat amoebic dysentery and it is still used for that purpose throughout the world. It is also wielded in India and Pakistan against other serious parasitic diseases, including bilharziasis, caused by a flatworm. The component that acts against these invaders of the human body is an alkaloid called emitine. Given by mouth in small doses as part of a syrup, it also acts as an expectorant in the treatment of persistent coughs.

Ipecac is a strong emetic as well. A standard item in family first aid kits for many years, ipecac syrup has been used to induce vomiting, especially in people who have swallowed certain poisons. Although it is still widely used, it has become the subject of controversy. Research shows that cephaeline, the emetic agent in ipecac, is a powerful irritant that can cause poisoning, and should administered only in measured doses by a trained medical person.

Ipecac is grown commercially in tropical regions of the world, but in South America it is still gathered from the wild. Local Indians, with digging tools and pointed sticks, set up camp in November. They gently pry up each plant's musty-smelling root stock and cut away much of it leaving just enough to allow the shrub to survive to produce a new crop. They may work till January through February when globe clusters of white, tiny, funnel shaped flowers bloom among the dark green leaves. By May the harvest is done.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

A Work in Progress

Just a word or two from out of the garden of my heart. As we pause to reflect upon life and its meanings, we come upon the words of Jesus in the Holy Bible in a passage in Luke Chapter 16. The disciples of Jesus came to him seeking to know just what happens to us after we die. Jesus answered their inquiry with a story which contained a short series of "snapshots" of people-how they lived and how they ended up after they died-kind of a progression of events with a reality check! First described was a rich man who ate well, and must certainly have thought in his heart that all his riches indicated that he was pleasing to God in Heaven but would not even share the crumbs off his rich table with a poor beggar named Lazarus and preferred to give those crumbs to the dogs.

So the sum and total of the rich man's life was that he was rich, self-centered, and loved not his fellow-man and he died and went to Hell, not to Heaven.

Next described was Lazarus, a poor beggar who fared very poorly in this life, but was rich in faith and prayed to God in Heaven for forgiveness for his sins. He also died but went to Heaven and was comforted in Abrahams' bosom.

The rich man tried to appeal to Abraham in Heaven to send Lazarus to quench the fires of Hell upon his tongue with just a drop of cool water, but Lazarus was not able to do so because there was a great gulf between them which no person could traverse. The rich man then tried to persuade Abraham to send Lazarus to his brethren to warn them away from Hell but Abraham answered back that they have Moses law and the prophets to warn them to not enter Hell.

Also, in Matthew 18:24 Jesus taught that it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich person to enter into Heaven. And in Romans 8:33 we learn that it is God who justifies us by the forgiveness of our sins, and not we who justify ourselves to get into Heaven. Jesus taught these lessons so that we might enter into His rest by trusting in Him completely.

So, what will you do with this Jesus who died for you? Matthew 28:18-20; Acts 2:36-47.

Recommended Reading: Romans Chapters 3 and 6; Galatians Chapter 3; 1 Peter 3:20-21.

Happy reading and happy trails to you!

~Mr. Gray Eagle

173RD FIGHTER WING TO CONDUCT NIGHT FLYING OPERATIONS THIS WEEK

December 13, 2020
173rd Fighter Wing

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. – The 173rd Fighter Wing will conduct night flying operations starting Monday, December 14 through Friday, December 18. Operations will take place between approximately 4:00 PM through 8:00 PM

Night flying is one part of the course curriculum for F-15C Eagle student pilots at Kingsley Field, the premiere F-15C schoolhouse for the United States Air Force.

The majority of the training will occur in the military operating airspace to the northeast of Lakeview where the pilots can fly without lights. However, the local community will most likely hear the jets during take-offs and approaches to and from Kingsley Field. Take-offs will occur after sundown and the jets will return approximately an hour-and-a-half later.

"Whether defending the homeland or deployed in contingency operations, F-15 pilots must be proficient at night flying," said Col. Jeff Edwards, 173rd Fighter Wing Commander. "Night flying training includes the full spectrum of skills needed to be a combat-ready F-15 pilot."

Community members may contact the wing's public affairs office at 541-885-6677 to express any concerns they have during this time.
