THE HIDDEN HISTORY OF VALENTINES DAY

PUBLISHED BY PERMISSION OF UNLV

Pets, spouses, co-workers, friends, classmates: They're all in line to be on the receiving end of another record year for Valentine's Day spending, says a new survey by the National Retail Federation.

But as Americans strive to return to the good old days of romance, one UNLV history professor says they never actually existed.

"People love the idea that there were these wonderful eras before our own time when people celebrated Valentine's Day in the most authentic way," says Elizabeth Nelson, a 19th-century pop culture expert, who began researching Valentine's Day three decades ago and literally wrote the book on marketing the holiday. "But there was always this long and complicated history about Valentine's Day and people actually thought that it was too commercial and insincere from the very beginning."

We sat down with Nelson to get a handle on the history behind the holiday and the ways advertising, consumerism, and social media have changed the way we celebrate.

Popular lore says that in 5th century A.D., there was a St. Valentine who was imprisoned for some transgression. The myth says the jailer's daughter took pity, brought him food, and tried to save him. The incarcerated man sent her a note of thanks, signing it: "From your Valentine."

The story falls apart on multiple historical levels — it seems unlikely that the jailer's daughter would have been literate or that Valentine could've gotten paper and pen in a jail cell. But historians argue that — like Christmas, Easter, and many other modern holidays — Christians in the past tended to link saint holidays with pagan celebrations to help solidify conversion because people didn't want to give up the ways in which they lived their lives. Blending these holidays allowed revelers to keep observing rituals from centuries ago. Over time, the original intent was forgotten. A man festival called Lupercalia, celebrating fertility, that might have influenced the celebration of Valentine's Day. While we now celebrate Valentine's Day in February, in the Middle Ages, Chaucer, in "The Canterbury Tales," describes the holiday as occurring in May with imagery of springtime, birds, and budding flowers — which makes sense if linked to a Roman holiday centered on fertility.

What's more, there are several saints throughout history named Valentine. But none of them are patron saints of love.

Valentine's Day is mostly only celebrated in the United States and Britain. Before the 18th century, it was about exchanging gifts — gloves and spoons were traditional — and being someone's valentine for a whole year.

It sometimes served as a precursor to betrothal.

There are some interesting stories circulating about why it's not as popular overseas. Legend has it that in France, women who were rejected by their desired valentine would burn those men in effigy in a bonfire, causing a riotous ruckus — so allegedly, the government outlawed Valentine's Day in the early 19th century.

In England, there was a practice called "valentining," where kids would go door to door asking for treats, similar to Halloween. However, over time, these public celebrations got out of hand and sometimes devolved into violence and mob action. So the proper, genteel middle class opted instead to change the focus from human interaction to the less dangerous exchange of cards.

In the 1840s, Valentine's Day took off in the U.S. as increased paper production and printing presses lowered costs and increased the number of pre-printed cards that people could exchange that featured fancy lace, pictures, and other decorations. And sometimes celebrants copied pre-written poems out of books called "valentine writers" that featured bawdy sexual innuendo. My favorite metaphor: grating someone's nutmeg.

Congressman Bentz Appointed to the House Natural Resources Committee

WASHINGTON, DC – Congressman Cliff Bentz (R-Oregon) has been selected to serve on the House Natural Resources Committee – a committee well-suited to Oregon's vast Second Congressional District and one which will provide Bentz the opportunity to apply his unique knowledge of water, energy, carbon, forests, minerals, and federal land management.

"I am honored to have been appointed to the House Natural Resources Committee," said Congressman Bentz. "Membership on this committee, combined with my previous experience as a water rights attorney, rancher, member of the Oregon Water Resource Commission, and member of Oregon State Legislature, will help me advocate for improved management and more balanced use of our federal lands, forests, and water. I will continue to focus on our communities hardest hit by natural disasters – especially those in southern Oregon struggling to rebuild after devastating wildfires. Also, given the recent exposure of our dangerous supply chain dependence on countries like China, this committee can protect and preserve our nation's access to rare earth minerals on federal lands."

"Oregon has an incredibly diverse array of public lands and resources, and I know Congressman Bentz will bring that important perspective and background to the Natural Resources Committee," said the Committee's Ranking Member, Bruce Westerman (R-Ark). "I'm really looking forward to getting to know him better as we work together on our shared goals of conservation and environmental stewardship. Welcome to the team!"

The House Natural Resources Committee oversees a number of important matters including federal lands, wildlife, water, energy and mineral resources, oversight and investigations, and affairs with indigenous peoples.

One of earliest American valentine businesses was run by Esther Howland in Worcester, Mass. She was the daughter of an insurance agent who ran a stationery store. She asked her father to import fancy paper, lace, and other decor from England to make valentines to sell. She employed female friends of the family, and asked her brothers to share sample valentines during their work trips as traveling salesmen. Esther received many orders and created a successful business during the 1850s and 1860s. Her story is quite amazing because we don't think of women as running businesses in the 19th century.

Hallmark was founded in 1911, and technology made it possible to produce valentines in color and with various textures even more inexpensively than before. So, it's really in the beginning of the 20th century that Valentine's Day becomes part of a general movement to turn holidays into opportunities for selling things from candy to flowers to magazine advertisements. Valentine's Day began to center more on children than before. People began exchanging valentines in school. Hallmark played a big role in marketing it to elementary students, shifting the focus to the competitive collecting of the most valentines rather than a single sincere one.

Initially, it was about having one valentine throughout the year and possibly becoming betrothed. But it evolved in the

LaPine Community HEALTH CENTER

LA PINE COMMUNITY HEALTH CENTER RECEIVES THE MODERNA COVID-19 VACCINE

To Administer to Patients 75 and Older

LA PINE, Oregon, January 27th — La Pine Community Health Center (LCHC), a nonprofit Community Health Center, received approval from the Oregon Health Authority to be a COVID-19 vaccination site—the first, and currently the only organization in the South County area to receive such approval. On January 13th, LCHC received their first allocation of the Moderna COVID-19 Vaccine, enough to administer to their employees as part of Phase 1a.

The leadership team at LCHC quickly and efficiently created a vaccination plan knowing that whether it be days or weeks away, the health center would receive doses of the vaccine to begin administering to patients.

On January 26th, LCHC received 250 doses of the Moderna COVID-19 Vaccine from Deschutes County and began administering to eligible patients on January 27th.

“Though the vaccine is currently available in more quantity at the Deschutes County Fair & Expo Center in Redmond, we know that many individuals in our community either do not have reliable transportation or are simply not comfortable traveling that distance—especially in the winter months,” stated Charla DeHate, CEO.

“We have been determined from the beginning that our patients will have local and timely access to the vaccine and our team is working closely with Deschutes County Health Officials to make that happen.”

19th century, sparking questions about the sincerity of exchanging pre-printed cards and the sanity of spending exorbitant amounts of money on them.

Valentine's Day and the exchange of valentines were a way that people in the emerging middle class in the 19th century negotiated that complicated relationship between romantic love and the economic reality of marriage. You could marry someone for love, but you still had to marry someone for love who could support you because most middle-class women didn't work. So, it was dangerous just to fall in love with people without knowing anything about them. The celebration of Valentine's Day became a way for people to test the uncomfortable juxtapositions of what love and marriage should be and the reality of what was actually possible. So, not so different from today.

It is likely that Facebook and other social media have made Valentine's Day more viral and more toxic, but the framework was already there. It's not so much that social media really changed the scrutiny that was already at the core of Valentine's Day; it just created a whole new possibility for performing the act of Valentine's Day. Because social media sites are all about performing your imagined best self, the level of scrutiny on how you celebrate Valentine's Day or what you got for Valentine's day is ratcheted up exponentially. It is not just about the people in your office or in your neighborhood. Everybody in your world sees whether your sweetie did right by you or not, or vice versa.

OBITUARY

Vernon Douglas Houston

March 20, 1932 -
January 17, 2021

Vernon Douglas "Doug" Houston, age 88, went to his eternal home on January 17, 2021, in his home near Christmas Valley. Remaining on this side of the veil are his loving wife of 55 years, Lee, daughters Terri Wall and Darcy Thompson, brother Wes Houston, numerous grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. Doug was the oldest son of Raymond and Virgie (Taylor) Houston. He was born in Bend, Oregon on March 20, 1932.

Doug's parents and sisters, Lou Wanna Combs, Virginia Morehouse (who was born on his birthday), and Nita Nelson preceded him in death.

Doug was well known for his generosity of his time, resources plus more than the willingness to stop everything and help with any project. He was a true agriculturist. He loved the land.

He was a mighty fine cowboy, farmer, rancher, mechanic, and general all-around good hand and neighbor.

Doug grew up in Paisley, Oregon attending school there. He played basketball as all young men in those days did. He was a pilot and for a while owned his own Piper Cherokee airplane.

He and Lee were a team who farmed and sold the hay from their ranch. They bought the land, cleared the land, planted and harvested top quality alfalfa together. Then trucked the hay to the buyers.

Doug was also known as The Cowboy Quilter. His quilts were a 'hot' and much loved item. He donated many quilts to his infusion clinic as well as family and friends. His quilts generally had an animal theme.

Over the years Doug and Lee welcomed young people who needed a place to live, into their home. They raised these youngsters and considered them their own family.

Doug served in the United States Army at Fort Lewis, Washington during the Korean War.

There will be no funeral at his request. A memorial service is planned for a later date. Donations can be sent to North Lake EMS, POB 423, Christmas Valley, Oregon 97641

Arrangements are being handled by Desert Rose Funeral Chapel. Condolences may be expressed, or the guest book signed online at www.desertrosefuneralchapel.com

Public Service Announcement from La Pine Community Health Center

COVID VACCINES FOR LAKE COUNTY RESIDENTS

La Pine Community Health Center (LCHC) has been approved to receive and administer the Moderna COVID-19 vaccine. Due to distribution and handling regulations, the La Pine location on Huntington Rd. will be the only site approved for administering the vaccine, so Lake County residents who are established patients of LCHC will need to go to La Pine to receive their vaccine. Residents who are not established patients of LCHC will need to call their primary care provider or the Lake County Health Department for information on when and where they can receive their vaccine.

The timeline of when LCHC can expect to receive a shipment of the vaccine continues to change, but the leadership team at LCHC is working diligently to develop a plan for how to roll out vaccines upon their arrival. This plan will follow the Oregon Health Authority (OHA) guidelines regarding the eligible groups. Initial scheduling discussion suggests that LCHC staff will contact patients directly to schedule an appointment, and those who call LCHC seeking vaccination will be transferred to a voicemail for a return call from a clinical staff member—this will ensure that patients meet vaccination requirements prior to placing them on the schedule.

- It is IMPERATIVE that patients keep their appointments. Appointments will be required to maximize available dosages of each vial opened. Since opened vials cannot be stored, any unused doses must be discarded. Supplies are limited so please support the health center's efforts to vaccinate all patients seeking vaccination by committing to your appointment time.
- If you have questions about efficacy or safety of the vaccine please call 541-536-3435. Leave a voicemail and a member from the clinical team will return your call to answer questions about safety, efficacy, and risk factors in vaccination.
- Vaccination is only one piece of the battle. Once you are vaccinated, it is still recommended that you continue to follow CDC guidelines which include wearing masks and maintaining physical distance in public places and gatherings and washing or sanitizing your hands regularly. Also remember to stay home if you are ill or suspect you have been exposed to someone confirmed to have COVID-19.
- Check the La Pine Community Health Center Facebook page or website for updates on vaccine availability. Notices will be posted when vaccines arrive and will have information about how patients can be screened and scheduled for vaccination.

It has been a difficult, heartbreaking undertaking just getting through the many months of altered and restricted living. We are SO close to better days and you can help by adhering to CDC recommendations, including vaccination.

Exotic Plants

Jamaica Quassia : Picrasma exelsa (Swartz)

Planch. Quassia Family : simaroubaceae

No insect pests ever attack the tall, graceful Jamaica Quassia Tree. The whole plant -and especially the whitish wood- is permeated by an extremely bitter resin whose major chemical constituent, a bitter compound called quassin, is an effective natural insecticide. It serves mankind in other ways, to, both medicinally and non medicinally.

The ash like tree itself, native to Jamaica and several other West Indian, islands, grows to a height of 45 to 60 feet. It has pinnately compound leaves with many pointed leaflets, and it bears attractive clusters of small rose-colored flowers. The wood was long used by West Indians to make quassia cups, which they filled with water and allowed to stand undisturbed for a tie. Then, when the resin tinged water was needed as a tonic to settle an upset stomach, to sharpen an appetite, or to combat a fever, they drank it. Stronger mixtures, made by chipping the wood fine and soaking it in water, were used in enemas to destroy parasitic thread worms and in lotions to get rid of body lice.

The extracted quassin, about 10 times as bitter as quinine, has been used in medicinal preparations for many of the same purposes. It stimulates production of stomach secretions, as well as those of the liver, kidneys, gall bladder, and intestines, and so it is both a laxative and an aid to a flagging appetite. Another extract of the resin, quassamarin, has been reported by researchers to be of possible value in the fight against leukemia.

Quassin is also popular as a bitter constituent of tonic wines, aperitifs, and liqueurs; of marmalade, candies, and baked goods, and of frozen dairy desserts and gelatin puddings. The wood chips, roasted and ground to a powder, have served as substitute for hops in brewing beer and ale.

As a pesticide, it is one of the safest for home gardens as it kills many pests while sparing beneficial insects as ladybird beetles and bees. As it repels most insects, the flowers attract honeybees but the honey they make from it is inedible.

Organic gardeners get bags of the wood chips, then soak them in water to get the quassin out, then spray the mixture on plants to rid them of aphids, mealybugs, sawflies, thrips, leafhoppers, caterpillars, and even slugs. It is also sprayed on fruit trees to discourage hungry birds.
