While Irish Americans are now proud to showcase their heritage, the Irish were not always celebrated by fellow Americans.

Beginning in 1845, a devastating potato blight caused widespread hunger throughout Ireland. While approximately 1 million perished, another 2 million abandoned their land in the largest-single population movement of the 19th century. Most of the exiles—nearly a quarter of the Irish nation—came to the shores of the United States. Once they arrived, the Irish refugees were looked down upon as disease-ridden, unskilled and a drain on welfare budgets.

With immigration controls left primarily to the states and cities, the Irish poured through a porous border. In Boston, a city of a little more than 100,000 people saw 37,000 Irish arrive in the matter of a few years. Naturally, it was difficult to integrate the newcomers in such sheer numbers. The Irish in Boston were for a long time “fated to remain a massive lump in the community, undigested, indigestible,” according to historian Oscar Handlin, author of “Boston’s Immigrants, 1790-1880: A Study in Acculturation.”

The Irish filled the most menial and dangerous jobs, often at low pay. They cut canals. They dug trenches for water and sewer pipes. They laid rail lines. They cleaned houses. They slaved in textile mills. They worked as stevedores, stable workers and blacksmiths. Not only did working-class Americans see the cheaper laborers taking their jobs, some of the Irish refugees even took up arms against their new homeland during the Mexican-American War. Drawn in part by higher wages and a common faith with the Mexicans, some members of the St. Patrick's Battalion had deserted the U.S. Army after encountering ill-treatment by their bigoted commanders and fought with the enemy. After their capture, 50 members of the “San Patricios” were executed by the U.S. Army for their treasonous decisions.

The discrimination faced by the famine refugees was not subtle or insidious. It was right there in black and white, in newspaper classified advertisements that blared “No Irish Need Apply.” The image of the simian Irishman, imported from Victorian England, was given new life by the pens of illustrators such as Thomas Nast that dripped with prejudice as they sketched Celtic ape-men with sloping foreheads and monstrous appearances.

Ironically today, every March 17, the United States becomes an emerald country for a day.

Americans wear green clothes and quaff green beer. Green milkshakes, bagels and grits appear on menus. In a leprechaun-worthy shenanigan, Chicago even dyes its river green.

Revelers from coast to coast celebrate all things Irish by hoisting pints of Guinness and cheering bagpipers, step dancers and marching bands parading through city streets. These familiar annual traditions weren't imported from Ireland, however. They were made in America.

Boston has long staked claim to the first St. Patrick's Day celebration in the American colonies. On March 17, 1737, more than two dozen Presbyterians who emigrated from the north of Ireland gathered to honor St. Patrick and form the Charitable Irish Society to assist distressed Irishmen in the city. The oldest Irish organization in North America still holds an annual dinner every St. Patrick's Day.

The meal that became a St. Patrick's Day staple across the country—corned beef and cabbage—was an American innovation. While ham and cabbage were eaten in Ireland, corned beef offered a cheaper substitute for impoverished immigrants. Irish-Americans living in the slums of lower Manhattan in the late 19th century and early 20th, purchased leftover corned beef from ships returning from the tea trade in China. The Irish would boil the beef three times—the last time with cabbage—to remove some of the brine.

Ernest Clifford Andrews, known to friends and loved ones as "Cliff", went to his forever home April 17, 2019 after a very short, but courageous battle with brain cancer. He was only 69.

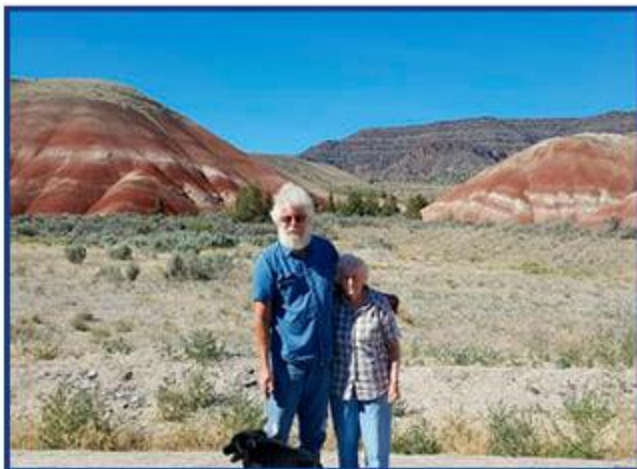

Born on January 15, 1951 in North Bend, Oregon to Aleine and Ernest Andrews, Cliff joined two older sisters and eventually four more siblings. He left them with many fond memories of his unwavering brotherly patience and love.

Upon graduating from Oak Harbor High School, Cliff joined the Navy in December 1970. While enlisted he served in the "CB's" and then in Vietnam. During his service he earned a National Defense Service medal, Vietnam Service medal, Vietnam Campaign medal, Vietnam Civil Action Unit Citation and a Combat Action ribbon. Cliff left the Navy in December 1972 to embark on much gentler adventures.

Cliff made the drive from Florida to Oregon and later drove the Alcan Highway with his brothers to Alaska; fishing and working along the way. An experience he recounted as being one of the fondest of his life.

As an avid outdoorsman, he enjoyed hunting, fishing, gardening, cooking and wood working and always with his faithful pups by his side. Cliff was an accomplished mechanic and carpenter with a sharp mind and a keen eye. A true perfectionist, he took pride in his craftsmanship.

BROTHER AND MOM

Cliff spent time operating machinery for Publisher Paper, driving truck for K & D Sand and Gravel in Salem, the Lake County Road Department and eventually for the Sam Dinsdale Farm in Silver Lake, Oregon. When his father got sick, Cliff gave his life to caring for his parents. After his father passed, he was devoted to his mother Aleine. His gentle, nurturing nature and his love for his mama was unmatched.

Cliff's cancer took everyone by surprise. He was healthy, active and too young to go. While fighting his courageous battle, Cliff moved from his home in Christmas Valley to his brother and sister-in-law's house in Boise, Idaho. The move allowed around the clock care and access to VA and other medical resources. The family would like to give an extra special thank you to his brother, Al, and sister in law, Sheri, for giving Cliff the same love and care that he had always given to others. "Your kindness and love gave our brother much peace during his final days and we will forever be grateful." Cliff will always be remembered as a gentle soul who made friends everywhere he went. He liked to tell a story of a hike up in the Connley Hills out of Silver Lake, Oregon when he stopped to take a rest and looked up to find himself surrounded by a herd of Elk. He described the event as a surreal moment, which for him was one of the most peaceful of his life. We think it's safe to say, that was a glimpse into Heaven for Cliff and that he's propped up against that tree again looking down on the rest of us with his heart full of love.

Cliff is preceded in death by his father Ernest, and great-great nephew Mason Jordan.

Aleine Ruth Andrews, age 94, passed peacefully at her home on January 20, 2021 with her children by her side.

Aleine was born on February 25, 1926 in Sentinel Butte, North Dakota to Alfred and Ruth Youngblood. Soon after, the family settled in Salem, Oregon where unfortunately, Aleine lost her mother when she was just 2 years old. She and her older brother stayed with an uncle and aunt until their father remarried and they were able to reunite with him and their new step-mother, Gladys. They were later joined by a brother Jerry in 1930 and a sister Joyce in 1947.

On June 29, 1947, Aleine married Ernest Fredrick Andrews. The couple spent 58 years together before Ernest passed in 2005. Ernest had a daughter and together they had 6 more children.

As a road mechanic building the I-5 corridor, Ernest's work took the family to many new places. While living in Oak Harbor, Washington, Aleine enjoyed both bowling and golfing and often bowled 200+ games during her league days. She proudly showed off her league pins and trophies.

In 1976, the family moved to an inherited piece of property about 20 miles from the small town of Christmas Valley, Oregon. Aleine claims to have left heel marks in the pavement from being dragged "kicking and screaming" (her words) the whole way to the 'sinks'. Yet, despite the many challenges of living off grid, they settled, and Ernest ran their small farm then worked as an Electrician building and repairing many pivots for the local farmers. Aleine soon learned to love the desert and call it her home. They eventually moved into the town of Christmas Valley where Aleine became a friendly face around town and on the golf course. She enjoyed traveling the back roads of Lake County and traveling to Hawaii, North Dakota, the Redwoods and any place to see her family.

Aleine loved reading her bible and praying for others. She enjoyed spending time with family, cracking jokes and always while wearing a smile on her beautiful face. Aleine filled many hollow legs with her 5-star pancakes. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Aleine is survived by her brother Jerry and her sister Joyce; step-daughter Shirley Gibson and children Beverley Phillips of Christmas Valley; Patricia Ellis of Christmas Valley; Al Andrews of Boise; Richard Andrews of Lebanon and Debbie Hevern of Klamath Falls. She leaves behind 15 grandchildren, 28 great grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren. She also leaves behind many family members and friends who will greatly miss her.

Aleine is preceded in death by her parents Alfred and Ruth, stepmother Gladys, older brother Alfred, husband Ernest, son Clifford and great-great grandson Mason Jordan.

Both Aleine and Cliff were laid to rest at the family cemetery in Salem, Oregon following a combined Memorial Service.

ST. PATTY'S DAY FUN FACTS

- Shamrocks are the national flower/emblem of Ireland.
- The color of St. Patrick's Day was originally blue.
- Legend says that each leaf of the clover has a meaning: Hope, Faith, Love and Luck.
- 1962 marked the first time Chicago dyed their river green for St. Patrick's Day.
- Guinness is one of the most popular drinks on St. Patrick's Day.
- Shamrock shakes are also very popular (and tasty!)
- The real St. Patrick wasn't Irish. He was born in Britain around A.D. 390 to an aristocratic Christian family.
- There are 34.7 million U.S. residents with Irish ancestry. This number is more than seven times the population of Ireland itself.

Exotic Plants

Khella/Ammi visnaga (L.) Lamk.

Carrot Family - umbelliferae

The Arabs discovered centuries ago that the small, grayish, egg-shaped, aromatic fruits of the Khella could ease a multitude of ailments, including the stabbing pain of angina pectoris, caused by a reduction in the flow of blood to the heart. Khellin, the substance in the fruits that accomplishes this feat, is described by scientists today as a selective coronary vasodilator. That is, it expands only the arteries that feed the heart, giving quick relief when angina is caused by constricted partly blocked coronary arteries.

Khellin is also a bronchodilator, expanding the bronchi, or breathing tubes that funnel air from the throat to the lungs. Hence, as the ancient Arabs knew, it can save the life of someone who is suffocating from terrifying bronchial spasms of asthma or severe allergies. Extracts of the fruits act as a diuretic as well, increasing the flow of urine and getting rid of excess body fluids. The same extracts have also been used to ease the pain of kidney stones as they scrape through the ureter—the small tube that leads from the kidney to the urinary bladder.

Unfortunately, Khellin is not without its side effects. It was found to have cumulative toxic ity. Its active principles build up in the body when taken over a period of time, this build up can cause nausea and vomiting. For this reason the drug is no longer used in the United States. However, it is still used by doctors in the regions around the Mediterranean Sea where it originated and where it grows in profusion.

Like its relative Queen Anne's Lace, the 2-foot tall Khella plant has finely cut, ferny leaves. Each of its straight flower stalks is topped by a rounded cluster of countless tiny white flowers. Those clusters-called umbels, because their stalks radiate from a central point like the ribs of an umbrella—are themselves made up of smaller umbels. After the flowers have dried and the seeds have matured, the small stocks of the major umbels stiffen and grow hard; this gives that plant yet one more useful function, which is expressed in a name by which it is commonly known among Arabs: the toothpick plant.
