Community Development Block Grant Funds for the Christmas Valley Water District and the Lake County Library - Christmas Valley Branch Dependent on Public Survey

by Danielle Jester
Lake County Examiner
Article used with permission.

Significant funding could come to the Christmas Valley water and library districts if Lake County is able to apply for community development block grant (CDBG) funding, but first, the County must obtain income survey results from CV residents in or near those districts. To qualify for CDBG funding, the County must show through a demographic survey that at least 51% of those residents are low income.

The County is working with Portland State University Regional Research Institute for Human Services (RRI), based in Portland, to distribute demographic surveys to households in the Christmas Valley area. At least 203 completed surveys from residents in the CV Water District area and at least 300 completed surveys from residents within a 10-mile radius of the CV Library must be obtained.

RRI is consulting with Lake County and Business Oregon to develop methodology for the income survey.

The Commissioners on Wednesday, May 5 approved using $10,100 from the County's economic development fund to pay for costs related to the survey — including consultation and project oversight, sample preparation and management, data collection and analysis, and preparation of a final report.

Melanie Lasley, administrative assistant for the County Commissioners, said it is critical that CV residents respond to the survey so that the County can apply for the funding for the water and library districts.

"The Christmas Valley Water District is in such disrepair," she noted during the May 5 Commissioners meeting.

If residents don't respond to the survey, she stressed, they will automatically be counted as having enough income.

Once the survey is complete, it is good for five years.

The survey is completely random and anonymous. A household will receive a letter for the first campaign; each survey has a number that does not directly correlate to the resident's name. The surveys will not be used by any other government entity outside of the CDBG purposes and will not be sent to the U.S. Census. "It's only for this one particular application," Lasley said.

Surveying the water and library districts together saves money and time, Commissioner James Williams noted.

There are only three questions on the survey and the income question simply asks respondents to select their income range — there are several choices.

The water and library districts are helping to spread the word to CV residents about the survey, and there will also be an article in the Desert Whispers to explain the process, Lasley said.

Surveys are expected to be sent out by the end of May. If not enough residents respond by mail, she noted, then a door-to-door campaign will begin in two months.

If the County ultimately obtains the CDBG funding, it will bring in $2.5 million for the CV Water District. While that amount is just a portion of what the water district needs, Lasley said, it is a step in the right direction.

MEMORIAL DAY

REMEMBER & HONOR

Leonard William "Wild Bill" Maahs or "Moss, like Moss on a log" October 20, 1938 - April 20, 2021

What can I say Bill, Billy, Daddy, or the 800 lb. Gorilla, whatever you knew him by our dad was the best dad any kid could ever ask for. He was born in Julesburg, Colorado and raised on a wheat farm then went to dairying. He was the first to go to college in his family attending OSU. He has 4 daughters: Penni carmen, Rachel Wilson, Cheryl Sandovall, and Stacey Lowers. He has 7 granddaughters and 2 grandsons: 2 great grandchildren. Now I could tell you his life history and build a typical memorial; how Dad was a farmer and hay broker, or I could carry on his gift of story telling and tell you he was the "One Hooked Hay Hauler" and "The fastest hand loader in the west!" I choose to share him the way I would want you to remember him.

Daddy smelled like grease and hay chaff. His cheeks were rosy and yes, he had arms so big he had to cut the arm pits out of white tee shirts for "Air conditioning!" He loved music but couldn't sing a lick - he howled. We had a gigantic living Daddy. We would do the stroll, the Some nights it was used for "Buck-Flying sabbotch" was employed; a bull after you'd been rug burned beacross the carpet by daddy's big Bill was an all star athlete and outside or, much to our mother's balls, sliders, sinkers, spit balls and tear the head off any batter. I'd pitch pretending his hand was on fire and one!" He invented the slam dunk gym." On a few pieces of plywood barn, we would go 2 on one against to learn size didn't matter, wisdom college, something he learned at an who insisted on fighting him behind to see who could wip me, but they couldn't and then I was a brother to them, they wouldn't let anyone bother me." So he taught us to box, a euphemism for life really. "Keep your arms up, duck and jab left "click" (he'd sound with his tongue) right hook!" He never lost a fight. Football? Well, we learned to throw, snap, punt and catch. We learned the strategies and how to out run each other, but when I wanted to play in high school he flat said, "too rough Rach, it's for the boys."

played for the Bend Bucks. We'd go bane, inside and he'd throw, curve a special Maahs secret pitch sure to a ball to his bare hand and he'd catch say "Ahh Rach, that was a good you know; he could "Jump out of the and an old hoop connected to the Dad. He never just let us win. We had and practice did. He was a boxer in early age from all those Indian kids the school house in Idaho. "They had

We were Daddy's princesses Putting us in pageants and dressing us up. He always said "You girls have grace and poise; your beautiful like your mother." We were clumsy and loud and preferred motorcycles and mud pies. We danced Ballet and had piano lessons. Ladies must play tennis, paint, sing, and ride flat seat. Somehow we were to be Olympic runners and or/ gymnasts for some reason! HA HA!! He put us through etiquette classes and versed us in poetry and the classics. All of this in trade for just doing our best, get along with people, love the Lord, help our mother, share our good fortune with others, and we weren't to cut our hair. No matter how we failed we were, in his eyes, nothing less than perfect.

Dad knew Santa personally and must have traded work on his sleigh for extra presents! Every Christmas eve was filled with bumps in the night, the tinkle of bells and flashes of red and white lights! Come Christmas morning it was every child's fantasy: candy from the far reaches of the earth, sparkles and the scent of spiced mystery! Glimmering in the darkness an abundance of gifts wrapped in the most beauti ful ways and the most unbelievable of requests come true! One year there was a 4 wheeler in our living room with matching red sparkly helmets! On the roof: sleigh and reindeer tracks! Magic lived in Daddy. He took us on great adventures to the painted hills seeking a personal discovery of dino bones. We hunted the desert for the wild red stallion he would someday train with sugar cubes. Canada for big foot, and every lake he could find for the never caught, famed, and legendary giant trout: by God he was gonna catch it! And for the family, hours upon hours scouring French Glenn for the notorious Frenchy Montero. He was a cowboy at heart and loved rodeo, deep inside he always wanted to be a cowboy or mountain man.

Dad loved breaking the rules, always pushing the limit. He lost his go cart license at Malibu race track for rubbing and passing dangerously. He would always try to trot off on his horse when we went on dude string rides; always threatened he would loose his riding privileges. When on fair rides that spun, he would start spinning them. We wanted off before the ride ever began! He'd just throw his head back laughing and slow for a bit, but as soon as that ride started he'd grab a hold of the wheel with his huge hands and all we could do is burrow under his arms. If there was a rule to bend or an authority to taunt Dad would force it. He knew every scales and had a back way around each one; and if we had to wait them out, we'd park the truck at the Woodburn race track and watch drag races for a few hours!! HA HA HAAAA! What a devil!

Daddy was known for drag racing back in his day and would take his farming wages and order cars out of the catalogues and hybrid the engines. He had the fastest cars from Eugene to McMinnville and as legend has it, also never took anyone's car. He'd just drive on through the finish and gut for a girl dance. If she who wanted to couldn't dance the road!" He double clutch brake and gas the peddle with float around curves. Every trip with Dad was 90 or bet-stop light was a some young line in his piece. He knew he no one would had them, and ever steal that truck because it looked like a family of rats lived in it, com-plete with grass growing out the back. The secret was the "Blue Racer" Cam shaft. Sure enough it was.

I could write a book about our dad. He covered all the bases. No kid could have ever wanted for a more fun, compassionate, providing and admiring father. He was wise when the chips fell and would take us up in love and help us through it in forgiveness and grace. I hope his stories, strength, and huge heart will forever live on in us.

Services are to be held at Miller Lake Oregon and a Memorial Service will be held in Christmas Valley dates and times to be determined. Please contact Praise the Lord Fellowship at 541-576-3079 for details.

When my sister called to tell me the news, she said "No more big hands." I looked down at my own abnormally large hands and just wept. Daddy used his hands to help people. He always said "I don't need a thing, but they do." He always wanted to help and did anyone he found in need. Money was meant for helping not for keeping, and he worked damn hard to do just that.

In closing our Dad found the people of this valley to be his most true friends and, of many, family. He said the "best ol' boys" lived down here and he deeply wanted to buy a farm and be closer to it all. I know there will be many of you I have not had the time to personally reach out to, forgive me. The one thing I was certain Dad wanted of me was to tell you how much he enjoyed and even loved each of you. He never said a harsh word of anyone even when folks got hot over him taking out a fence or bidding a stack to low he just did his best to make it right and chuckled through the cursing. HA HA!

Donations in his honor to North Lake School Art Department would make him so happy as those kids are in most need of funding and Dad would want all kids to have an opportunity to follow the Lords calling in their life.

~ In Love,

Rachel Wilson

Home Remedies Red Onions

I used to get yearly colds and flu until I did some research on onions and found out they are a natural antibiotic. When I was a child, my mother would have onions all the time pretty much in everything. If you caught cold, she used them on your chest.

They would break fevers and expel mucus from your chest. As I got older I didn't use them much until I talked to my Grandma. She informed me "that is why you get sick!"

She told me if you don't want to take nasty medicine, cut up a red onion in wedges and put a wedge in every room of your house.

onions will absorb bacteria and you won't get sick. When they dry completely up - burn them and replace them. They do not smell up the house. I started doing this several years ago and have not caught colds or flu since. So every time I need an onion to cook with, I get red ones and if I don't use it all, I put the remainder in a room. You should try it as it really does work.

Garlic is also a natural antibiotic and if you can handle eating a clove once in a while you will stay healthier.

Love and good health!

~ Linda

Red Onion and Honey Remedy for Cough

- Slice 2 medium size onions evenly and place it on the base of the jar.
- Then pour 1 cup of raw honey over the onion slices.
- Cover the jar with its tight lid and keep it aside for 9 hours or overnight.

Take 1 teaspoon of this syrup to get relief from a cough.

Repeat it regularly for 3 - 4 times a day until you get relief from coughing and its symptoms.

For children: Give 1 teaspoon of this cough syrup to your child until they get relief from coughing.

Note:

You can also dice a large onion into small pieces and extract its juice using a food mill or metal sieve with a spoon over a large bowl and mix equal part of honey to onion juice.

Store it in a jar with tight lid for a few hours and then swallow 1 teaspoon of this cough syrup to alleviate coughing.
