Herbal Supplement : Gurmar (gymnema)

Hindi name - destroyer of sugar. Medicinal part is the leaf. Reduces or eliminated the ability to perceive sweetness (taste), antibiotic properties, anti-inflammatory.

Ayurvedic medicine for diabetes, constipation, digestive complaints, and for weight loss.

Shown to decrease the absorption of sugar in the intestines and may increase insulin levels. An 18 to 20 month study shows diabetes patients were able to decrease the dose of prescription diabetes meds due to reduction of blood sugar from Gurmar use. Five patients discontinued conventional prescriptions entirely and maintain a healthy blood glucose level.

Natural Medicines Comprehensive Database (NMCD) states there is research suggesting extract of Gurmar in combination with diabetic meds can moderate blood sugar levels in Type 1 and 2 diabetes, unspecific claims of Gurmars effectiveness. Herb-drug interactions: Gurmar may increase insulin levels in the body which decreases, blood sugar. Closely monitor blood sugar if using Gurmar in combination with diabetes meds or blood sugar meds because it may cause an unsafe blood sugar balance in the body.

Recommended dosage for hypoglycemic or lowering blood sugar 400 mg. per day of standard extract or 1-2 grams per day of dried leaves.

Although the use of this remedy has been shown to be effective, always check with your primary care physician before combining with prescription medication.

Gurmar taken in excess may cause hypoglycemia, therefore, diabetic patients should take this herb under close supervision and monitoring by their physician.

Voters in Lake County will have their first chance to meet Kerry McQuisten — one of candidates running to replace outgoing Oregon Gov. Kate Brown — on Tuesday, Oct. 19 at the Lakeview Elks Lodge beginning at 6 p.m.

McQuisten was elected to the Baker City Council in 2020, and was elected by the City Council to the position of mayor. She gained the national attention of conservative news sites when she led the Baker City Council in passing a resolution in early 2020 against Brown's COVID restrictions and mandates at the time. She gained a great deal of support from her efforts and was encouraged by the public to run for governor.

Easy Spider Cupcakes

Yields 24 servings

Ingredients:

- 1 (18.25 ounce) package chocolate cake mix
- 1 pound black shoestring licorice
- 1 (16 ounce) can white frosting
- 48 pieces candy corn
- 48 cinnamon red hot candies
- ¼ cup orange decorator sugar

Directions:

Step 1

Prepare cupcakes according to package directions. Let cool completely.

Step 2

Cut licorice into 3 inch sections. Working with one or two cupcakes at a time, so the frosting doesn't set before decorating, frost the cupcakes with the white frosting. Insert licorice pieces into the outer edges of the cupcakes to make the legs of the spider, 3 legs on each side (4 takes up too much space). Place two pieces of candy corn on the front of the cupcake for fangs and use two red hots as eyes. Sprinkle with decorator sugar.

Repeat with remaining cupcakes.

OREGON RECOGNIZES INDIGENOUS PEOPLE DAY

JAMIE HALE The Oregonian/OregonLive
Published: 11 October 2021

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oct. 11 might feel a little different across Oregon this year.

The second Monday in October, long celebrated as Columbus Day, will now officially be recognized as Indigenous Peoples Day in Oregon — a recognition of the Native American communities here long before Christopher Columbus set foot in the Americas.

Among tribal leaders in Oregon, the change represents overdue recognition and hope for the future, as well as a feeling that more could be done to recognize and support Indigenous communities.

Oregon has many different Indigenous communities including nine federally recognized tribes: Burns Paiute of Harney County; Confederated Tribes of Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians; Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde; Confederated Tribes of Siletz; Confederated Tribes of Umatilla Reservation; Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs; Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Indians; Coquille Indian Tribe; and Klamath Tribes.

According to the 2020 census, there are 129,081 Oregonians who identify as full or part American Indian and Alaska Native, comprising 3.1% of the state's population.

Roberta Frost, secretary of the Klamath Tribes tribal council, told The Oregonian/OregonLive that progress like this always moves in increments, and that the new Indigenous Peoples Day recognition is just one step in that process.

"At some points in our history we were almost invisible, so this is a small step forward," Frost said. "It's not everything, but it's an acknowledgement that we're still here, we still have vibrant societies."

Gail Hatcher, vice chairwoman of the Klamath Tribes tribal council, added that it's not just about the present or the past but the future as well.

"When we are recognized and seen for who we really are, and what we celebrate and why we celebrate it, that's a huge step for my grandchildren and their children," she said. "The prayer that I have is that they will always be seen from this day forward."

The Legislature overwhelmingly approved a bill declaring Oct. 11 to be Indigenous Peoples Day this spring, on a 22-7 vote in the Senate and a 50-5 vote in the House. The legislation was sponsored by the Legislature's only Indigenous lawmakers, Rep. Tawna Sanchez, D-Portland, and Rep. Teresa Alonso-Leon, D-Woodburn.

Oregon is one of 13 states to recognize the second Monday of October as Indigenous Peoples

Day, joining fellow western states California, Alaska, Arizona and New Mexico. South Dakota celebrates the day as Native American Day, and was the first day to replace Columbus Day, doing so in 1989.

"The recognition of Indigenous People's Day is one more step toward shedding a light on the history of oppression and racism in our state and country," Rep. Sanchez wrote in an email.

"We can no longer pretend that what we learned in the history books is all there is to the story. Teaching the future generations the truth will go a long way toward healing the trauma of the past."

The discussion among local and state governments to replace Columbus Day with Indigenous Peoples Day began to accelerate in 1990, at the International Conference on Discrimination Against Indigenous Populations in the Americas, sponsored by the United Nations, though governments didn't begin adopting the new holiday en masse until the 2014.

Oregon tribes said the local effort has been years in the making, with tribal officials and youth activists leading the way.

The Oregon legislation is explicit in its goal to establish Indigenous Peoples Day as an alternative to Columbus Day. Text of the leg-isolation itself begins by saying Columbus' voyage "opened the door to heinous crimes against humanity, including but not limited to the introduction of transatlantic slavery and genocidal acts against Indigenous People."

For some Indigenous Oregonians, that denouncement is particularly important.

Brigette McConville, vice chair of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs tribal council, said the replacement of Columbus Day has been a long time coming.

"It was a false celebration to begin with," she said. "When they started enacting this Indigenous day across the whole nation, I think it was good, I think it was positive, it brought up the morale of all Native people."

Robert Kentta, cultural resources director and tribal council member for the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians, said Columbus Day was never a holiday his community celebrated. The state's official recognition of the new holiday is a sign of respect that Indigenous Oregonians have long wanted, he said.

"We've had some pretty difficult times with the United States and the state of Oregon in our history," Kentta said. "The state switching from celebrating Columbus Day to Indigenous Peoples Day is a big signal to the rest of Oregonians that we're in that more collaborative and respectful time period where our Indigenous history is being considered a significant contribution to the state of Oregon."

The new holiday should be a recognition of the past, present and future of Indigenous peoples, Oregon tribal officials said — acknowledging the wrongs of the past, recognizing that Indig-

and to make sure that those harms that happened in the past are never perpetuated in the future," Hernandez said. "Every culture and every community has a very unique past, and I think it's about holding each other up when times are hard and moving forward and taking that step together."

For all the hope and appreciation, however, some disaffection remains.

Armand Minthorn, board of trustees member of the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation, said state officials have more work to do to mend relationships with Oregon's Indigenous communities, including better and more frequent communication, as well as more collaboration, especially on public lands.

"For the State to recognize Indigenous Peoples Day is one thing — it's another thing for them to walk their talk," he said in a written statement.

"As Natives, we don't really celebrate this day. Because every day is Indigenous People's Day for us," Minthorn said. "As long as we continue to recognize our ancestors, we recognize our traditional ways and language, things will continue to be the same. It would be of great benefit for others to help us with that. Because we live side by side and share the same resources, why can't we work side by side?"

enous communities are still here, and working together for a better future.

Stacia Hernandez, chief of staff to the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde tribal council, said it's important not just for the different tribes to band together, but for all cultures in Oregon to support one another as well — no matter the conflicts of the past. To her, that's part of the great potential for Indigenous Peoples Day.

"It's about recognizing the harms that have occurred, but growing from those and learning how to communicate with one another

In Loving Memory Olga Caudillo Bumpass

October 5, 1962 ~ August 20, 2021

Lebanon – Olga Caudillo Bumpass passed away on August 20, 2021 after battling a serious illness. She was 58 years old. She was born on October 5, 1962 in Shelby, MS to Raul and Eugenia Caudillo. She completed high school in Arvin California and later married Keith Bumpass in Bakersfield, CA on July 25, 1992. The couple moved to Lebanon, OR and Olga became a homemaker and then mother with the birth of their daughter Meresa in 1994. In 1997 the couple moved to Christmas Valley, OR where they lived for 15 years before returning to Lebanon in 2012.

Olga was known for her smile, contagious laughter, and willingness to help wherever she saw the need. Olga's hobbies included playing Klondike and Solitaire, gardening, making beautiful pinatas, reading and making people happy.

She is survived by her husband: Keith Bumpass of Lebanon; her daughter: Meresa Bumpass of Lebanon; brothers: Tony Caudillo of Ridgecrest, CA; Thomas Caudillo of Arvin, CA; and a sister: Elizabeth Caudillo also of Arvin.

Due to the current Covid outbreak, a memorial service will be held at Providence Pioneer Church at a later date that is yet to be determined.

The best defense against serious illness is preventive health maintenance.

An established relationship with your primary care provider along with regular preventive care such as annual wellness exams, screenings, and routine follow ups for chronic conditions, will greatly improve your chances of avoiding serious illness.

I O N E

From Ancient Greek ἰον (ion) meaning "violet flower". This was the name of a sea nymph in Greek mythology.

Perhaps this explains our friend and neighbor's love of fish. For over 20 years Ione Maple has cultivated her hobby of raising Butterfly and Doitsu Koi and Goldfish (Pond Comets, Shubunkins and Wakins) in a couple of small ponds that she and her husband, Dan, have built in their backyard. The first pond was hand dug by Ione and built for the Goldfish. It was fine for the Goldfish, but too small and shallow for Koi. So, Dan purchased a tractor with a backhoe attachment and dug a larger and deeper pond for Ione's Koi.

Keeping the ponds clean and free of algae and contaminants keeps Ione very busy, especially in the fall when the trees are losing their leaves.

She has carefully strung twine on trellises above the ponds to keep the birds of prey from swooping in for a free meal. Occasionally, the neighbor's cat comes for a drink from the ponds and, so far, just likes to gaze at the brightly colored fish.

People probably know Ione best from her twelve or more years working at the Christmas Valley Post Office. She loved her job there and said that "Darrell Krabill was the best boss ever."

Ione Maple checks the water temperature in her Koi pond.

Welcome to

Golf Course

Dan and Ione Maple

After Ione retired from the post office her husband, Dan, retired from Kern's. Now they are busier than ever. Since retiring they have enjoyed camping and traveling. They also are spending more time on the golf course sharpening their golf skills. They have always been very active in the community, and are now even more active. Dan is the Chair of the Christmas Valley Park and Recreation District's Golf Committee, and he and the other committee members just held a very successful fund raising golf tournament. As they say, 'behind every great man is a great woman.' Dan credits Ione for pushing him to seek out sponsors for the tournament and for keeping him organized and on the right track for the tournament preparations. Ione even put together an auction item filled with golf essentials for the tournament fund raising auction.

They are a great team! Dan and Ione have been married for 47 years. They were high school sweethearts at Churchill High School in Eugene. They came to Christmas Valley to run Dan's parent's business, the Desert Inn, now owned and operated by their daughter, Mitzy. They have one other daughter, Amanda, who lives in California with her family where she is a Nuclear Engineer for Diablo Nuclear Power Plant.

There are many people that you meet that bless your life having met them. Ione Maple is one of those people.
