Desert Whispers would like to thank all of our advertisers that have stuck with us while we have been going through the hardship of not being able to get our Xerox printing supplies in a timely manner and now not being able to find a reliable source for our bulk 11x17 paper. We have recently had to order our paper from a different source at nearly three times the cost that we are used to.

Through it all we have NOT raised our rates. We apologize that the printed version of the DW has sometimes lagged, and we are confident that things will get better.

On a very positive note, our online and social media views of the DW have reached record viewing up from 80 - 150 views when I first started with the paper to now 2,800 to 3,500 views. Your ads are being seen!

Thank you for your patience and support!

History of Labor Day : What it Means

- the U.S. Department of Labor

Labor Day Legislation

The first governmental recognition came through municipal ordinances passed in 1885 and 1886. From these, a movement developed to secure state legislation. The first state bill was introduced into the New York legislature, but the first to become law was passed by Oregon on February 21, 1887. During 1887, four more states - Colorado, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New York - created the Labor Day holiday by legislative enactment. By the end of the decade Connecticut, Nebraska, and Pennsylvania had followed suit. By 1894, 23 more states had adopted the holiday, and on June 28, 1894, Congress passed an act making the first Monday in September of each year a legal holiday in the District of Columbia and the territories.

Founder of Labor Day

More than a century after the first Labor Day observance, there is still some doubt as to who first proposed the holiday for workers. Some records show that Peter J. McGuire, general secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and a co-founder of the American Federation of Labor, was first in suggesting a day to honor those "who from rude nature have delved and carved all the grandeur we behold."

Labor Day, the first Monday in September, is a creation of the labor movement and is dedicated to the social and economic achievements of American workers. It constitutes a yearly national tribute to the contributions workers have made to the strength, prosperity, and well-being of our country.

The first state bill was passed by Oregon.

But Peter McGuire's place in Labor Day history has not gone unchallenged. Many believe that Matthew Maguire, a machinist, not Peter McGuire, founded the holiday. Recent research seems to support the contention that Matthew Maguire, later the secretary of Local 344 of the International Association of Machinists in Paterson, N.J., proposed the holiday in 1882 while serving as secretary of the Central Labor Union in New York. What is clear is that the Central Labor Union adopted a Labor Day proposal and appointed a committee to plan a demonstration and picnic.

The First Labor Day

The first Labor Day holiday was celebrated on Tuesday, September 5, 1882, in New York City, in accordance with the plans of the Central Labor Union. The Central Labor Union held its second Labor Day holiday just a year later, on September 5, 1883. By 1894, 23 more states had adopted the holiday, and on June 28, 1894, President Grover Cleveland signed a law making the first Monday in September of each year a national holiday.

A Nationwide Holiday

The form that the observance and celebration of Labor Day should take was outlined in the first proposal of the holiday - a street parade to exhibit to the public "the strength and esprit de corps of the trade and labor organizations" of the community, followed by a festival for the recreation and amusement of the workers and their families. This became the pattern for the celebrations of Labor Day. Speeches by prominent men and women were introduced later, as more emphasis was placed upon the economic and civic significance of the holiday. Still later, by a resolution of the American Federation of Labor convention of 1909, the Sunday preceding Labor Day was adopted as Labor Sunday and dedicated to the spiritual and educational aspects of the labor movement. The character of the Labor Day celebration has changed in recent years, especially in large industrial centers where mass displays and huge parades have proved a problem. This change, however, is more a shift in emphasis and medium of expression. Labor Day addresses by leading union officials, industrialists, educators, clerics, and government officials are given wide coverage in newspapers, radio, and television. The vital force of labor added materially to the highest standard of living and the greatest production the world has ever known and has brought us closer to the realization of our traditional ideals of economic and political democracy. It is appropriate, therefore, that the nation pays tribute on Labor Day to the creator of so much of the nation's strength, freedom, and leadership — the American worker.

Labor Daze - Pride, Chaos and Kegs on Labor's First 'Day'

On the morning of September 5, 1882, a crowd of spectators filled the sidewalks of lower Manhattan near city hall and along Broadway. They had come early, well before the Labor Day parade marchers, to claim the best vantage points from which to view the first Labor Day parade. A newspaper account of the day described "...men on horseback, men wearing regalia, men with society aprons, and men with flags, musical instruments, badges, and all the other paraphernalia of a procession." The police, wary that a riot would break out, were out in force that morning as well. By 9 a.m., columns of police and club-wielding officers on horseback surrounded city hall.

By 10 a.m., the Grand Marshall of the parade, William McCabe, his aides and their police escort were all in place for the start of the parade. There was only one problem: none of the men had moved. The few marchers that had shown up had no music. According to McCabe, the spectators began to suggest that he give up the idea of parading, but he was determined to start on time with the few marchers that had shown up. Suddenly, Mathew Maguire of the Central Labor Union of New York (and probably the father of Labor Day) ran across the lawn and told McCabe that two hundred marchers from the Jewelers Union of Newark Two had just crossed the ferry — and they had a band!

Just after 10 a.m., the marching jewelers turned onto lower Broadway — they were playing "When I First Put This Uniform On," from Patience, an opera by Gilbert and Sullivan. The police escort then took its place in the street. When the jewelers marched past McCabe and his aides, they followed in behind. Then, spectators began to join the march. Eventually, there were 700 men in line in the first of three divisions of Labor Day marchers. Final reports of the total number of marchers ranged from 10,000 to 20,000 men and women.

With all of the pieces in place, the parade marched through lower Manhattan. The New York Tribune reported that: "The windows and roofs and even the lamp posts and awning frames were occupied by persons anxious to get a good view of the first parade in New York of workingmen of all trades united in one organization."

At noon, the marchers arrived at Reservoir Park, the termination point of the parade. While some returned to work, most continued on to the post-parade party at Wendel's Elm Park at 92nd Street and Ninth Avenue; even some unions that had not participated in the parade showed up to join in the post-parade festivities that included speeches, a picnic, an abundance of cigars, and "Lager beer kegs... mounted in every conceivable place." From 1 p.m. until 9 p.m. that night, nearly 25,000 union members and their families filled the park and celebrated the very first, and almost entirely disastrous, Labor Day Celebration.

Enjoy Your Labor Day!

KCC Appoints Acting President while Gutierrez takes extended medical leave

Article by Kurt Liedtke, public information officer, Klamath Community College.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. — Klamath Community College Board of Directors has approved a six-month contract naming Camille Preus Acting President of KCC, effective Sept. 6.

The contract was finalized at a special meeting of the Board of Directors held on Thursday, Aug. 26 in order to maintain proper leadership while current KCC President Dr. Roberto Gutierrez takes extended leave due to an undisclosed medical condition.

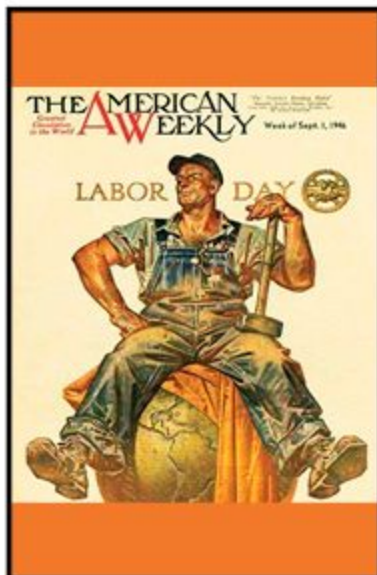

Gutierrez plans to return to his position as KCC President within the next 3-6 months. Preus was named following the recommendation of Gutierrez based on her previous experience as a community college president.

Gutierrez has served as KCC President since 2012. During his tenure KCC has seen rapid expansion in facilities and educational programs offered, including current construction of a new apprenticeship center slated to open in 2023.

Preus was Blue Mountain Community College President from 2013 to 2018. In the time since she has served as Executive Director of the Oregon Community College Association (OCCA), representing all 17 community colleges in Oregon pursuant to legislative and regulatory issues at both the state and federal level. Previous to her time at BMCC, Preus was Director of the Oregon Department of Community Colleges and Workforce Development from 2000 to 2013. She holds a doctorate in Community College Leadership from Oregon State University.

"Klamath Community College does not stand still," said Gutierrez. "The team that keeps us moving, is evident in each area of success, and with each employee doing their part. As part of the Klamath Community College family, I am eager to return and witness the progression that this work has taken in my absence."

Klamath Community College, founded in Klamath Falls in 1996, is a public community college offering a wide array of credited degrees and community education programs both in-person and online. Its primary service area includes Klamath County and northern Lake County.

Back-to-school season means new class of 4th graders eligible for Every Kid Outdoors

PORTLAND, Ore., August 30, 2022 — Back-to-school season means a new class of fourth graders will soon be eligible to enroll in Every Kid Outdoors, a federal program which provides up to a year of free access to National Forests, National Parks, and other public lands for fourth-grade students and their families.

Beginning Sept. 1, fourth graders, parents, and educators can visit the Every Kid Outdoors website at www.everykidoutdoors.gov and learn more about how to obtain free entry to all federal lands, for fourth graders and their family members.

Students can individually by brief online activity who work with can visit the site educational activity which they'll be vouchers for Once printed, their families can paper voucher plastic pass at any office where passes and vouchers are tire school year, 2023.

“Every Kid Outdoors is designed to get kids and their families to explore the outdoors and explore the incredible experiences that are available to them on public lands,” said Krystal Fleege, recreation fee specialist for the U.S. Forest Service’s Pacific Northwest Region. “These passes are intentionally designed to belong to the fourth graders and can only be used when they are present. We want people to get out there and explore these places as a family.”

The federal program is designed for fourth-grade students because research shows children ages 9 to 11 are beginning to learn about the world around them, open to new ideas, and likely to form lasting connections to nature and our history when introduced to public lands and historic sites.

“Public lands serve an important role. They’re living classrooms, and portals to lifelong learning about the natural and cultural history of forests, grasslands and other treasured places,” said Thea Garrett, interim conservation education program manager for the U.S. Forest Service’s Pacific Northwest Region. “Our hope is this program will help inspire the next generation to care for public lands, and to continue to steward these special places for the benefit of future generations.”

IN A LANDSCAPE:

Fort Rock State Natural Area 5:00pm Sat, 9/3 & Sun, 9/4

Part of the Celebrating 100 years of Oregon State Parks collection by IN A LANDSCAPE: Classical Music in the Wild™ with Oregon Parks & Recreation Department & Fort Rock Valley Historical Society

Join us at Fort Rock State Natural Area! Towering above the sagebrush desert, this caldera was once a volcano that erupted under an inland sea. Waves lapping against the rock created caves that housed a shoe 'factory' where anthropologist Luther Cressman discovered an ancient collection of sandals in 1938. Their ages range from about 10,400 to 9,100 years old, making Fort Rock sandals the oldest directly dated footwear in the world.

Be prepared to hike up rocky terrain with your chairs, picnic, and water to this concert site, where you will sit amidst sage brush and desert grasses, and be surrounded by towering basalt cliffs. This area can be hot and dusty so please come prepared to be in the high desert's intense sunshine.

Included in the price of your ticket is a visit to the Fort Rock Valley Historical Homestead Museum, a collection of original homestead era buildings including a church, school, houses, homestead cabins, and several other structures in a village setting. Stop in at Fort Rock Restaurant & Pub or the Waterin' Hole for a tasty bite and cold drink before or after the concert!!!

*Saturday and Sunday Performances are free or by donation to Lake County local residents. However you will need to sign up for ticket reservations on the website www.eventbrite.com/e/in-a-landscape-fort-rock-state-natural-area-500pm-sun-94-tickets or call the box office at 503-308-2921.

The website states Saturday performance is sold out of paid tickets BUT tickets have been set aside for Lake County residents.

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY

Paul Tsatskowsky and Linda Freeman are celebrating 61 years of marriage on September 2nd.

Paul and Linda met on a blind date set up by friends. Paul was fresh out of the Army and Linda was working as a secretary for the State of Oregon. Linda says that she was hesitant to go on the blind date, but as fate would have it things turned out very well. They were married on September 2, 1961 in Aurora, Oregon.

They later moved to Salem where their daughter Kimberly was born in 1964.

In 1998 they moved from Salem to Christmas Valley.

As a result of this blessed union they, also, have been blessed with four grandsons and three great-grandchildren.

They look forward to many more years together.

This ordinance shall apply throughout the unincorporated areas of Lake County. It does not apply to federal or state lands, please reference their respective restrictions before burning.

Oregon Department of Forestry declared fire season to begin June 6, 2022.

Prohibited burning includes: any form of burning yard debris, outdoor campfires or bonfires, exploding targets, sky lanterns, burning of combusmaterials on private or public property.

Prohibited burning shall be enforced by the Lake County Sheriff's Department, District Fire Chiefs, and they have the authority to order any person to immediately cease any violations. Prohibited burning is a Class B Violation.

Depending on your fire district, allowed burning may include; burn barrels with 25 feet of clearance of combustible vegetation or materials, that are monitored, with metal screen covers with ¼" holes or smaller. A water source for complete extinguishment must also be available. Also, patio wood-burning or propane units are allowed. Please consult your jurisdiction fire district for more information.

Burn permits will be issued by the fire authority with jurisdictional fire responsibility and legal authority to issue them.

September 11th National Day of Service and Remembrance

September 11th is Patriot Day and a National Day of Service and Remembrance. On this day Americans across the country are called to volunteer in their local communities in tribute to the individuals lost and injured in the attacks, first responders, and the many who have risen in service to defend freedom.

There are many volunteer opportunities in our North Lake County communities.

Contact any of the volunteer nonprofit organizations advertised in the Desert Whispers to see how you may serve as a volunteer.

Christmas Valley, Silver Lake, and Paisley have volunteer Fire Departments.

Check with local schools and libraries, too.

Chrysalis & cocoon are commonly used interchangeably. Though, Chrysalis pertains to butterflies and cocoon pertains to moths.

Chrysalis is the stage that butterfly caterpillars transform to adult butterflies. For Monarch butterflies in our climate, that transformation takes 10 to 14 days.

This individual has another 3 to 7 days to emerge as adult Monarch butterfly If birds or predator insects don't intervene.
