In Congress, July 4, 1776

The Unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. --

Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the state remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule in these colonies: For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burned our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow citizens taken captive on the high seas to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare, is undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms: our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.

Do's and Don'ts for the American Flag

When displaying the U.S. flag, DO the following:

- Display the U.S. flag from sunrise to sunset on buildings and stationary flagstaffs in the open. When a patriotic effect is desired the U.S. flag may be displayed 24-hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness.
- When placed on a single staff or lanyard, place the U.S. Flag above all other flags.
- When flags are displayed in a row, the U.S. flag goes to the observer's left. Flags of other nations are flown at the same height. State and local flags are traditionally flown lower.
- When used during a marching ceremony or parade with other flags, the U.S. Flag will be to the observer's left.
- On special days, the U.S. flag may be flown at half-staff. On Memorial Day it is flown at half-staff until noon and then raised.
- When flown at half-staff, it should be first hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. The U.S. flag should be again raised to the peak before it is lowered for the day. By "half-staff" is meant lowering the U.S. flag to one-half the distance between the top and bottom of the staff.
- When the U.S. flag is displayed over the middle of the street, it should be suspended vertically with the union (blue field of stars) to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.
- When placed on a podium the U.S. flag should be placed on the speaker's right or the staging area. Other flags should be placed to the left.
- When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall (or other flat surface), the union (blue field of stars) should be uppermost and to the U.S. flag's own right, that is, to the observer's left.
- When displayed in a window it should be displayed in the same way -- with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street.
- When the U.S. flag is displayed on a car, the staff shall be fixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the right fender.
- When the U.S. flag is used to cover a casket, it should be so placed that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The U.S. flag should not be lowered into the grave or allowed to touch the ground.

When saluting the U.S. flag DO the following:

- All persons present in uniform (military, police, fire, etc.) should render the military salute. Members of the armed forces and veterans who are present but not in uniform may render the military salute.
- All other persons present should face the U.S. flag and stand at attention with their right hand over the heart, or if applicable, remove their headdress with their right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart.
- When stowing or disposing of the U.S. flag, DO the following:
 - Fold in the traditional triangle for stowage, never wadded up.
 - the U.S. flag should be folded in its customary manner.
 - It is important that the fire be fairly large and of sufficient intensity to ensure complete burning of the U.S. flag.
- Place the U.S. flag on the fire.
- The individual(s) can come to attention, salute the U.S. flag, recite the Pledge of Allegiance and have a brief period of silent reflection.
- After the U.S. flag is completely consumed, the fire should then be safely extinguished and the ashes buried.
- Please make sure you are conforming to local/state fire codes or ordinances.

St. Zesty Paws
4th of July Tips
Keep Your Pup Safe This Holiday!

Keep Your Dog Indoors, If Possible
The combination of big fireworks, large crowds, and loud music might be too much for some dogs to handle. The best and safest option is to keep your dog indoors when the 4th of July celebration begins.

Give Them a Calming Supplement
If your dog seems anxious and nervous for some reason fireworks go off, one of the easiest ways to calm their nerves is with a holistic calming support. This will soothe stress and tension for your pup.

An ID Tag and a Microchip are Must-Haves
If you decide to bring your dog outside for the festivities, make sure they're tagged and microchipped beforehand. Microchipping is a safe, humanistic, and low-cost way to track down your dog if they ever make a run for it.

Clear Lawn Debris the Next Day
Whether it's ash in the driveway from fireworks, or places where food and alcohol were spilled, use the daylight to clear away anything hazardous your dog could stumble upon.

We hope these tips will help your dog's 4th of July go by without a hitch!

Lake County Burn Ban in Effect for 2024 Fire Season

Oregon Department of Forestry (ODF) declared the beginning of 2024 fire season on June 7, 2024. Lake County Commissioners remind Lake County residents County Ordinance 27 states a county-wide burn ban shall take effect immediately upon the declaration of Fire Season by ODF. The full ordinance may be accessed at: https://cms3.revize.com/revize/lakecounty/county_ordinances/docs/Ordinance%2027%20County%20Burn.pdf.

Lake County Ordinance 27 prohibits the burning of yard debris; outdoor campfires or bonfires; exploding targets; sky lanterns; and burning of combustible materials on private or public property throughout the unincorporated areas of Lake County, including County-owned lands and private property. Federal, State, City and Town lands place their own restrictions.

Call before you burn. Prohibited burning will be enforced by the Lake County Sheriff and your local District Fire Chief. They have the authority to order any fire activity to be immediately extinguished. If you fail to extinguish a fire when directed to do so you may be issued a Class B Violation. Burn permits may be issued by the fire authority within your jurisdiction.

Ordinance 27 does not prohibit burning for the purpose of heating in a stove, furnace, fireplace or other heating device used for habitation.
